HARDING WINS; MILLION LEAD HERE; BIG REPUBLICAN GAINS IN CONGRESS; MILLER LEADS SMITH FOR GOVERNOR

75,000 VICTORY, GLYNN SAYS

WADSWORTH IS ELECTED

Plurality Betters Miller's, but Is Far Behind That on Presidential Ticket.

NEW YORK—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on an amendment to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 750,426; Republican, 869,115.
Polls closed at 6 P. M.

After a neck-and-neck race all evening ex-Judge Nathan L. Miller defeated Alfred E. Smith, his Democratic opponent, for the Governorship on the latest returns by about 57,000 plurality. Despite the big Harding landslide, it seemed probable for some time that Governor Smith would be able to pull through, but late returns from rural Republican districts overcame a record vote for him in New York City.

The Democratic managers refused, however, to give up hope, and early this morning still claimed the election of Mr. Smith. The Governor did not put forth any claim himself, asserting that he preferred to wait until remote up-State districts had been heard from. The Democratic leaders based their hopes for final success upon the fact that late returns showed that the Governor had increased his average majority in each election district in the city from 115 to 118 votes. They did not take into account, however, that Mr. Miller had also increased his average in up-State districts from 75 to 83.

If the present ratios are maintained, ex-Judge Miller will have an up-State lead of 379,725, while Governor Smith's plurality in New York City will be 322,494, giving the Republican candidate a plurality in the entire State of 57,231. Republican leaders claimed the election of Mr. Miller by approximately 75,000. Democratic leaders said Smith's plurality would be around 40,000.

Smith Led at First.

Early reports all evening showed the Tammany Governor in the lead, but when reports from rural Republican strongholds came in Mr. Miller's vote picked up considerably and shoved him well into the lead. At the same time Smith's vote in outlying districts in New York City did not keep pace with the huge vote he received in other parts of the city, and the indications were that ex-Judge Miller would be elected by a small plurality.

Some of the members of the Republican County Committee shortly before midnight made the charge that election returns were being held up in some Tammany districts until Mr. Miller's full strength had been reported. The First, Third and Fourth Assembly Districts, in lower Manhattan, where Tammany's strength is greatest, were among those mentioned at Republican county headquarters.

Deputy Attorney General Berger, accompanied by several members of the committee, set out for the polling places in the districts to learn the true state of affairs.

CITY'S VOTE GOES TO HARDING AND SMITH

SEPARATE BALLOTS HELPED

But Some Charges Heard That Tammany Traded Votes—Socialists Make Gains.

New York City, in yesterday's election, gave its vote overwhelmingly to Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican candidate for President; to Calvin Coolidge, Republican candidate for Vice President, and to Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for Governor.

Senator Harding carried every Assembly District in the Greater City with one exception—the First Assembly District, which is Governor Smith's home district. This gave Cox a plurality of about 400 votes.

In the minor contests the Republicans made some gains, although these were nothing like what might have been expected from the overwhelming sweep made by the Presidential ticket.

This result was greatly facilitated by the three ballots instituted by the Board of Elections, one for the Presidency, one for the State ticket (which also included the Congressional candidates), and one for the constitutional amendment and bonus proposal. The separation made ticket splitting easy, and the voters took full advantage of it.

Harding's victory in the city was overwhelming. At 3 A. M. today, on the returns then available, the plurality of the Republican candidate for the Presidency in the city was indicated as about 443,000.

Manhattan gave a Republican Presidential plurality of about 136,000; the Bronx, 62,000; Brooklyn, 177,000; Queens, 61,000, and Richmond, 7,000.

Striking Support of Smith.

But on the State ticket it was quite a different story. The same hour that found Harding victorious by 443,000 in the normally Democratic city of New York, showed Alfred E. Smith, Democrat, leading Judge Nathan Miller, his OHIO—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 604,101; Republican, 516,753.

Polls closed at 5:30 P. M. (6:30 P. M. New York time).

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 2.—Returns from 2,987 precincts out of a total of 7,140 in the State give Harding 499,355, Cox 336,352.

If this ratio is maintained, the indications are that Senator Harding carried Ohio by more than 400,000 plurality.

Under instructions from State officials county election boards counted Presidential returns first. This made returns on the State ticket and the United States Senatorship unusually slow. Many scratched ballots were voted on the State ticket.

Returns from 66 precincts for United States Senator give Willis (R), 6,341; Julian (D), 4,794.

Senator Harding has probably carried every large city in the State from which normally the Democrats get their majorities. In some instances his pluralities have been tremendous. He is running even in Columbus, and may have carried it.

Many of the country districts are holding up to normal for Governor Cox. In some instances he is making slight gains there.

Chairman Clark claims the election of the Republican State ticket, including Harry L. Davis for Governor, by 100,000, while Chairman Durbin claims the election of A. V. Donahey (Dem.) for Governor by at least 50,000.

The vote in Cuyahoga County, including Cleveland, is running about two to one for Harding, indicating the sentiment in Northern Ohio. Four years ago Wilson carried the county two to one. Seventy-eight precincts out of 571 in the city of Cleveland gave Harding 13,840, Cox 7,937. In Cuyahoga County, outside of Cleveland, nine precincts out of 133 give Harding 2,826, Cox 830.

Hamilton County, in which Cincinnati is situated, will give 20,000 plurality for Harding.

INDIANA IS SWEPT BY REPUBLICANS

Early Returns Indicate That Harding Will Carry State by Upward of 200,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 2.—Late returns coming in from the rural districts have piled up the Harding plurality in the State with every indication pointing that the Republican landslide will be the largest in the history of Indiana. It was estimated late tonight that Cox will be defeated by at least 200,000 votes. The former Republican plurality record for Indiana in a Presidential race was held by Roosevelt with 93,000.

Of 1,002 precincts out of the 3,384 in the State, Harding has received 330,767 votes and Cox, 239,621.

Warren T. McCray of Kentland, Republican Gubernatorial nominee, has been swept into office by an overwhelming plurality over Dr. Carlton B. McCulloch of Indianapolis, his Democratic opponent. Although James E. Watson ran behind the ticket in several districts in his race for re-election to the Senate against Thomas Taggart, it is estimated that he will trail Harding less than 15,000 votes. Watson ran especially strong in the rural districts, while Taggart made his best showing in the laboring centres.

On the face of incomplete returns it appears that eleven of the thirteen Congressional Districts have piled up a suf-

ILLINOIS—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on an amendment to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 950,229; Republican, 1,152,549.
Polls closed at 5 P. M. (6 P. M. New York time).

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Upon the basis of returns received up to a late hour tonight Harding and Coolidge have carriad Illinois by a plurality of more than 800,000. At this hour Harding has an indicated plurality of 331,000 in Chicago. His plurality down State is estimated to be not less than 316,000.

Harding's plurality in Chicago is apparently larger than any ever given a candidate by the city. It exceeds the famous 147,477 which Mayor Thompson got in 1915.

In 966 of 5,730 Illinois precincts, including 475 in Chicago, Harding had 218,913 votes, against 78,996 for Cox.

McKinley, for Senator, had a plurality of 57,621 over Waller, and Small was leading Lewis nearly two to one for Governor.

The Republican sweep apparently is even stronger than in 1904, when Roosevelt carried Cook County by 126,000, the women not voting then. Four years ago Hughes carried the county by 56,000 over Wilson, but Harding's lead over Cox is more than five times greater.

By 1 o'clock it was estimated that 60 per cent. of the 884,000 registered voters had visited the polls. During the afternoon they kept swarming in, and closing time saw many still waiting in line.

Early returns indicate about 825,000 votes were cast in Chicago. The plurality

IRRECONCILABLES ELECTED

Brandegee in Connecticut and Moses in New Hampshire Returned.

President Harding will have a Republican Congress to support his policies in the first two years at least of his Administration. Returns received up until the time this edition of THE TIMES goes to press show that the party which was triumphant at the polls yesterday will have increased majorities in both Houses, with that in the House approaching 300.

Returns in the elections for Senators and Representatives are meager from some important States, but the trend of voting in those States in the Presidential and Gubernatorial contests indicates the probable result as far as the Senate is concerned. The returns received indicate that the two houses in the next Congress will stand as follows:

Senate—Republicans, 54 Democrats, 42.

This gives the Republicans a majority of 12 in the Senate and a majority of 113 in the House. The present Republican majority in the Senate is 2 and in the House 39.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire and Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, both Republicans of the irreconcilable treaty group in the Senate, were strongly opposed on account of their opposition to the League of Nations, but have carried their States by substantial majorities. Senator Brandegee also had the opposition of many women on account of his effort to prevent the ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment.

Phelan Loses California.

Samuel Shortridge, Republican, who supported Senator Hiram Johnson's irreconcilable opposition to the League of Nations, appears to have been elected to the Senate, defeating Senator James D. Phelan, Democrat, a firm friend of the Wilson Administration. Senator James E. Watson, Republican, has been re-elected from Indiana, defeating ex-Senator Thomas Taggart, Democrat. Returns from Iowa are not nearly complete, but they indicate that in spite of the opposition of organizations of farmers and laborers and a great many Re-

NO COMMENT ON RETURNS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Although messages to the White House tonight brought the news that Harding was leading in very nearly all the doubtful localities the attitude seemed to be sit tight and concede nothing until the actual result was ascertained. The experience of the Hughes débâcle four years ago appeared to hold out a lesson in the wisdom of this course for the White House circle.

No public expressions of any kind were made. The atmosphere lacked the gloom usually associated with the news of a reversal. Visitors to the White House found the Secretaries and other members of the staff in perfect good humor.

President Wilson heard bulletins until about 9 o'clock, and this being his usual bed hour, he retired, so it was said. Admiral Cary T. Grayson, his personal physician, left the White House for his home about 8:30 o'clock. This fact seemed to set aside theories that the President would be in a nervous condition if he realized that Senator Harding was far ahead in the Presidential race.

SOLID SOUTH UNBROKEN

Unless Late Figures Change Tennessee—Cox May Lose All Western States.

By majorities unprecedented in American politics, Warren G. Harding was elected President and Calvin Coolidge Vice President yesterday on Senator Harding's fifty-fifth birthday. Though the addition of women to the electorate might have been expected to make the margins of successful candidates somewhat larger than in past years, it could hardly account for any such unheard of majorities as were rolled up yesterday. From coast to coast records were broken.

Harding's total pluralities in the States he carried may reach 6,500,000 and his net plurality over Cox may be 6,000,000. This surpasses by 3,500,000 the previous record, which was that of Theodore Roosevelt's victory over Alton B. Parker.

The highest State plurality ever previously recorded, Roosevelt's margin of 500,000 over Parker in Pennsylvania in 1904, was surpassed by at least four States yesterday. New York State went for Harding by nearly 1,100,000; Pennsylvania gave him a plurality of 750,000; Illinois gave him 800,000; California, which went for Wilson four years ago by a majority of 2,700, gave Harding a plurality of perhaps 300,000 over James M. Cox. Ohio, the home State of both candidates, went for Harding by 400,000.

At 4 o'clock this morning it seemed that Harding's majority on electoral votes would equal or surpass the record-breaking landslide by which Roosevelt beat Alton B. Parker.

Cox held the solid South, and Kentucky and perhaps Oklahoma among the border States; but West Virginia and Missouri had apparently gone for Harding, as they went for Roosevelt in 1904. Late reports indicate that Cox might possibly lose Tennessee.

The latest reports give Harding 371 electoral votes and Cox 152, with eight votes—those of Arizona and North Dakota—still uncertain. This, however, seems to be due to inadequate reports; the probability is that they are all for Harding.

All over the country the Harding pluralities broke records. Boston, which has been consistently Democratic in recent years, except in 1896, when McKinley carried it over Bryan, showed the effect of the drift of the Irish vote by giving Harding a plurality of more than 20,000.

New York City, however, was even more surprising. The city went for Taft in 1908 by less than 16,000; it seems to have given Harding a plurality of more than 443,000. Buffalo gave Harding a plurality of 46,247.

The effect of the Harding sweep showed everywhere. Though the Southern States stood fast, Harding had carried two wards in Atlanta and two Louisiana parishes. In the Middle West, Indiana and Kansas each gave him more than 200,000 plurality, Iowa about the same; Michigan nearly 400,000; Wisconsin nearly 300,000.

yesterday. New Jersey gave Harding more than 200,000.

Reports from the Far West, due to the wide extent of territory and the difference in time, were slow in coming in, but there was every indication that the Western States which had re-elected Wilson in 1916 when almost all the East went for Hughes had turned over solidly to the Republican nominee this year.

Harding carried his home precinct, 378 to 76. It was Democratic four years ago, though there has been a reapportionment since. Governor Cox's home precinct was carried by Harding by 12 votes. In Northampton, Mass., Coolidge's home town, the Republicans won by two to one. Four years ago Hughes carried it by a very narrow margin. Harding carried Hyde Park, N. Y., the home town of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President, by 279 votes to 194, and he carried President Wilson's home district at Princeton, N. J., by a majority estimated at about five to one.

At 11 o'clock last night Governor Cox's newspaper, The Dayton News, conceded the election of Harding, and George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, followed his candidate's example a few minutes later.

Governor Alfred E. Smith seems to have been defeated, although he ran nearly 300,000 ahead of the Democratic national ticket up-State and more than three quarters of a million ahead of the national ticket in the city. His plurality in this city at 4 o'clock this morning, was estimated at 315,000, but Judge Nathan L. Miller, the Republican candidate, had a margin of apparently 370,000 in the up-State vote. Democratic leaders, however, refused at 4 o'clock this morning to concede Governor Smith's defeat.

The Republican sweep carried with it considerably increased majorities in both houses of Congress. Indications at 2 o'clock this morning were that the Republicans would have fifty-four Senators to the Democrats forty-two, but Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, was claiming a majority of fourteen. The present Senate has forty-nine Republicans and forty-seven Democrats.

In the House the Republicans will apparently have 273 and the Democrats 159. Two independents and one Prohibitionist have been elected. The present House has a Republican majority of 38 over all; it will be increased in the next to 111. It appears that the Democrats will have only 13 of the 43 seats from New York.

Ogden L. Mills (Rep.) defeated Representative Pell in the Seventeenth District here.

In each house of the New York Legislature the Democrats have lost six seats. The next Senate will have 37 Republicans and 14 Democrats; the next Assembly 116 Republicans, 29 Democrats and 5 Socialists. Four of the five Socialists expelled from the Assembly last Winter were re-elected, and the Socialists gained another seat in the Bronx.

Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., was elected easily, despite the opposition of the woman suffragists, who were embittered by his consistent antagonism to their cause in recent years. His plurality over Harry C. Walker, the Democratic nominee, seems to be about 365,000, although Republican headquarters are claiming 500,000.

In Connecticut Senator Frank B. Brandegee, also opposed by the woman suffragists and by some League Republicans because of his outspoken hostility to the League, will probably have a margin of 35,000 or more over Congressman Augustine Lonergan, his Democratic opponent.

From the coast to coast veteran and popular Democrats fell in the general collapse. The disaster which seems to have beaten Alfred E. Smith out of the Governorship of New York has also defeated Senator James D. Phelan for re-election in California, despite his great popularity throughout the State. In Indiana, Thomas Taggart, candidate for the Senate against James E. Watson, the present holder of the seat, was thought likely a few weeks ago to win his fight; but though Watson has apparently run behind the Presidential ticket by many thousands, he seems sure of election.

Factional fights in Illinois and Wisconsin did not disturb the Republicans. The battle in the primaries between the Thompson and Lowden factions in Illinois had caused bitter animosities, and several Republican papers, including The Chicago Tribune, supported James Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic nominee for Governor, against Len Small, the Thompson Republican candidate. But Lewis was overwhelmingly defeated, and William B. McKinley, the Lowden Republican candidate for the Senate, was elected by a huge majority over Waller, his Democratic opponent.

In Wisconsin Senator Irvine Luther Lenroot, a mild reservationist on the League question, was opposed by James Thompson, a LaFollette man and representative of the bitter-end anti-League faction. But Lenroot won handily, and Paul S. Reinsch, former Minister to China, who was the Democratic candidate, did no more than beat the Socialist for third honors. In New Hampshire Senator George H. Moses, one of the bitter opponents of the League, had been disturbed in his campaign by echoes from the primary fight against a pro-League Republican, but he too won with ease.

Socialist managers claimed a vote of more than 2,000,000, as against less than 600,000 four years ago, but the early returns did not provide a basis for judging the reliability of their estimates. They seem to have a heavy vote in Illinois.

Plurality for Miller, 31,635.
Estimating the missing districts on the basis of the actual returns, Miller's plurality up-State is about 384,0000 and Smith's plurality in New York City about 320,000, giving Miller an estimated plurality of about 64,000 in the whole State.

NEVADA.

NEVADA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressman, Justices of Supreme Court and Regents of the University, and on a Constitutional amendment. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 17,776: Republican, 12,127.
Polls closed at 6 P. M. (9 P. M. New York time).

CARSON, Nev., Nov. 2.—Indications are that Oddie, Republican, for Senator, has a good chance for election, and Nevada may send a Republican representative to Congress.

Ten incomplete precincts in Reno and seven in the State give Harding 215 and Cox 170. For Senator, Henderson (Democrat) has 270, Oddie (Republican) 352 and Anne Martin (Independent) 113.

OKLAHOMA.

OKLAHOMA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on amendments to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 148,113; Republican, 97,-333.
Polls closed at 6 P. M. rural, 7 P. M. cities, (9 P. M. New York time).

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 2.—Complete returns from 651 precincts out of 2,685 in Oklahoma, scattered over 67 of the 77 counties of the State, indicated at midnight that the State vote for President and United States Senator would be the closest in the State's history. These precincts gave Cox 57,272 and Harding 54,242. For Senator, 880 precincts gave Scott Ferris, Democrat, 58,-723 and J. W. Harreld, Republican, 55,490.

BIG HARDING VOTE CAST IN GEORGIA

GEORGIA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on amendments to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 125,845; Republican, 11,225.
Polls closed at 6 P. M. in county seats, 3 P. M. elsewhere.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 2.—Early returns indicate that Georgia has gone for Cox and Roosevelt, but not by as large a plurality as is usually given the Democratic National ticket. The vote for Harding and Coolidge promises to be larger than any ever cast for a Republican ticket, except probably in the Roosevelt-Parker contest.

On the meagre returns received Republican managers predict that the Harding vote will exceed 80,000. In 1916 Hughes received 1,000 votes. Hostility to Wilson and opposition to the League of Nations account foo the heavy increase in the Republican vote.

Thomas E. Watson, anti-Wilson and anti-League Democrat, has been elected Senator to succeed Hoke Smith. The returns indicate that Watson has an overwhelming majority over Harry S. Edwards, who ran as an independent favoring the League. Edwards was nominated by the Progressive Republicans, but decided to run as an independent after the Democrats nominated Watson. The regular Republican ticket carried Watson's name as well as that of Edwards, and the Democratic candidate received more regular Republican votes than Edwards.

IDAHO.

IDAHO—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials, and on an amendment to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 70,054; Republican, 55,368.
Polls closed at 7 P. M. (9 P. M. New York time).

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 2.—Early count in Idaho indicates that Harding has carried the State by over 25,000 and that Gooding, Republican, has been elected United States Senator by 10,000. French and Smith, Republicans for Congress, have been re-elected by 25,000.

James P. Pope, Democratic State Chairman, conceded Idaho to Harding at 8:40 tonight with only 17 precincts of the 925 in the State reported complete. These precincts gave Cox 740; Harding 1,592.

NORTH CAROLINA.

NORTH CAROLINA—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on amendments to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 168,383; Republican, 120,988.
Polls closed at 5 P. M.

Special to The New York Times.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 2.—Returns from almost every county and district in the State show that the Democratic ticket has been elected by a majority of 60,000, which will probably be increased to 70,000 when the full returns are in. All the ten Democratic Congressmen have been elected by safe majorities. Lee S. Overman is returned to the United States Senate by a large vote.

In 1,079 precincts out of 1,600 Cox obtained 58,585, Harding 10,667. For Senator: Overman, Democrat, receives 27,498 votes; Holton, Republican, 5,791. For Governor: Morrison, Democrat, 38,992; Parker, Republican, 9,876.

TEXAS.

TEXAS—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on Constitutional amendments

LEGISLATURE AGAIN HEAVILY REPUBLICAN

Republicans Gain Six Seats in the Senate and Six in the Assembly.

5 SOCIALISTS ARE ELECTED

But 156 Socialist Candidates Go Down to Defeat—Of 15 Women Candidates, 3 Win.

With returns from up-State practically complete and about one half of the districts in this city heard from, indications early this morning were than the next Senate would be composed of thirty-seven Republicans and fourteen Democrats and the next Assembly of 117 Republicans, 28 Democrats and 5 Socialists.

This would be a net gain for the Republicans of six seats in the Senate and seven in the Assembly on the basis of latest returns when this edition of THE TIMES goes to press. Complete returns may increase the Socialist representation. Until their expulsion at the last session of the Assembly there were five Socialist Assemblymen, all of whom were candidates for re-election.

The Democrats, on returns now at hand, have lost six seats in the Senate and six in the Assembly. The present Senate is composed of 31 Republicans and 20 Democrats, the Assembly of 110 Republicans and 35 Democrats.

The Democrats lost the only two places in the Senate from districts outside of New York City. In the Thirty-first Senate District, now represented by John J. Mackrell, Democrat, F. E. Draper, Republican, won. In the Forty-ninth (Erie County) Samuel J. Ramsperger, Democrat, who has served in the upper house longer than any of the present members, was defeated by W. E. Martin, a Republican newcomer.

The new delegation to the Legislature from New York City represents a Republican gain of five seats in the Senate and two in the Assembly, on latest returns.

There were fifteen women candidates for the Legislature. On the basis of latest returns only three of those have been elected—Margaret L. Smith, Republican, who represents the Nineteenth Assembly District in the present House, was re-elected; Dr. Elizabeth Van Rensselaer Gillette, Democrat, representing the Second Assembly in Schenectady County, was defeated.

Nathan Straus, Jr., son of the philanthropist, defeated Albert Ottinger in the Fifteenth Senate District (Manhattan). It will be the first venture of Mr. Straus in public life.

The Socialists made a more determined attempt this year to win seats in the Legislature than they have in any previous year, there being in all 156 Socialist candidates running for the Legislature, where in other years a score has been the average number of candidates bidding for Socialist votes.

There were 15 Socialists aspiring to the Senate, 46 out of the 51 places in the Senate, and to 110 out of the 150 places in the Assembly. Many of the Socialist candidates were women.

Miss Margaret L. Smith, the Republican member from the Nineteenth New York district, was a candidate for re-election, and in all probability has won. Dr. Elizabeth Van Rensselaer Gillette of Schenectady, Democrat, was a candidate for re-election from the Second Schenectady district. At midnight no returns had been received from this district.

There were in all fifteen women trying to win seats in the Senate and Assembly. Of those two were seeking seats in the Senate and thirteen in the Assembly. The aspirants for places in the Senate were Miss May H. Mainland, Socialist, in the Second Senate District (Queens), and Miss Fannie Witherspoon, a college graduate and settlement worker, who was running on the Socialist ticket in the Thirteenth Senatorial District in Manhattan, which takes in Greenwich Village. Of the women who sought seats in the Assembly two were Republicans, three Democrats and eight Socialists.

According to the early returns, Senator Samuel J. Ramsperger of Erie County was defeated in the Forty-ninth Senate District by his Republican opponent. Senator Ramsperger has seen longer continuous service in the upper house at Albany than any member now sitting in the Senate and has weathered many storms in his home district until it was apparent that only a landslide could bring about his defeat. He came to the Senate in 1890 and with the exception of two years, 1905 and 1906, has served continuously since. He was known as the "silent" Senator, having made less than half a dozen speeches during his many years of service. Nevertheless he was very successful in getting his measures through even when the opposition party controlled the Senate.

Here is a table showing the list of Senators and Assemblymen elected, the result in many of the New York City districts being based on estimates:

CALIFORNIA IS SWEPT BY THE REPUBLICANS

CALIFORNIA—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen, Justice of Supreme Court and Appellate Districts, and on amendments to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 466,200; Republican, 462,394.

Polls closed at 7 P. M. (10 P. M. New York time).

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—The vote from 684 precincts in 24 of California's 58 counties shows Senator Warren G. Harding leading Governor James M. Cox by a majority of 4 to 1. The vote, which included 350 precincts in Los Angeles County, gave for President: Cox, 26,847; Harding, 86,752.

At 11 o'clock tonight the election of Samuel M. Shortridge, Republican, as Senator from California was practically assured. Shortridge, from available returns, was leading at 5 to 3 throughout the State. Phelan was leading in San Francisco, but his margin was slight. At this hour in San Francisco the figures were: Phelan, 10,945; Shortridge, 9,869.

Figures from scattering points throughout the State favored the passage of the Alien Land Law act by a vote estimated at 4 to 1.

The bone dry act has been defeated, it is predicted.

ficient lead for the Republican nominee to be elected, while in two of these districts, the Third and Fourth, composed of Southern Indiana counties, there are exceptionally close races, with the two Democratic aspirants having a slight lead.

First District, Luhring (R.) elected over Wilson (D.) by 4,500; Second District, Eland (R.) elected over Sullop (D.) by 7,000; Third District, Ewing (D.) elected over Daunder (R.) by 1,000; Fourth District, Canfield (D.) elected over Benham (R.) by 1,500; Fifth District, Sanders (R.) elected over Batt (D.) by 2,100; Sixth District, Elliot (R.) elected over Yarling (D.) by 5,000; Seventh District, Moores (R.) elected over Spaan (D.) by 16,000; Eighth District, Vestal (R.) elected over Paddock (D.) by 9,000; Ninth District, Purnell (R.) elected over Seifres (D.) by 12,000; Tenth District, Wood (R.) Eleventh District, Kraus (R.) elected eleventh district, Kraus (R.) elected over Cook (D.) by 9,500; Twelfth District, Fairfield (R.) elected over Harrison (D.) by 6,000; Thirteenth District, Hickey (R.) elected over Repler (D.) by 8,000.

Reports from all parts of the State are to the effect that the voting was heavy. Several districts reported that at least 95 per cent. of the registered vote went to the polls.

HARDING BY 112,000 IN CONNECTICUT

Senator Brandegee Is Swept in by the Great Republican Victory.

STATE ALL REPUBLICAN

Full Ticket Elected, While General Assembly Will Have Fewer Democrats Than Ever.

CONNECTICUT—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on an amendment to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 99,786; Republican, 106,514.

Polls closed at 6 P. M. (certain towns at 8 P. M.)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Wednesday, Nov. 3.—Senator Harding carried Connecticut yesterday by the largest plurality ever recorded in the State. At 2:15 o'clock this morning, with only eight towns out of 168 in the State missing, Harding's plurality was 112,245. The totals were: Harding, 228,557; Cox, 116,312.

In the same number of towns Senator Brandegee, Republican "irreconcilable," had a plurality of 81,326 over Congressman Augustine Lonergan, his Democratic opponent. The opposition to Senator Brandegee by the Women Suffrage Party of the State was believed to have been responsible for his falling 31,000 votes behind the Presidential candidate. At his hotel in Hartford Senator Brandegee declined to issue a statement on his re-election.

Everett J. Lake, Republican, was elected Governor by a slightly smaller plurality than Harding received. In 160 towns the Gubernatorial total was Lake 223,242, Tyler 117,568. He carried with him the entire State ticket.

The General Assembly will probably have fewer Democrats in it than ever before. One feature was the winning by the Republicans of all the New Haven Senatorial Districts. A record which had never been equalled. The House will probably have only a small Democratic delegation. Two women have been elected members, Miss Emily Brown of Naugatuck and Rey Grace Edwards of New Hartford.

In Portland a Democratic candidate for the Assembly was elected by a five-vote margin, and the Republican Town Committee at once gave notice of a petition for a recount.

Senator Brandegee, who was in Hartford during the evening, was the recipient of congratulatory messages from far and near.

WISCONSIN'S VOTE GOES TO HARDING

WISCONSIN—Voted for Presidential Electors, United States Senator, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on an amendment to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 193,042; Republican, 221,323.

Polls closed at 5 P. M. (6 P. M. New York time).

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 2.—When the first returns of the Milwaukee suburban precincts started trickling in tonight indications began to point to a 300,000 majority for Harding in Wisconsin. Early returns from the city also favored Harding. It was in the lake shore cities and the manufacturing districts that the Democrats hoped to poll their votes, and with these apparently failing them Democratic leaders gave up the battle before the polls closed. Wisconsin, with its heavy German and Norwegian vote, is strongly against a League of Nations in any form.

The outstanding feature of the election here is the fact that the La Follette sun in Wisconsin is fast sinking. When Senator Irvine Lenroot won the Republican nomination over James Thompson, La Follette's candidate, the senior Senator brought out Thompson as an independent candidate. Present returns indicate that Lenroot is re-elected by a plurality of 20,000 over Thompson, with Paul S. Reinsch, Democrat, running third.

The Democrats in Wisconsin probably will not have a single member of Congress. The delegation is expected to be solidly Republican.

A hot fight was on in the Fifth District, where William Stafford, former Representative, fought Victor L. Berger, and the result is in doubt. Many of those who voted for Berger when he was elected last time in a special election returned to their party ranks, and the leader of the Socialists may not put over a victory.

It is likely that John J. Blaine, Republican candidate for Governor, has defeated Colonel Robert D. McCoy, Democrat, who had the backing of the conservative Republicans. Blaine, backed by La Follett and the Non-Partisan League, captured the nomination, but the old line party men, angry because La Follette brought out Thompson in an effort to defeat Lenroot, turned their backs on Blaine and organized Harding-Coolidge-McCoy clubs.

COX AND BECKHAM LEAD IN KENTUCKY RETURNS

Former Nearly 35,000 Ahead of Harding—Women Campaign to the End.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 2.—Governor Cox increased his lead of over 25,000 votes in Kentucky to nearly 35,000 when returns from 2,588 precincts out of 3,226 in the State had been compiled. The vote stood: Harding, 393,122; Cox, 397,939.

Women took an active part in last minute campaigning as they did throughout the entire vote-getting period. There were contests in nine of the eleven Congressional districts of the State. In the remaining two one Democrat and one Republican were conceded the vote.

MONTANA.

MONTANA—Voted for Presidential Electors, Congressmen, Governor and other State officials and on amendments to the Constitution. Vote in 1916: Democratic, 101,063; Republican, 66,750.

Polls closed at 6 P. M. (8 P. M. New York time).

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 2.—The principal Montana cities give Harding 3,000 and Cox 2,000.

The rural vote was heavy. Returns are meagre and slow, four Non-Partisan precincts in Custer County, gave Wheeler 346 and Dixon 46.

REPUBLICANS GAIN IN NEXT CONGRESS

publicans who espoused the cause of the League of Nations, Senator Albert B. Cummins, Republican, who fathered the Esch-Cummins Railroad Transportation bill, has been re-elected. Bitter contests were waged in Indiana and Iowa, and both States were claimed for Senator by the Democrats.

Senator J. C. W. Beckham, Democrat, who had supported the Wilson policies, seems to have obtained re-election in Kentucky. Other Democrats apparently elected to the Senate in close States are Senator Charles B. Henderson of Nevada and Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon.

Senator I. L. Lenroot has been returned to the Senate from Wisconsin by a substantial majority in spite of the fact that he had the opposition of his Senatorial colleague and former friend, Robert M. La Follette. Lenroot won the nomination for Senator in the Republican primaries over James Thompson, but Thompson, with La Follette's backing, was entered in the race against Lenroot as an Independent Republican. La Follette appeared on the stump for the first time in several years in the effort to elect Thompson, and was bitter in his denunciation of Lenroot. Paul S. Reinsch, who was Minister to China under the Wilson Administration, was the Democratic candidate against Lenroot and Thompson.

League an Issue.

The League of Nations was an issue in the Wisconsin Senatorial campaign. Lenroot was a mild reservationist while the League covenant was before the Senate, and was attacked for his attitude in this connection by Thompson, who placed himself with the irreconcilable group. Reinsch was a strong supporter of the League.

The re-election of Senator James Wadsworth, Jr., of New York was regarded as a foregone conclusion, since it began to be apparent that Senator Harding would carry New York State by such an overwhelming majority that he would carry Wadsworth along with him to victory, and there was no surprise in Wadsworth's election even by the heavy majority he obtained, although he ran far behind the Presidential nominee.

One member of the Republican Old Guard about whose re-election there was doubt seems to have benefitted by the tremendous Republican trend throughout the country. This is Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, one of the twelve apostles of the Mormon Church, who found great opposition this year on account of his views on the League of Nations. The Mormon Church was strongly for the League, and the Mormon vote, usually cast almost solidly for Smoot, was split up between the various political parties.

Republican Gain in Colorado.

In Colorado S. D. Nicholson, Republican, has been elected to the Senate to succeed Senator Thomas, Democrat. Thomas ran this year as an independent with irreconcilable opposition to the League of Nations as the principal plank in his platform. In Idaho F. R. Gooding, Republican, who was defeated for the Senate two years ago, is believed to have been elected to that body in yesterday's elections, over Senator Nugent, who defeated Gooding in 1918. Gooding received the support of Senator Borah after he had declared opposition to the League of Nations.

In Oklahoma Senator Gore, Democrat, has apparently been succeeded by Congressman Scott Ferris, Democrat, a League advocate. Gore was one of the few Democratic Senators who opposed the Versailles treaty on account of the covenant. He was defeated for renomination by Ferris.

Boies Penrose, Republican, is returned to the Senate for another term. Senator Marcus A. Smith, Democrat, seems to have been re-elected from Arizona in spite of very determined opposition. Congressman W. B. McKinley has been elected to the Senate from Illinois, succeeding Lawrence Y. Sherman, who declined to be a candidate. Senator Charles Curtis, Republican, has been re-elected from Kansas. Senators W. P. Dillingham of Vermont and W. L. Jones of Washington have been re-elected.

Spencer May Win in Missouri.

One of the most spirited Senatorial contests was waged in Missouri, where the Republican was Senator S. P. Spencer, who recently became involved in a controversy with President Wilson over remarks alleged to have been made by the President at a plenary session of the Peace Conference in Paris, and the Democratic candidate was Breckinridge Long, former Third Assistant Secretary of State.

Long won the nomination in the Democratic primaries as a supporter of the League of Nations, defeating the candidate of Senator James A. Reed, the principal Democratic opponent of President Wilson on the League issue. Returns received up to 3 A. M. today indicated Spencer's re-election.

Senator Harding will be succeeded in the Senate from Ohio by ex-Governor Frank B. Willis, Republican.

Two Republican candidates, indorsed by the Non-Partisan League, have been elected to the Senate, E. F. Ladd in North Dakota, and Peter Norbeck in South Dakota.

The Republicans made Senatorial gains in four States, the candidates of that party being elected to succeed sitting Democrats in California, Colorado, Idaho and South Dokota.

Changes in the House.

A number of changes will occur in the personnel of the House as a result of yesterday's elections. Ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio has probably been returned as a member of the House of Representatives. Congressman Richard Olney of Massachusetts, Democrat, seems to have been defeated for re-election.

One of the striking figures in the House of Representatives went down to defeat. He is the veteran Congress, Gen Isaac Sherwood, Democrat, a veteran of the civil war, who is 85 years old.

Another veteran Democratic Representative, Culbp of Indiana, was defeated. In Illinois, Representative W B. Wilson, Republican, elected for eight terms; Representative Nils Juul, Republican, elected for two terms, and Representative Thomas Gallagher, Democrat, elected for six terms, were all defeated.

There was a close race between Representative Carew, Democrat, and Jeremiah O'Leary, Farmer-Labor candidate in the Seventeenth New York (Manhattan) District, but Carew managed to win. Representative Sabath of Illinois, a veteran Democrat, was defeated. Representative R. Y. Thomas, Jr., Democrat, who has served in Congress from Kentucky for six terms, was defeated by a Republican.

Representative A. J. Volstead, author of the famous prohibition enforcement law, was re-elected. Volstead was defeated in the Republican primaries for renomination, but his opponent was still barred from running by the courts on the ground that he had libeled Volstead.

Victor Berger,r unning again as a Socialist after he had been expelled from the House of Representatives, has been defeated by Representative Stafford, Republican, in a Milwaukee district.

The Republicans gained the following Representatives in Congress: Connecticut, 1; California, 2; Illinois, 2; Massachusetts, 2; Michigan, 2; New Jersey, 5; New York, 10; Ohio, 3; Pennsylvania, 5; South Dakota, 1 Utah, 2, and West Virginia, 1.

As Congress Will Stand.

In the present Senate there are 49 Republicans and 47 Democrats. Thirty-four members of the Senate were elected yesterday, thirty-two of them for full terms of six years and the remaining two to fill vacancies caused by death.

In the present House there are 233 Republicans, 191 Democrats, two Independents and one Prohibitionist. There are eight vacancies in the House membership which were filled yesterday. In the present House, the Republicans have a plurality of 42 over the Democrats and a majority of 39 over all other parties.

Although later returns will probably change the total, figures received up to the time this edition of THE TIMES goes to press indicate that the Senate and the next House will be composed of those whose names and political affiliations are contained in the tables given below.

SENATE REPUBLICAN BY 14, SAYS HAYS

National Chairman Sure House Will Be Overwhelmingly Republican.

HARDING'S VOTE A RECORD

At 1 o'clock this morning Republican National Chairman Will H. Hays said:

"Senator Harding and Governor Coolidge are fast attaining the largest electoral and popular majority ever given in this country. The House will be overwhelmingly Republican and the Senate will have a Republican majority of not less than fourteen."

Colonel Thomas W. Miller, Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau ror the Eastern Division, said:

"Cox's defeat is fast attaining the proportions of the Parker defeat in 1904. This is not due to Cox, but it is an emphatic answer to Wilson's request for a referendum. It began in Maine and has spread through all the United States."

At 10 o'clock in the evening Chairman Hays had said:

"Precisely as has been the case in every instance since the founding of the Republic, the American people, when confronted with a grave decision, have decided right. The returns seem to indicate an unparalleled majority. It is an extraordinary degree of agreement on the part of the people as to whom they want to conduct their common affairs and the course they want them to take."

Mr. Hays declined to make a specific statement regarding the size of the electoral vote for Senator Harding beyond stating that the estimates announced last week predicting 368 electoral votes for Harding would be borne out and might be exceeded in view of the large Republican vote being polled in the Western States, especially in those States where Cox was said to have greatest strength.

To Senator and Mrs. Warren G. Harding, Marion, Ohio:

"Once more the American people have rendered a wise and just verdict. Never have they spoken more wisely. Never have they made their wishes so plain. Not only does the victory command my admiration, but the great American who has merited and won that victory commands my admiration, my respect and my affection. Heartiest congratulations and affectionate greetings to you both."

To Governor and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, Northampton, Massachusetts:

"All America will rejoice in the momentous decision that is rendered today. Heartiest congratulations and affectionate greetings to you both."

Mrs. Harry A. Livermore, Chairman of the Women's Republican Committee of New York State, was a visitor at National Headquarters and she displayed genuine enthusiasm over the big vote recorded for Harding and, notwithstanding the closeness of the vote between Miller and Smith for Governor of the State, she said that Miller would prove to be elected by a comfortable margin.

"The results make this evening seem like two Thanksgivings rolled into one," she said, smiling.

"Of course," she added, "I believe that the women's vote contributed very much to the election of Mr. Harding, but as no analysis of the division of the vote is possible, I will be content by claiming that one-half of the majority Harding vote was due to the women's efforts."

Asked if she felt that the women's vote had any effect upon the ballots cast for Senator Wadsworth, Mrs. Livermore promptly replied:

"No, the figures seem to show that the efforts of the women who were opposed to Wadsworth had absolutely no effect upon the result. The result of the Senatorial election in this State would indicate that the great majority of the women voters are beginning to understand the importance of party politics, and it shows, furthermore, that a group attacking from the outside cannot seriously handicap the group of regular party workers on the inside."

Former Senator John A. Weeks of Massachusetts and National Committeeman from that State was present during most of the evening. In a brief statement Senator Weeks said that Harding had clearly carried Massachusetts by 350,000, and that never before had a Presidential candidate ever carried the State by more than 125,000.

"Boston has given Harding 25,000 majority," said Senator Weeks. "We also claim Kentucky, and Senator Ernst is surely elected from that State. Returns show that Louisville has gone Republican by 14,000. Harding has carried Connecticut by 75,000 and Senator Brandegee by 50,000. We also claim Indiana, and Senator Watson in that State is running very close to the Harding vote. Allen County, Ind., a normal Democratic county, has gone for Harding by 5,000."

In the large room on the third floor where the returns were read out to the general public, there was applause when a telegram was read from National Committeeman Jake L. Hamon of Oklahoma saying that indications pointed to a Harding majority there of at least 15,000. The returns were publicly announced in two large rooms and there was a large attendance.

COOLIDGE, HAPPY, LAUDS HARDING

Says Conduct of President-Elect in Campaign Has Been Magnificent.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 2.—Governor Coolidge issued the following statement, after waiting until there was no question as to the result:

"It is with a great deal of gratitude that I have seen by the incoming returns the extent of the victory and have realized its source. While I rejoice in its great proportions, I rejoice even more in the nature of the support we have received. It means the end of a period which has seemed to substitute words for things, and the beginning of a period of real patriotism and true national honor.

"It means a return to the Constitution, an end to extravagance, and a Government by the people at home. Abroad it means the end of all ambiguous and visionary schemes and the beginning of a recognition of the real and true world relationship, whether based on the proposed League or some new agreement is immaterial, by which there may be conference among nations, and development of law, which are the sole avenues to an abiding peace.

"This has been the Republican policy, voiced by its record, its platform, its candidate and now indorsed by the people. I believe there will be a return to industrial progress. The great confidence in the leadership exhibited by Senator Harding, which has been steadily increasing, has been shown to be warranted by the result of the election and will be further justified by his administration. I cannot commend too much his conduct in this campaign. It has been magnificent.

"I am deeply appreciative of the vote of Massachusetts. It is needless to say I offer my thanks to all who have contributed to the great result, the national, the State, the local committees of men and women. To the women of the nation is due a new debt of gratitude. And finally, I want to express my appreciation of the great courtesy the press of both parties has extended to me. The issue was above parties. The victory cannot be designated by any other word than American."

Mrs. Coolidge received the returns with the Governor and also issued a statement in which she said:

"This has been my first experience in taking part in elections. I am greatly gratified at the result. I know Senator Harding is a great campaigner because he is a man of such fine, true character. That stands out in all his speeches. I am sure he will make a great President. But I am equally sure from the reports of the people who have had the good fortune to visit Marion that the impression Mrs. Harding has made on her guests has spread all over the country and made the people certain that they wanted her to be the first lady of the land.

"The women of Massachusetts under the leadership of Mrs. Bird gave our cause wonderful support. I am very thankful for the result to all who have helped—to our women especially."

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 2.—Governor Coolidge, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, voted with Mrs. Coolidge here shortly after 9 o'clock this morning and then left by automobile for the Republican Headquarters in the Hotel Touraine in Boston.

The Governor's day opened with an informal flag raising at his home conducted by his two small sons. The boys hoisted the colors on a pole set up on the lawn in front of the house, while the Governor and Mrs. Coolidge and a gathering of neighbors and children on their way to school looked on and cheered.

The voting place for four of the city wards is in the auditorium of the City Hall, and Ward 2, in which the Governor lives, is one of these. He was driven in his car with Mrs. Coolidge and their housekeeper, Mrs. Bertha Reckahn, to the polling place, where a warm greeting from his fellow townsmen awaited him. The Governor deposited his ballot at 9:19 and Mrs. Coolidge voted a few minutes later. After that they held an informal reception, many of the women voters meeting the Governor for the first time.

Governor Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge sent a telegram of congratulation addressed to Senator Harding. It said:

"Accept our congratulations on your efficient leadership and surpassing victory. It outclasses every expectation. We are sure that you will more than fulfill the confidence the American people have placed in you."

TUMULTY ADMITS DEFEAT.

But Recalls Wilson's Remark That "Cause Some Day Will Win."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Joseph P. Tumulty, private secretary to the President, conceded the election of Senator Harding before he left the White House for his home tonight.

"I was privileged to be associated with President Wilson in all of his triumphs," said Mr. Tumulty. "I rejoice that it is permitted to me, an humble private in the ranks, to be connected with him in this hour of Democratic defeat. I am reminded of what the President once said:

"'I would rather be defeated in a cause that some day will triumph, than triumph in a cause that some day will be defeated."

Cox's Precinct Votes for Harding.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 2.—Carrmonte, the precinct where Governor Cox cast his vote today, is reported to have given a plurality of 12 votes to Senator Harding. The vote in Montgomery County promises to be very close. Cox is still leading on latest returns by a small margin.

HARDING PLEASED, BUT NOT EXULTANT

With Assurance of Election, He Says He Feels "More Given to Prayer."

SEES SOLEMN OBLIGATIONS

Declares the Result Is Not a Personal Victory, but a Call to Republicans to Duty.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 2.—Convinced by early returns of his election to the Presidency, Warren G. Harding issued a statement tonight saying that instead of being exultant over the result he was "more given to prayer to God to make me capable of playing my part."

Receiving the election returns at his home here, Mr. Harding issued his statement only after the figures had piled up majorities for him which his advisers declared made his election certain. The Senator's statement follows:

"Assuming that the early returns are wholly dependable, I do not hesitate to say that I am pleased, of course, I am happy to utter my gratitude. But I am not exultant. It is not a personal victory. It is a renewed expression of confident Americanism and a national call to the Republican Party.

"It is all so serious, the obligations are so solemn that instead of exulting I am more given to prayer to God to make me capable of playing my part, and that all these calls to responsibility may meet the aspirations and expectations of America and the world.

"I am sure the people who have voted the Republican ticket will understand my feeling that I should make no unstudied statement of policies at this time, beyond the expression made throughout the campaign."

Coincidently with the Senator's statement, Harry M. Daugherty, a member of the Republican Campaign Committee, made this statement here:

"It is the greatest victory in American politics clearly foreshadowed and predicted. It is more than a partisan victory, as the result was contributed to by millions of Democrats. The women of the nation have quickly vindicated the conferring of the suffrage privilege as they sensed correctly the issues and rallied to the cause of America and American institutions. The Republican Party is fully conscious of the great responsibilities implied in this popular verdict and will faithfully keep its obligations."

COX'S PAPER GIVES UP.

His Newspaper Issues Edition at 11 P. M., Reporting Harding Elected.

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 2.—Governor Cox's newspaper, The Dayton News, issued an extra edition shortly before 11 o'clock tonight, conceding the election of Senator Harding as President, under the caption: "Republican Landslide; Harding Wins."

Announcement that the extra would be issued, was made at the Governor's office at 10:15 o'clock, and soon afterward word came from New York that Chairman White also had conceded Senator Harding's election. At that time the Governor was in his private office at his newspaper plant, where he spent the evening with members of his family, watching the returns.

Reporters who called, found the Governor smiling, and smoking a cigar. He showed no emotion, an attitude he had maintained throughout the evening, following a day spent quietly at his home near here. Friends who visited him during the evening said the candidate realized his defeat long before the appearance of his newspaper extra. Mrs. Cox also seemed unaffected, as did the Governor's daughter, Mrs. C. H. Mahoney.

Apparently the most consoling news of the evening for the candidate was contained in unofficial returns, showing in 33 of the 265 precincts in Montgomery County, including Dayton, that Governor Cox led his opponent, 5,218 vote to 5,000. The County Democratic Headquarters, however, reported that Harding carried Carmonte, the Governor's own precinct, by 12 votes.

Governor Cox himself did not formally concede his defeat, regardless of the statements made in his newspaper. He said:

"I will make no statement tonight, and whatever my paper says is purely impersonal."

CONGRESS LOST TOO, WHITE CONCEDES

Sends Congratulations to Harding, Coolidge and Chairman Hays.

At eleven o'clock George White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee conceded the election of Senator Harding, Governor Coolidge and the Republican Congress. Chairman White followed with this statement:

"The abandonment by some of the most prominent Republican leaders of the very League of Nations which they helped to construct has been successful. The people have succumbed to the confusion wrought by these distinguished men and to the misrepresentation of those who would not and did not understand the League of Nations. I hope it may yet be rescued from the political morass and be saved to mankind.

"No one has any occasion for bitterness or recrimination. What the whole people decide the whole people must accept. The Democratic National Committee abides by the result cheerfully, if with foreboding. Senator Harding is the people's President.

"In this election Republican propaganda has been shrewdly directed to induce the descendants of six European nations to vote as six European nations, instead of as one American nation. They have inveigled these Americans to vote with their thoughts across the sea instead of on this country. Our common task must be to coalesce these groups again.

"The fate of Irish freedom has been settled adversely. Men and women of Irish blood have voted for the candidate who has declared the Irish question to be a domestic problem of Great Britain, in which we can have no official concern. With their support the American people have returned the Irish problem to Downing Street. They have indorsed, I am sad to say, a separate peace with Germany.

"For the first time in eight years the Republican Party is face to face with the task of constructive legislation, and, more than that, the measures of reconstruction for which the country has been asking a Republican Congress for two years in vain. They must change a negative record into a positive, and in this task they have the best wishes of all who love their country.

"As the National Chairman of a party which is and has always been for America first, I have sent messages of congratulation to Senator Harding, Governor Coolidge and Mr. Hays. I wish them success."

The Democratic National Chairman telegraphed to Senator Harding:

"The American people have overwhelmingly chosen you."

To Governor Coolidge, he said:

"You are the overwhelming choice of the people for Vice-President."

He also congratulated Will. H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee on his leadership.

The telegrams in full read:

"Will H. Hays,

"Chairman Republican National Committee, New York.

"Congratulations to you on the leadership of a most successful national contest.

"GEORGE WHITE."

"Warren G. Harding,

"Marion, Ohio.

"The American people have overwhelmingly chosen you. My heartiest congratulations and best wishes for successful leadership of this great nation in its critical hour.

"GEORGE WHITE."

"Governor Calvin Coolidge,

"Northampton, Mass.

"You are the overwhelming choice of the people for Vice-President. Please accept my cordial congratulations and good wishes.

"GEORGE WHITE."

James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany and Chairman of the General Finance Committee of the Democratic Committee, last night said:

"Senator Harding's election is no surprise to me. The result has been in evidence for several weeks. We certainly have a fine American for our next President, and, regardless of political faith, we will all put our shoulders to the wheel, to help support the nation's choice. Whether or not, the nation's choice is my choice as well as yours, and it is with pleasure we will greet him as America's foremost man."

Christensen Votes in Salt Lake.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 2.—For the first time in the history of Utah a Presidential candidate, Parley P. Christensen of Salt Lake, running on the Farmer-Labor ticket, cast his ballot here late today. Closing his campaign with an address here last night, Mr. Christensen spent today at home here with his aged mother, who is blind.

to the President, was at the White House and received news of the election in company with Francis P. Garvin, Assistant Attorney General, and Timothy T. Ansberry, former Representative in Congress.

President Wilson appeared this afternoon at a Cabinet meeting, where he expressed confidence that Governor Cox would be elected. The President took the ground, as he has all along, that the country was in favor of the League of Nations and would show its preference at the polls.

The Cabinet members present at the meeting this afternoon, included Secretaries Baker, Burleson, Payne, Meredith, Wilson, Houston and Under Secretary of State Davis, representing Secretary Colby, who is in New York. Secretary Alexander, Secretary Daniels and Attorney General Palmer are all out of the city.

Practically every Senator and member of the House of Representatives is now away from Washington, as are other politicians of note. Republican and Democratic headquarters were dreary spots, compared to the hives of activity in New York and Chicago. Still the election means much to Washington, as this city's heart is purely Governmental and great crowds sought bulletin boards, newspaper offices and all other sources of information. A forbidding gray sky this afternoon lived true to his promise, and tonight a cold rain fell, dampening, to an extent, the ardor of the crowds in the streets.

The Diplomatic Corps betrayed an unusual interest in the election, inasmuch as the fate of the League was involved. The representatives here of the various foreign Governments have been keeping in close touch with the developments of the campaign. While they have been refraining carefully from saying anything of a partisan character, or participating in any way in any phase of the campaign, they have been eager seekers after information from whatever sources available as to the trend of events.

HARDING TO VISIT TEXAS AND PANAMA

DEFERS CHOICE OF CABINET

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 2.—Senator Harding will not begin consideration of Cabinet and other important Presidential appointments until he returns to Marion, early in December, after a month's vacation in Texas and Panama.

Upon good authority it is learned that Senator Harding has made no definite Cabinet slate. Intent upon his Presidential campaign and preparation of political addresses outlining the policies he would pursue as President, he has put off appointment problems until after election, when he can go into the matter at leisure in the interim between his vacation and inauguration.

With a small party of friends, Senator and Mrs. Harding will leave Marion on Friday night or Saturday morning for Point Isabel, Texas, for a two weeks' rest. There they will be the guests of F. E. Scobey, former Clerk of the Ohio Assembly, twenty years a resident of Texas and a close friend of the Hardings, and R. B. Creager, a banker and business man of San Antonio.

Point Isabel, twenty miles from Brownsville, is a small settlement along the Gulf of Mexico, with a population of about 100 Americans and 150 Mexicans. Here the Senator will have opportunity for golf, tarpon fishing and hunting, with the advantage of being almost isolated from the outside world and its worries of besieging would-be office holders.

Senator Harding plans leaving Galveston or New Orleans on Nov. 20 for a few days' visit to Panama and inspection of the canal. Having made part of his campaign on problems, foreign and domestic, raised by the Panama Canal, Senator Harding plans combining a pleasure trip with familiarizing himself first hand with conditions on the isthmus.

Senator Harding will return to the United States in time to make an address on Dec. 5 at an Elks' home at Bedford, Virginia. He will then go to Marion to consider Cabinet appointments. While the Republicans have but a bare majority in the present Senate, the President-elect does not intend spending any more time than necessary in Washington before his inauguration. In his pre-convention campaign he was able to remain away from the Senate by pairing with Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama, and arrangements will be made for a like pairing of Senator Pomerene with a Democratic Senator during the Senate session beginning the first of December to take up matters that will concern him as President.

Accompanying Senator and Mrs. Harding to Texas will be Senators Elkins of West Virginia, Frelinghuysen of New Jersey and Hale of Maine. No political significance is attached to their presence with the Harding vacation party, as Senator Harding explained that they are "good friends and neighbors" who usually make up a golf foursome together in Washington over the Chevy Chase links. They intend to continue their golf contests in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean of Washington will be among other members of the Harding party, as well as Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Sawyer of Marion. Dr. Sawyer has been the physician of both Senator and Mrs. Harding, and together with Mrs. Sawyer he accompanied the Senator on his speaking tours during the campaign.

George B. Christian, Jr., the Senator's secretary; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jennings of Columbus, James Sloan, the Senator's bodyguard during the campaign; Secret Service men, a small office force and a dozen newspaper correspondents will accompany the party.

The Senator will travel in a special train which will be made up of a Pullman private car for the Hardings, two compartment cars, a diner and a baggage car. The route to Point Isabel from Marion will be through St. Louis, San Antonio and Brownsville. Leaving Marion on Friday night or Saturday morning, the schedule calls for arrival at Point Isabel on Monday.

Talk of Battleship for Panama Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—In the absence of Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, it could not be ascertained tonight whether, in the event of his election, a battleship would be provided to take Senator Harding on a trip to Panama.

Cabinet members and other officials would not discuss the idea, which Senator Harding's friends have suggested, and which, it is said here, the Senator does not approve. It was learned, however, that some officials take the ground that there would be no impropriety in allowing Senator Harding to travel on a battleship if he were elected. These officials take the position that Mr. Harding would be entitled to the privilege, whether a President-elect or merely a Senator. The point is made that the Panama Canal is an extremely important work, and that a President-elect would do well to acquaint himself with its physical and strategic value before he took office. There is little question that the canal will play a great part in world affairs in the next decade, perhaps a more important part than is now generally believed.

One man who is popularly supposed to be in more or less close touch with the Administration said privately tonight that while he was personally opposed to allowing Senator Harding to have the privilege of a battleship before he should be inaugurated, he considered it would be "poor politics" to refuse the request. It would put the Democratic Party and the Administration in a poor light, he asserted.

The fact that Senator Harding expects to spend his vacation at Point Isabel, Texas, aroused great interest here. At this tiny village, where there is a Government wireless station, only a few miles from Brownsville, and consequently almost in Mexico, Senator Harding, it was said here, would have an opportunity to familiarize himself with the problems of Americans living along the Mexican border.

It was in the territory near Brownsville that many raids by Mexicans across the Rio Grande led to troops being rushed to the border in 1916.

Men coming here from Marion last night declared it was Senator Harding's intention, if elected, to retain his seat in the Senate, especially if there was a narrow Republican margin. It was added that if Harry L. Davis was elcted Governor of Ohio, Senator Harding would resign his seat on Jan. 1, when Davis took office in Ohio, the idea being that Davis would at that time appoint Frank B. Willis as Senator to fill out Senator Harding's unexpired term. Fear that if he resigned before Jan. 1 Governor Cox would appoint a Democrat to succeed him was one reason why Mr. Harding had decided to keep his seat, it was asserted.

MILLER WINS BY 57,000

opponent, Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker.

Senator Wadsworth's estimated plurality in the entire State over that of Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker, his Democratic opponent, is 471,000. Up-State, Senator Wadsworth received a plurality of 402,000, while in the city he beat his opponent by 69,000. This estimate takes into account the missing districts both up-State and in the city.

The enormous vote polled by Governor Smith staggered both the Republican and Democratic leaders, in view of the landslide proportions of the Harding vote. The returns from up-State showed that the Governor ran far better in that section than he did two years ago when he defeated Governor Whitman by approximately 15,000 plurality. Smith ran well both in Republican and Democratic counties, but his large vote in New York City saved him from annihilation.

At midnight the Governor would make no claim, preferring, he said, to wait until he received more definite information from Republican counties. George H. Glynn, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, said "it looks like Miller." He said Miller would carry all districts outside of New York City by an average of 75 votes to the election district, making a total majority for Miller of about 343,000, exclusive of New York City. Glynn said Senator Wadsworth would be re-elected by 500,000 majority. Secretary Gleason of the Republican Committee said Miller would carry the State by 60,000. Democratic leaders declared that Miller's plurality upstate would be about 275,000 and that Governor Smith would meet this with a city plurality of 315,000, giving the Governor a plurality of about 40,000.

In every country ex-Judge Miller ran far behind Senator Harding.

Governor Smith, like Senator Harding, carried every borough in the city. As an indication how the vote changed from Harding to Smith, the vote in the Second Election District of the Twelfth Assembly District, which is the district of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, was cited. Harding carried the district, but Governor Smith received 254 votes to 88 for Miller.

Charges were made that Tammany "traded" Cox votes for votes for Smith, but this was denied by Tammany leaders.

Chairman George A. Glynn of the Republican State Committee claimed the election of Nathan L. Miller by a plurality of from 67,000 to 75,000. Mr. Glynn read the returns during the evening to a small but enthusiastic delegation of Republicans, among whom were many women, at the headquarters, 43 West Thirty-ninth Street. From the earliest returns, there was no doubt about Harding, but the big vote polled by Smith in the city gave some apprehension regarding the Republican way for the head of the ticket. Later returns from upstate were more cheerful.

"All I can say," said Mr. Glynn, "is that Miller is surely elected, probably by 75,000 and the remainder of the ticket at much higher pluralities." Before midnight most of the visitors were so completely satisfied with the results that they left the headquarters to Mr. Glynn and a few other officials who remained to receive later returns.

Mr. Glynn aroused a cheer when he asked for careful attention as he read the returns from Schoraric County, "practically the only Democratic county in the State," he added. The figures gave Harding the county by 1,800 and Miller running close to him.

"Every return from up-State confirms our conviction that Governor Smith has been elected," said Thomas F. Smith, secretary of Tammany Hall. "The Governor is running dangerously close to Judge Miller outside of New York City, and here we know he will get a big majority."

Compilations made by the Republican State Committee gave Miller the following pluralities over those received by Whitman two years ago: Buffalo, 15,000; Syracuse, 8,000; Poughkeepsie, 1,400; Rome, 900; White Palins, 800, and Hudson, 500.

Republican leaders assert that rainy weather in some parts of the State kept back the full Republican vote. This, they said, was true in the Southern tier of counties. Word was received at the Smith headquarters that the Governor had carried Judge Miller's own ward in Syracuse by 242 votes. The Governor ran particularly well in the cities up-State. In every city and county Judge Miller ran behind Senator Harding. In Westchester County he was at least 27,000 behind.

There was a big deflection of Harding votes to Smith, as Mr. Miller's majority in Westchester was only about 15,000. Governor Smith carried three towns in Westchester, Harrison, Somers and Yonkers, the latter giving him a majority of 787 over Miller.

In every county the women came out in large numbers, many of them getting to the polls early.

At the headquarters of Governor Smith, in the Biltmore, the Governor declined to make any predictions. Mayor Hylan, at Smith's headquarters, estimated that the Governor would win by a plurality of 12,000.

From the time that Joseph Murphy, Democratic leader at Troy, had telephoned that Governor Smith had carried that city by a plurality of 3,625, leading Senator Harding by 2,293, the enthusiasm increased until some of the zealous supporters began to congratulate Governor Smith. He waived them aside with the remark that it would be better to wait until more representative and general returns were in.

The most cheerful news of the night came from Oliver Street, Smith's home district. A leader of the election district in which Smith voted telephoned this message:

SETTLED EARLY IN BROOKLYN.

Democratic Leaders Go Home, McCooey Voicing Admiration of Smith.

Democratic headquarters in Brooklyn closed at 11 o'clock last night. The returns received up to that time indicated no hope for the Democratic ticket. John H. McCooey, Democratic leader, would make no formal statement outside of saying that Governor Smith made a remarkable and phenomenal run, which had no parallel in politics.

Jacob A. Livingston, Republican leader, said he was not surprised at the Republican victory. He claimed the election of six of the eight Congressmen from Kings, and six of the eight State Senators.

It was said that Federal Judge Edwin L. Garvin, one of the Democratic candidates for Supreme Court, might be elected. He was leading the other candidates on the Democratic ticket and might squeeze in. It was conceded that Justices Aspinall, Dike and Jaycox were elected, and it was hoped that Congressman John MacCrate, Republican, would nose out some of the other candidates.

REED VOTES FOR COX.

Missouri Senator Casts a Straight Democratic Ballot.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 2.—Senator James A. Reed cast a straight Democratic ballot and possibly came as near voting for the League of Nations as he ever will when he voted this morning.

The few moments Senator Reed spent in the election booth were dramatic. Judges and clerks of election forgot all about other voters as the Senator took his ballot, stepped to the booth, marked his Constitutional amendment and courthouse bond ballots, folded his discards and stepped out.

"Here it is, look it over," said the Senator with a smile as he displayed to the gaze of the election officials a straight Democratic ballot.

The Senator then folded his ballot and watched it dropped into the box.

His vote, therefore, will be counted for all the Missouri Cox Electors and Breckenridge Long, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, who has made him campaign on an out-and-out Wilson League issue.

TAMMANY CLAIMS VICTORY FOR SMITH

Landslide for Republican National Ticket Conceded in Formal Statement.

COX'S DEFEAT REGRETTABLE

Governor Refuses to Make Prediction, but Crowds Cheer Him at the Wigwam.

Victory for Governor Smith was claimed by Charles F. Murphy and other Tammany Hall leaders on the basis of returns received up to midnight. In a formal statement they conceded that a wildfire of votes had swept the State and city for the Republican national ticket. Tammany leaders asserted that both Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan joined them in the contention that Al Smith would return to the Governor's mansion in Albany.

Calling upon the nation to forget political strife and uphold the new Administration, Mr. Murphy issued this formal statement:

"Governor Cox has made a vigorous and dignified campaign. His defeat would be regrettable. However, the people have cast their votes for the candidate of their choice. The agitation of the campaign should now be forgotten. We must concentrate our thoughts on the welfare of the country irrespective of party. We must stand behind our new President and help him to promote our country's happiness and repose."

Despite the unfavorable news of the national election early in the evening and the possibility of a defeat for Governor Smith, there was little evidence of depression around the Fourteenth Street Wigwam. Although they would not admit it to persons not in the councils of Tammany, the leaders apparently saw from the first returns that it was not a Democratic election and they saw hope that the personal popularity of Al Smith might pull victory out of a close race.

Governor Smith arrived at Tammany Hall from his headquarters in the Hotel Biltmore about 9 o'clock in the evening and was greeted at the door of the Wigwam by hundreds of his political supporters and admirers, whose only interest in the election after the first returns seemed to be in the contest for the Governorship in this State. It was several minutes before the Governor was able to press his way through his throng into the building, and on his way through he had shaken hundreds of hands.

"Congratulations, Governor," shouted one man in the rear of the crowd. "We think you're elected."

Governor Smith replied that he would not comment on the early returns because he did not think they were sufficient to justify a prediction of victory. He joked with some of his supporters and then went into conference with Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, Mayor Hylan, and Representative Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany.

There was cheering among the hundreds gathered in the hall to hear the returns when it was announced that Governor Smith had polled more votes in Judge Miller's home ward in Syracuse than Miller himself, and there was laughter when a man shouted:

"They know Al like we do."

Mayor Hylan also arrived early at the hall and went into conference with Leader Murphy and Governor Smith. He expressed the hope that Governor Smith would pull Democratic victory out of Republican wildfire. The Mayor was cheered as he entered the Wigwam, and his smile was visible through smoke from hundreds of cigars.

New York Newspapers Comment on the Election

THE TRIBUNE.

The New York Tribune this morning says:

"The reasons for the overwhelming election of Senator Harding and Governor Coolidge are plain even to the dullest.

"The country was weary of Wilsonism in all its manifestations. It liked as little a foreign policy which introduced discord among our allies as it did a domestic policy which has brought the country to serious adversity. It was tired of parlor Bolshevism in high places, and likewise of a pretended pacifism whose proposals are practically always in the interest of poor Germany. It would have no more of arraying class against class, and asked for an Administration intelligent enough to realize that only by accelerating production is the cost of living to be reduced. Extravagance, incompetence, narrowness at Washington—all these and many others were in the minds of voters as they marked their ballots.

"But, happily, it is now possible to dismiss the past. Now the call is to look forward. Senator Harding has a great opportunity. Will he make the most of it? Will he be able to re-establish our world relations as they existed two years ago? Will he be able to harmonize our domestic affairs?

"His duty is double—is abroad and at home. Will he prove himself a genuine and practical lover of peace and a true progressive in all that relates to enhancing the individual lives of our people?

"Senator Harding has steadily grown in public estimation since his nomination. He has shown reserve power in avoiding the making of vote-getting promises. This is a good omen. The misrepresentations from which he has suffered lie broken at his feet. May he wisely determine to forget them and to remember only the responsibilities of his mighty position.

"The aspiration of every true American is for Senator Harding's complete success, just as a similar aspiration gave godspeed to President Wilson eight years ago. The victory is nominally a party one, but in its larger aspects it is national. Party lines were broken and Senator Harding's allegiance properly runs to the whole people. They will be quick to recognize and honor real service."

THE HERALD.

The New York Herald, in an editorial signed by Frank A. Munsey, says:

"Harding and Coolidge are elected. They have been swept into office by an avalanche. No such plurality has ever been given to a candidate for President and a candidate for Vice-President.

"On the surface this would seem to mean that Harding and Coolidge carry further with the people in respect of personal popularity or in the nation-wide confidence reposed in them than the candidates of any previous national election.

"Such a conclusion would not be sound. Political avalanches that crush everything before them spring from quite another source. They do not come at the call of personal popularity. They are the expression of an embittered people, the protest of an outraged nation.

"Wilson autocracy, impudent, intolerant, dictatorial, and Democratic inefficiency, extravagance, wastefulness, are the source of the 1920 avalanche. The people of this democratic country have had all they could stand or would stand of Czarism. And the people have had all they could stand or would stand of the Democratic Party management of their affairs—a management that has well nigh bankrupted the Treasury in spite of the fact that it is squeezing the life blood out of the people in taxation.

"Hence this election in its big bearings is a nationwide protest against a continuance of Democratic rule. The American people have had their fill of it for many weary, dreary months and have bided their time, chafing bitterly meanwhile, till the day should come for them to speak through the ballot, and they have now spoken.

"The lesson of the Wilson Administration, rejected by the American people in stinging disgrace, because of its intolerant individualism and utter business incapacity, is a lesson to the incoming Administration.

"Not that Senator Harding needs such admonition in the matter of individualism. In this respect he is the exact opposite of Mr. Wilson. Senator Harding is no Czar. The country need have no fear of a repetition of Wilsonism with him in the White House.

"But where this admonition may very properly be heeded by the incoming Administration is in the matter of its general efficiency in the handling of the nation's affairs. America has grown to be a great nation, in many respects the greatest in the world. Its business is so vast, its internal and foreign affairs are so complex and so far reaching that only the very best men of the country have the capacity to man its manifold jobs successfully.

"The price of victory is good service.

"In no other way can a President of these United States repay the people of the nation for the confidence they have in him in electing him to the first office in the land, in electing him to one of the most exalted posts in all the world.

"Senator Harding's place in history will rest with the men he calls to the service of his Administration. If they have youth, clear heads, genius for their jobs, honesty, loyalty and the realization that the Government expects and demands of them the best there is in them, his Administration will handle the business of the Government better than it has ever been handled before.

"Fortunately Senator Harding comes into the Presidency a free man. His Administration is not mortgaged to politicians, to financiers or to aspirants for official honors.

"This national Government of ours has no jobs for political hacks or political pensioners. This national Government of ours has no jobs that may be checked out as rewards for political services. This national Government of ours recognizes no such obligation to any man or to any woman or to any political party.

"The President who checks out Government jobs to pay personal obligations isn't checking from his own bank account.

"'To the victors belong the spoils' is a doctrine that has no place in this enlightened day.

"FRANK A. MUNSEY."

THE WORLD.

The World in part says:

"The American people wanted a change, and they have voted for a change.

"They did not know what kind of change they wanted, and they do not know today what kind of change they have voted for. All of the restlessness and discontent bred of the war has finally found expression in the ballot box, and the result is Warren G. Harding.

"What is certain is that the country has returned for a time to reaction, in the naive belief that Republican politics can cure all the economic evils that were produced by a war in which 10,000,000 lives have been lost and $300,000,000,000 in property destroyed.

"As to Mr. Harding himself, The World can only wish him well. He is confronted at best with a task that is impossible in its entirety, since no President that ever lived could redeem the campaign pledges that have been made in his behalf, some of them by himself. It is easy to abuse Woodrow Wilson, but to succeed Woodrow Wilson in the White House is a man's job, and Mr. Harding will not have the aid either of a united party or of those dominant qualities that can batter down opposition. He will have to go with a tide that runs erratically and treacherously, and the very voters that have put him into the Presidency to do the impossible will be ready to destroy him at the first sign of failure.

"As to the League of Nations, none of its true supporters will falter on account of Mr. Harding's majorities. Appealing from Philip drunk to Philip sober, they will keep their faith steadfast and unswerving. Every reason that existed yesterday in favor of the ratification of the covenant exists today. None of the elementary facts have been changed by the ballots that were cast for Mr. Harding.

"The time has now come when Republicans like Mr. Taft and Mr. Root and Mr. Hoover and Mr. Straus must redeem their own pledges. They have said to the voters that Mr. Harding's speeches against the League could all be ignored and that his election would mean that the United States would join the other nations in guaranteeing the peace of the world. The duty of fulfilment rests with them. Hundreds of thousands of the friends of the League voted for Mr. Harding in the belief that Mr. Taft and his associates had told them the truth. The record is made and the obligation must be redeemed, or they too will have been convicted of defrauding both the living and the dead."

MISS MILLS UNDISCOURAGED

Her Candidacy a Help to Women's Movement, She Says.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, Nov. 2.—With the outcome of her candidacy still in doubt, Miss Harriet May Mills, at midnight tonight, issued the following statement:

"No matter if I have won or lost I feel that I have advanced the women's movement many years. If I have lost, I express my determination to live to fight again another day. I am not discouraged. I have stood for everything progressive and right which will eventually triumph."

HARDING PROMISES FAIRNESS TO ALL

SPENDS STIRRING BIRTHDAY

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 2.—Fifty-five little pink candles thrust into a frosted white cake lighted Senator Harding's table at dinner tonight just before the election returns began to flood his campaign headquarters. It was his fifty-fifth birthday.

The Senator returned cold and hungry from a golfing expedition to Columbus, forty miles away, to find this little surprise. After dinner the Senator withdrew to his library to wait for whatever birthday present the American people had decided to give him.

A score of employes of The Marion Daily Star, Senator Harding's paper, called on him as he was finishing his dinner and presented to him a printer's rule made of gold. Leaving the table, the Senator, with Mrs. Harding, went out on his front porch to greet the callers.

"Fellow members of The Star"—he began and choked. He tried to speak again but his eyes became dim and his voice clogged. Finally, with tears rolling down his cheeks and with bowed head, he said:

"You and I have been associated together for many years. I know you, and you know I wouldn't cheat you. I am coming into a position of very great responsibilities if the present returns are interpreted correctly. I don't know whether I can meet them adequately. I know one thing, I can meet them with the same justice and fairness as in the dealings which I have had with you."

Turning to a spectacled, white bearded man standing in the front of the group, he said:

"There is my old friend Miller, the oldest employe on The Star. Thirty years we've been together. Sometimes the road was thorny. Sometimes I have known him to draw his pay when I had to borrow it from my mother. There were other times when I had to borrow Miller's pay back from him in the morning.

"I am just a plain fellow, but if I've been on the square with you, I wouldn't cheat you now. I am going to be on the square with everybody. Somehow this has touched me."

Senator Harding broke off again and his voice shook. There were signs of weeping from most of the employes gathered around him. "Thank you for your call," he said, looking up once more. "Tomorrow or Thursday I hope to have the time to come down to The Star and greet you all again."

Happy Group Receives Returns.

Bulletins of the election returns began to arrive at the Harding home early, and throughout the evening messengers were bringing them in every few moments. Senator Harding and his guests took turns in reading them to the gathering, which at an early hour crowded the home as friends pressed in to offer their congratulations.

Senator Harding during the early part of the evening steadfastly refused to make any statement about the election results that would assume that the result was settled.

The gathering at the Harding home was an animated and happy one. Mrs. Harding, with Mrs. Heber Votch, the Senator's sister, stood in the parlor talking with guests while the more general election returns indicating State majorities were brought in and read to them. Dr. George T. Harding, the Senator's father, was probably one of the most beaming of the group. June 11, the date of Senator Harding's nomination, was Dr. Harding's seventy-sixth birthday, and today the Senator was elected President on his fifty-fifth birthday.

Senator Harding sat in a mission oak rocking chair in his library, one foot resting on his knee, smoking a cigar, as he glanced over the returns and talked to members of his campaign headquarters staff.

From the viewpoint of Senator and Mrs. Harding, one of the particularly gratifying features of the returns was the announcement of the results in Precinct C of Ward 4, the Senator's precinct, which gave Harding 393 votes and Cox 76.

Bulletins from the press headquarters in the Harding back yard were manifolded and sent to the Senator's home and to his campaign headquarters. These latter headquarters, a two-story frame house next door, were crowded with Marion friends of the Senator, who hesitated to disturb him and listened to the reading of the returns in one of the offices.

The bulletin boards of Marion's two newspapers were surrounded by groups of people, who let out whoops of delight at each new return rolling up the Harding vote.

The latest returns were read in the Marion Club, where many of Senator Harding's friends and business associates in the various Marion enterprises of which he is a Director, had gathered. There was no organized celebration in front of the Senator's home. That has been postponed until Thursday.

Officers of the Marion Civic Association, which has entertained visiting delegations during the front porch campaign, announced tonight that Marionites would join with delegations from other Ohio cities in celebrating the Harding victory Thursday night, when a parade will leave the business part of the city for the Harding home. Senator and Mrs. Harding will be greeted on their front porch. The Senator is expected to speak briefly in acknowledgement of the loyalty and enthusiasm that his friends and neighbors have shown.

Refuses Preference in Voting Line.

Half the neighborhood was waiting inside and outside the private garage which served as a polling place in the Harding precinct to greet Senator and Mrs. Harding when they arrived to cast their votes in the morning. Voters in line stood aside, but the Hardings refused to have places yielded for them and remained behind eight women and two men. Mrs. Harding stood in front of her husband. Next to the Senator in line were George B. Christian, Jr., his secretary and Frank Blackstein, his chauffeur.

As the line moved slowly forward, motion picture lights spluttered and photographers adjusted their cameras, a tall ex-policeman in overalls in front of Mrs. Harding received his ballot and stalked into a booth. The Hardings had then been in line fifteen minutes.

"Florence Kling Harding," called out Election Clerk J. F. Dombaugh, brother-in-law of the Senator's secretary.

"Goodness! Do I have to fill out all these?" exclaimed Mrs. Harding as she took the sheaf of regular and special ballots provided by the Ohio election laws.

Senator Patient with Movie Men.

"Warren G. Harding," Mr. Dombaugh announced.

"More or less notorious," said the Senator dryly, while the movie men turned their cranks.

Mrs. Harding received ballot 303 and the Senator 304. At 10:24 o'clock Mrs. Harding cast her ballot, but pictorial delays prevented the Senator from voting until 10:29. Senator Harding, wearing a heavy Winter overcoat, filled completely his little voting booth and marked his ballot in a few seconds.

As he stood handing his ballots to Election Judge Patrick Kelly he was "shot" from all angles by motion picture and still cameras. Patiently he obeyed the wishes of the camera men.

"Hold that ballot once more, Senator," one of them said.

"All right; make an honest scenario," replied the Senator. "But I can't vote for myself more than once."

"Oh, yes, you can, you're going to vote for yourself twice," some one said, and the Senator's neighbors laughed.

Outside the polling booth, Senator and Mrs. Harding shook hands with a number of friends and then entered their automobile for a forty-mile ride to the Scioto Country Club at Columbus, where the Senator had a round of golf.

Among the voters in the Harding precinct was Mrs. Ann H. Runyon, 89 years old, who had scarcely left her house for several months.

"I wouldn't do it for any one but Warren," she said, as she handed in her ballot.

"Uncle Charlie" Patten, guardian of the press headquarters in the Harding back yard, whose other duties have been to clear the grounds of débris from front porch delegations, also cast a ballot in the precinct. He is 78 and boasts of a civil war record, which culminated in the march through Georgia to the sea, when he was one of Sherman's men. His right ear was torn by shrapnel and "trimmed" by an army surgeon. "Uncle Charlie" cast his first ballot for Lincoln in 1864, and has "voted regular" ever since.

Congratulates Coolidge and Hays.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 2 (Associated Press).—At 11 o'clock tonight Senator Harding sent the following telegram to Governor Coolidge:

"My heartiest congratulations over the great Republican victory to which your strength added so materially. You are to expect to play a full part in the coming Republican Administration. Good wishes."

To Will H. Hays, the Republican National Chairman, Senator Harding telegraphed:

"My gratitude along with congratulations on your capable and successful management of a great campaign."

GAY CROWDS THRONG LARGE HOTELS HERE

Old-Time Cocktail Is Lacking, but Enthusiasts Cheer Wildly Returns Flashed on Screen.

In spite of the rain, which set in just at the dinner hour, hotels began to fill early with enthusiastic parties, and by the time the late diners and theatre parties had arrived the gatherings began to have a marked resemblance to the old-time election crowds. Where merrymakers of four years ago celebrated in a hilarious manner, with liquor flowing everywhere, last night quite sober groups were found, but there was no lack of spontaneity. When the returns were flashed upon the screens supporters applauded quite as wildly as of old, and calls and cheers were quite as frequent. About the only thing lacking was the old-time cocktail. Everywhere were dancing, music, confetti and noise-making souvenirs.

The fact that so many of the political organizations had headquarters in the different hotels lent zest to the enthusiasm, and many of the leaders entertained their followers in private suites, where they could celebrate more exclusively. An unusual number of politicians from Washington were seen, for they had sent their ballots by post and had come to the centre of the political strife to see the conclusion of the campaign.

Governor Smith at Biltmore.

Governor and Mrs. Smith and a number of political friends heard the returns at the Biltmore. They had a private suite with special telegraph wires, and others of the Governor's supporters were in the headquarters of the Democratic Committee in another part of the hotel. The big ballroom of the Biltmore held a gay throng which attended the Tuesday Night Dinner Dance. In all the larger dining rooms there were large screens and an automatic hand wrote out the returns received by special telegraph from various part of the country. His Royal Highness, the Prince of Siam, was among the notables at the Biltmore and took a keen interest in the returns.

The Election Night ball at the Hotel Commodore brought out about 5,000 young people who danced for charity.

The Ohio Society, which had engaged most of the second floor at the Waldorf-Astoria, was the centre of the greatest activity at that hotel. More than 700 members and friends assembled to pay tribute to the victorious Ohioan, and while some of the officials of the society declared that the sentiment was impartial, the applause when the returns were thrown on the screen showed the members to be considerably more than 50 per cent. for Harding. Interspersed with the flashes of the returns was a program of motion pictures and vaudeville entertainment, and at midnight a buffet supper was served.

At both the Waldorf-Astoria and the Vanderbilt hotels the enthusiasts overflowed from the dining rooms into the lobbies where special screens had been hung. Favors and noise-making devices were provided and by midnight the noise was deafening.

The Pennsylvania closed its booking at noon yesterday, and the great numbers that applied after that time had to be turned away. E. M. Statler declared that the requests for reservations outnumbered those for any New Year's Eve celebration. The returns were given on a blackboard in the dining rooms and through megaphones. Many women politicians entertained parties, including Mrs. J. Francis Yawger, former President of the Women's Federation of Clubs, who had as her guest of honor Mrs. Harry Lilly, the present President. Special dancing floors were put in for the guests and favors were distributed.

The rain failed to put a damper on the celebration at the Park Avenue Hotel. A large screen had been hung in the garden and much misgiving was expressed when rain began, but the windows of the enclosed balcony were closed and the guests, from behind the glass, saw the returns flashed clearly upon the screen. The house guests also were able to take advantage of this, for the screen could be seen from three sides, and many gave parties in their suites. S. M. Warren of Washington arrived at the hotel yesterday with thirty-five guests. They motored up from Washington in seven automobiles, having voted in their Southern towns by mail.

Enthusiasts from widely diverging points celebrated the victory at the Astor Hotel. Jose Mesa of Paris, R. H. Bremer of Mexico, D. M. McCall of Canada and their guests gave fitting evidence of the intense interest existing outside the country. The grand ballroom of the hotel was opened for dinner and supper guests, with tables placed even in the boxes, and the Orangerie was transformed into a lounge and entrance for the ballroom. There was dancing in all the dining rooms and the returns were announced by bell boys in Colonial costume.

More members of society were seen among the parties in the Ritz Carlton, St. Regis and Plaza than ever before. This was largely because of the interest the society matrons have taken in politics, and they all came to town to cast their vote. For days these and other of the large hotels have been crowded with society folk remaining over for the festivities. At the Plaza Mr. and Mrs. Martin Littleton entertained a large party, and others entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Slayback, Mr. and Mrs. I. Townsend Burden, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Presbrey, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lorimer Worden, Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Dudley and Mr. and Mrs. C. Vanderbilt Barton.

Many elaborate dinner parties were given at the Ritz-Carlton. Among those entertaining were Lady Mortimer Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax Landstreet, Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. John H. McCullough, Percy Pyne, Stuart Duncan, C. D. H. Gilbert, Mrs. Marcus Daly and Esmond O'Brien.

LEAGUE DEAD, SAYS BORAH.

Idaho Senator Declares Election Is Triumph for Nationalism.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2. — Senator Borah, of Idaho, one of the irreconcilable opponents of the League of Nations covenant, issued a statement tonight saying:

"I regard the election as the triumph for nationalism and the death of the League of Nations."

COX SMILES GAMELY THROUGH HIS DEFEAT

Declines to Comment, Saying He Will Await Full Returns to Study Vote.

SPENDS EVENING AT OFFICE

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 2.—Governor Cox will have no statement to make tonight on the result of the election.

Governor Cox was the gamest of losers tonight. He remained in his office watching the bulletins until late and discussed them informally with his friends. The Governor and Mrs. Cox received scores of their friends and served a buffet luncheon, after which they went to their home at Trail's End about midnight.

That Ohio was lost to Governor Cox was conceded by even the most optimistic of the Democratic leaders tonight. This admission was made when it became evident that Cleveland, Toledo and Cincinnati, where Governor Cox had hoped for a heavy vote, would give a plurality for Senator Harding.

Governor Cox remained through the evening in his private offices. Outside a great crowd was cheering the bulletins which were being flashed from the News office on a screen. It was a crowd sympathetic to Governor Cox, for the loudest applause greeted bulletins which showed that the Governor was in the lead. There was a great cheer when a bulletin showed that Larue County, Kentucky, the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln and an old hunting ground of Governor Cox, had given the Governor a plurality of 500.

Among those who were with the Governor tonight as the returns came in were his sister, Mrs. John Q. Baker, and his son, "Jim," a boy of 17, who took the greatest interest in all of the returns and carried such good news as came in to his father.

Ambassador John W. Davis sent this wire: "Whatever the result, you have made a great fight and success will be deserved."

A. Mitchell Palmer sent this word: "You have made a wonderful fight and deserve to win."

The fact that Ohio apparently was lost to Governor Cox was a great blow to the Democratic leaders here. They had been depressed over the situation for some time, but had hoped until the last that the swing which apparently had started would hold the State in line. News that Senators Moses and Brandegee, treaty opponents, probably had won in New Hampshire and Connecticut added to the bad news.

Returns from Dayton and other points in Montgomery County were awaited with great interest after it seemed apparent that Governor Cox had lost the State of Ohio. The vote in the city was slow in coming in as many women had registered and the counting of the ballots was a more complicated procedure than in former elections. Late reports indicate that Dayton is safe for Governor Cox.

Governor Cox had scores of telephone calls from prominent Democrats all over the country, and he chatted with them about the results. During the day Governor Cox received a great mass of telegrams, expressing hope that the election would result in a Democratic victory. Some of them added that the senders believed that Governor Cox would be the logical Standard Bearer four years from now, regardless of the result today.

Francis J. Henry sent a wire, in which he said: "Your gallant fight has earned the right to lead again four years from now. I hereby enlist as a private for the full term of the war."

Henry M. Pindell of Peoria said: "Whatever the result, there is no doubt of the immeasurable place you have reached in the consciousness and right judgment of the American people. If you fail today you will be unanimously called in four years to lead your party. You have made a wonderful fight and deserve to win."

The early returns were distinctly unfavorable, indicating that Governor Cox had lost New York State, Massachusetts and probably most if not all of the New England States.

Governor Cox, however, did not lose his smile. He withheld comment on the returns and retired to his private office.

Fifty precincts in Montgomery County had been heard from up to midnight. They showed Cox 6,738, Harding 6,439. County Chairman Greer still maintains that Governor Cox will carry his home county by 2,000 or more. The result, however, may be very close. Governor and Mrs. Cox went to their home at Trail's End at midnight.

Governor Cox arrived in Dayton at 3 o'clock this morning and remained on his train until just before 10 o'clock, when he went to the Township of Carmonte, near his home at Trail's End, to cast his ballot. He was in fine spirits and apparently little the worse for the strain of the long campaigning trips. He felt that he had given all there was in him to the long, stern campaign in an effort to convince the people that it was the duty of the United States to enter the League of Nations.

The voting had been heavy, and Governor Cox drew ballot 233. Mrs. Cox got ballot 235. The Governor refused to accept any special privilege in the matter of voting, and stood in line awaiting his turn. It was probably fifteen minutes after he took his place before it was time for the Governor to vote, and in the meantime he joked with friends and received the good wishes of his neighbors.

The Governor borrowed a cigar from one of his friends, and when an apology was offered for its quality he replied, "That's all right. I've learned to smoke almost any brand on this tour."

Altogether, the Governor and Mrs. Cox spent about thirty minutes at the polling place and consented to have their pictures taken before they went away. They were the centre of a little group of friends and neighbors.

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 2 (Associated Press).—Governor Cox was smiling when he reached his newspaper office at 7:30 P. M., accompanied by Mrs. Cox, but he made no comment on the election. At that time the newsboys were in the street with the first extras, carrying news unfavorable to the candidate. Outside his office, a big crowd had gathered to await the record of the vote, and it greeted the Governor with a cheer. Simultaneously, a bulletin from his office showed that the Governor had carried twelve of the 265 precincts in Montgomery County, including Dayton, by 300 votes.

POLICE KEEP ORDER; FEW TAKEN AT POLLS

SOCIALISTS FILE COMPLAINT

Little disorder was reported in the city yesterday. The various election district polling places were well policed, but there was a minimum of arrests. The number of watchers at the polling booths was said to be the largest in the history of city elections. Republicans, Democrats, Socialists and the Honest Ballot Association had sets of watchers and only the Socialists complained of difficulties. They charged that the voting precincts had been redistricted to their disadvantage.

A heavy patrol of Socialist watchers was on duty in the Twenty-Second Election District of the Eighteenth Assembly District, which is now being investigated by Assistant District Attorney Kilroe because of alleged irregularities during registration week. Supreme Court Justice McAvoy recently issued an order reconvening the registration board of this district for the registration of several women alleged to have been refused permission to register. Julius Gerber, Executive Secretary of the Socialist Party in New York City, was at the head of the Socialist watchers.

No trouble was reported in the Twentieth Congressional District, where Morris Hilquit, Socialist, opposed Congressman Isaac Siegel, Fusion candidate. In the Thirty-First Precinct of the Seventeenth Assembly District complaint was made that the Socialist watchers had been thrown out. A police detail was sent and it was later announced that the watchers had been reinstated.

Charge Buying of Votes.

Alderman A. Beckerman of the Sixth Assembly District and Samuel E. Beardsley, Socialist candidate for State Senator in the Fourteenth Senatorial District, appeared before John R. Voorhis, President of the Board of Elections, during the afternoon and complained that the election officers of the Seventeenth Election District of the Sixth Assembly District had refused to allow an illiterate woman to mark her ballot unassisted. The woman, they said, had registered by mark, and when she appeared at Ninth Street, near Avenue B, to vote the election officers insisted that inspectors accompany her into the booth and assist her in marking her ballot.

Commissioner Voorhis sent a clerk to the booth with instructions that the officers permit her to enter the booth alone and mark her ballot. Both Beckerman and Beardsley said later that votes were being bought in the Fourteenth Assembly District. They said frauds were committed through the mutilation of ballots. Last year, they said, ballots cast in this district were thrown out because ink marks were found on them.

Julius Gerber telephoned Commissioner Voorhis that an election board of the Sixth Assembly District was treating voters discourteously and interrupting the orderly process of voting by asking unnecessary questions. The Commissioner sent a messenger with instructions that the voters be given every courtesy.

The Honest Ballot Association, with headquarters at 18 West Thirty-fourth Street, in charge of Colonel Joseph D. Seas, had 1,200 watchers at the polls. In Manhattan, Brooklyn, Kings and Queens society girls, comprising the Junior League, many of whom had had canteen experience during the war, distributed coffee and sandwiches to the workers under the direction of Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb.

Flying Squadron of 50 Lawyers.

A flying squadron of fifty lawyers, all authorities on election law, was maintained in the thirteen districts into which the association divided its activities. They were in charge of Albert S. Bard. Automobiles were placed at the disposal of the corps by Vincent Astor, George Perkins, Jr., and others. The lawyers were requested several times to straighten out legal tangles reported by the watchers. One detail answered a hurry call from polling places in the Bronx, where would-be voters had been challenged because they had failed to inscribe their names on the register during registration week. Mr. Bard said that under the law this would cost them their votes.

An arrest was made at a polling place at 108 Suffolk Street when a registered voter was charged by his mother-in-law with having registered as living at her home when, she said, he lived elsewhere.

The association created a stir in in Greenwich Village when it announced it would challenge any married woman who had registered under her maiden name. Such a procedure, the association stated, would automatically nullify the woman's vote.

Edward J. Smith, of 37 First Street, Republican election inspector in the 4th election district, was discharged when arraigned in the Essex Market Court before Magistrate McGeehan, charged with violation of the election law. The complainant was Samuel C. Krolowich, a Socialist watcher, who alleged that Smith mutilated and marked with ink several ballots despite repeated warnings.

Magistrate McGeehan ordered the election inspectors of the 4th election district to count the supposedly marked ballots and said he would order the arrest of the entire election board if his order was disregarded. Smith said he did not mark the ballots intentionally and that the trouble occurred because his fingers were ink-stained.

The arrest of Smith created confusion at the polling place and held up voting for several hours until the Board of Elections in the Municipal Building ordered the voting to proceed under the direction of the three remaining election inspectors.

A verbal encounter between August Claessens, Socialist candidate for re-election to the Assembly from the Seventeenth Assembly District, and Democratic and Republican workers at the polls in the Seventeenth Election District took place just before closing Claessens said he intended allowing a woman to take the place of another Socialist watcher, who wanted to be relieved at 6 o'clock. Mr. Frucht, a Democratic Captain, and others tried to explain to Claessens that it was against the law to relieve a watcher.

Women Mark Ballots Quickly.

Socialist watchers at this place challenged the rights of a number of men and women to vote. In one instance a man came in to cast his ballot, and because of a disability wanted his daughter to go into the booth to aid him. The Socialists contended this was contrary to legal procedure, but after the man made an affidavit his daughter was permitted to accompany him into the booth.

The speed and intelligence of women voters was noted by many of the workers, and the majority of the males had to admit that the women were more expert at marking ballots than men. One Captain, in a store on St. Nicholas Avenue and 114th Street, timed the voters and the result, he said, was that the women averaged three minutes in the booths, whereas the men averaged six minutes.

In Public School 184, Fifth Avenue and 116th Street, a man who gave his age as 85, said he had been voting in this city ever since Lincoln's Administration and had always voted the Republican ticket. A woman, who cast her first vote this year, gave her age as 70.

Considerable annoyance was caused the clerks in the Twenty-sixth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District when a woman asked for a ballot and gave a name which was not registered. She swore that she gave the right name and the clerks searched their books for more than half an hour, by which time the woman remembered that she gave her marriage name when she registered but was asking for her ballot under her maiden name. She was married a few days after registration.

Socialist Charges Coercion.

Adolph Germer, New York organizer for the Socialist Party, issued this statement last night at Socialist headquarters, 17 East Fifteenth Street:

"As has been the custom in past elections, the Socialist Party announces that the usual tactics of intimidation and coercion followed by henchmen of the old parties in previous elections were also evident in the election today.

"A new method adopted in strong Socialistic districts to cut down the workers' vote caused much inconvenience at the polls. Socialist watchers reported that while sub-polling booths were established in the precincts in well-to-do districts, the booths in poorer districts were inadequate to handle the voters. Socialist voters reported being obliged to wait in line from one to two hours before being able to vote. There were only 720 voting minutes today and in some precincts 700 persons were registered. There is no doubt that the Socialist Party lost thousands of votes through these tactics."

CHARGE BALLOT ACT VIOLATION

$1,350,000 Fine and 1,350 Years in Prison the Possible Penalty.

Officials of the Honest Ballot Association reported last night that their watchers had uncovered an unusual number of violations of the election law in the city. They called particular attention to the Fourth Assembly District on the lower east side, where it was said election inspectors in the Thirteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth Election Districts placed the ballots cast for the various candidates in large piles at the close of the polls and then proceeded to count them.

It is a violation of the election law for inspectors to count the ballots in that manner, officials of the Honest Ballot Association said. The ballots should be tabulated, they asserted, as they are withdrawn from the ballot boxes. It was contended the method followed permits substitution of ballots for favorite candidates.

The association's watchers protested against the action of the inspectors, it was said, but were ignored.

In the Twenty-third Electric District of the Twenty-third Assembly District, it was asserted, the entire Board of Election Inspectors resigned at the close of the polls because none of them would assume the office of Chairman. The inspectors were reappointed by the Board of Elections fifteen minutes later, however, and, under instructions from President John R. Voorhis of the Board of Elections, selected a Chairman from among their numbers.

The resignations of the inspectors followed the warning of a watcher of the Honest Ballots Association that one of them was facing a fine of $1,350,000 and imprisonment for 1,350 years for violating the law relative to the manner in which the 450 votes in the election district were counted.

One of the inspectors, according to the report received by the Honest Ballot Association, removed all the ballots from the ballot boxes at the close of the polls and laid all of them face down on a table. Then he is alleged to have turned up the corner of each ballot to learn for whom it was cast. He would not permit any of the other inspectors or watchers to see the ballots, however, it was said.

DEBS PREDICTS OVERTURN.

From His Cell He Declares Socialists Will Win in 1924.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Nov. 2.—Predicting an overwhelming Socialist victory in the National election of 1924, and expressing confidence that today's balloting would reveal a substantial growth of that Party and of "the unconquerable spirit" of the working classes, Eugene V. Debs, Socialist nominee for President, issued his final campaign utterance from his cell in the Federal penitentiary here. Extracts from his statement read:

"I have followed the battle as closely as circumstances would allow, and I feel confident the result will mark a distinct advance in the Socialist movement in the United States. In prison, where one is shut from the world and the usual means of communication, one develops an astonishingly keen faculty for sensing things, and in my case it has proved a most reliable source of information.

"The election is on the second; on the third our campaign reopens. There is no interval between, not an hour is lost. It will end only when capitalism is dead and labor is free.

"Let us open our next campaign with all the enthusiasm that revolutionary idealism inspires. Let us strike hands and fight together like comrades for the cause. We have had factional strife enough. Let us unite. Close up the ranks, settle differences among ourselves in a decent spirit, and put all our united effort and energy into the task of organizing the workers industrially and politically for their emancipation.

"I thank the capitalistic masters for putting me here. They know where I belong under their criminal and corrupt system. It is the only compliment they could pay me."

Debs also said that the people would get through the election "what they think they want, in so far as they think at all."

DEMOCRATS BARRED FROM OWN QUARTERS

PADLOCKS PUT ON DOORS

George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Wilbur W. Marsh, Treasurer, and a hundred other officials and employes of the Democratic National Committee were locked out of their headquarters on the eleventh floor of the Grand Central Palace yesterday on the ground that the rent had not been paid when due.

The doors of the suite were padlocked from some time after midnight until after 9 o'clock yesterday morning by S. H. MacSherry, President of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange, which operates the building, which is owned by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Corporation. Incidentally, while George White and the other Democratic chieftains were unable to get in, Hugh Healy, a night watchman employed by the committee, was unable to get out. It was said at Democratic headquarters after the difficulty was adjusted that Healy contemplated an action for damages.

Employes of the committee, who arrived shortly before 8 o'clock in the morning, found the doors padlocked. Staples a quarter of an inch in diameter had been driven into the doors, and their casings and heavy padlocks snapped. Judge Thomas B. Love, Assistant Treasurer of the committee, called the Superintendent of the building and was referred to Mr. MacSherry.

The latter said the doors would remain locked unless the November rent, $2,900, was paid at once. After hasty conferences over the telephone, Mr. Marsh, although characterizing Mr. MacSherry's action as a "holdup," said that the Democratic National Committee could not very well be without headquarters on Election Day and directed that a check be given, after which the padlocks were unlocked and the doors opened.

Mr. MacSherry, when asked to explain the lockout, said it had involved a matter of rent, which had been adjusted. He said the rent was to have been paid at noon Monday, but was not, and that he had acted with the Democratic National Committee just as he would have with any other tenant who was tardy in his payments. Mr. MacSherry also said he understood the committee owed a considerable amount and that he was "taking no chances."

"I appreciate the possible psychological effect of the action," Mr. MacSherry said, when told that the Democratic leaders had charged that the lockout was done from partisan motives, "but it was not prompted by any political animus whatever; I have voted the Democratic ticket for many years."

Judge Love and the other Democratic officials were very indignant. "It was nothing but a holdup," said Judge Love, "and Coleman du Pont is responsible for it. There was no default of rent at all. The lease was signed on April 14, 1920, by Homer S. Cummings, then National Chairman, and runs to May 1, 1921. We had paid the rent, $2,900 a month, up to noon yesterday, and I had submitted a proposition looking to the termination of the contract by Dec. 1. I was told to submit this proposition in writing. I did so, but never received an answer until 10 o'clock last night, when Mr. MacSherry told me the owners rejected my proposal and that we would have to pay three months' rent in advance if we wanted to end the lease."

The controversy was settled by the payment of a check under protest, and the officials of the committee suffered little inconvenience. The headquarters were running as usual before noon, and were open for the receipt of returns all the evening.

Coleman du Pont, President of the company which owns the building, is a member of the Republican National Committee. It was said at his office that he had gone to his home at Wilmington, Del., to vote.

PREDICT POST-ELECTION BUSINESS BETTERMENT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Business and financial experts of the Middle West are confident of a change for the better in business and commodity price conditions after the close of the political campaign.

According to Harry H. Merrick, President of the Great Lakes Trust and Savings Bank, and former President of the Chicago Association of Commerce, no matter which party wins, modification of the excess profits tax and repeal or revision of other wartime regulations still upon the statute books and which are regarded as harmful to good business conditions, are certain to come at an early date. Huge food crops, as well as good cotton and wool prospects, he says, preclude any possibility of a general business depression.

"I am an optimist today," he said, "and I believe the country is in line for one of its most prosperous periods."

In the last month or six weeks, there have been encouraging declines in the prices of many articles of food, which, despite the cry that wholesale declines have not been felt generally in the retail market, have actually been noted by the housewives. Rice, a year ago, was around 25 cents; a month ago it was near 18 cents, now it is selling as low as 12 cents. This price is still more than 100 per cent. above the 1913 cost.

The drop of sugar prices to retail figures ranging from 11 to 12½ cents, and of prices of dry beans and peas from 12 to 25 per cent. has been noted by the home buyers. Better grades of coffee, retailing at 52 cents a month ago, are now retailing at 48 cents.

Wholesale prices on produce, fruits, vegetables and dressed beef may be said to show decided declines on November 1, 1920, as compared with the corresponding date in 1919.

Electric Lamps
for holiday giving

Planning for Christmas gifts several weeks in advance is really an economy --of time, of energy, and of money. And in making up one's lists, lamps should rank first among the utilitarian gifts that everyone likes to receive.

In the Department on the Fifth Floor are lamps of many varieties, all of them desirable. Among them are lamps of carved, gilded wood, of mahogany and of artistically wrought metal; lamps of Japanese bronze, with cloisonne decoration; lamps of Chinese porcelain; and a large assortment of lamps of modern design. There is also a highly interesting collection of lamp shades.

FRENCH PRESS HAILS NEW PRESIDENT

EXPECTS US IN THE LEAGUE

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—Taking the election of Senator Harding for granted, the French press today is filled with the expression of good wishes for the next American Administration and with declarations of affection for the United States.

Editors predict that under the Republican Administration America will join the League of Nations and as fellow members America and France will find their ideals to be common ideals. It is assumed that the United States will exact radical changes in the League's covenant, but French publicists appear to see no great difficulty in that circumstance.

Neither today nor at any other time has any one in France taken seriously Senator Harding's proposal for some other association of nations. Indeed the fervor and the elaborate plans which attend the arrangements for the first League Assembly in Geneva on the 15th of this month indicate that Europe intends to make the league a real working concern. MM. Viviani and Hanotaux were named today to act with M. Bourgeois as the French representatives.

Paris Press Views.

The Temps in a leading article tonight says:

"It is only too certain that the American people have not followed Mr. Wilson in the path in which he sought to lead the country, and that although it gave him a mandate to make war it did not give him a mandate to make peace. With the best intentions in the world, Mr. Wilson deceived himself when he laid down his personal formula of the Fourteen Points as being the formula of the American people. As soon as the Senate was called on to ratify peace Mr. Wilson found that the majority of the national representation was not and would not be with him.

"In resistance to Mr. Wilson there was and is something more than the opposition of the Republican Party to the Democratic President for during all the war the Republican Senators firmly supported the Presidential policy. There was, above all, that fundamental principle of the Republic by which Congress remains sole sovereign to decide war or peace and which cannot reconcile itself with any agreement or accord obligating the United States to intervene in war by simple international solidarity.

"It was concluded too hastily that the American people was irremediably opposed to the League of Nations and that by its refusal to ratify the treaty of Versailles the situation was without issue. For we do not despair of the international solidarity of the peoples who were associated in the greatest war humanity ever knew. Having been one of the artisans of victory the American people cannot disinterest itself from the peace of the world which its soldiers, fighting by the side of ours, contributed to realize so gloriously.

"The solidarity of America with the liberal nations of Europe is attested by thousands of tombs for her sons upon French soil. We believe that when the election is over and when the new régime shall have taken in hand the direction of affairs the question will appear in a different light from what it has in campaign and that the true interest of America and the higher interest of all the civilized world can be conciliated and the peace of the world safeguarded."

The Temps goes on to say that the election of Harding does not at all mean that America will never enter the League of Nations, adding: "If it is true, as we are told, that Mr. Harding proposed to take counsel with Mr. Root we may certainly expect a satisfactory solution."

The Temps concludes by saying:

"Whoever shall be the new President the American people will most certainly show its realization of its international duty and the new host of the White House will devote himself sincerely to solve in a practical manner the delicate problem which is posed for the United States and for the allied nations because of the necessity of ratification of the Treaty of Versailles and entry into the League of Nations of the great republic of North America."

Never before did the French press pay so much attention to an American election. Many papers carry several columns on their first pages describing the whole machinery of election and telling about how the news is flashed to American crowds. Harding's picture is printed prominently and frequently quotation is made of Harding's remark that "I am a nut about France." This is translated: "J'ai un faible pour La France." All writers lay emphasis on the declarations of friendship for France by both Cox and Harding.

Excelsior fills its front page with pictures of all the American Presidents and telss its readers that no matter who is elected America is going to remain the friend of France, and advises critics of America in France and of France in America to stop it.

The French editors are all very respectful in all references to President Wilson, and say that like Clemenceau he should be praised for his many good works rather than condemned for what might be called his mistakes.

The Gaulois publishes a long interview with General Fayolle, who has just returned from America. He says:

"I am convinced that, Republican or Democrat, there is not an American who would consent to abandon France in a just war. The United States is naturally peaceful, but that country has shown what it can do when its national sentiment is aroused."

The Gaulois says editorially:

"France to our American friends is above their political quarrels. She is a friend who was generous, who was heroic, who has been wounded, and who ought to live. Her life is necessary to the United States, to its prosperity, to its security. Thus they will never cast us aside."

CHINESE SHOT IN MUTINY.

Guards Wound Eleven on Ship at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 2.—Eleven Chinese members of the crew of the British steamship Elmleaf were wounded early today when guards resorted to pistol fire to quell a mutiny aboard the vessel.

Twenty-four Chinese participated in the riot which was precipitated when officers of the ship announced that in compliance with Federal regulations no shore leave would be granted.

According to reports submitted at the Custom House the Chinese armed themselves with knives, pieces of pipe and scrap iron and rushed from the forecastle in an effort to overwhelm the guards. A number got off the ship and hid themselves in the woods bordering the river. The rapid firing of the guards influenced most of those not wounded to surrender. Two of the wounded will die, according to reports.

MIDSHIPMEN BALK AT HAZING RULES

SUPERINTENDENT IS FIRM

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 2.—It was confirmed in an official way today, the authority being Rear Admiral A. H. Scales, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, that the present unprecedented condition at the institution by which the fourth-class men, the latest midshipmen to enter, are rigidly excluded from all intercourse with their fellow students, was due entirely to a failure of the members of the first class, from whom the midshipmen officers are drawn, to carry out Admiral Scales's interpretation of the law as to hazing.

Superintendent Scales would not go further than this, regarding it as unfair to the midshipmen to state the actual incidents which occurred. However, the information is general that the members of this class attempted to uphold the old school distinction between hazing, in which violence is used and "running" in which the "plebes" are annoyed without any physical contact. Under the Federal law and the regulations of the navy there is no distinction of this sort, and Admiral Scales and his predecessors in office have frequently pointed it out.

Admiral Scales said today that the issue was not one of hazing directly, though the situation grew out of it, but whether the midshipmen would carry out the law and the orders of their superiors. "They have their duty under the law," Admiral Scales said, "and I have my duties and I will perform my duties taking such action as seems to me to be proper as situations develop." He announced his position to be one of absolute opposition to hazing in any form, and his determination to do all in his power to end it at the Naval Academy.

The point of view of at least some of the midshipmen of the upper class is that the traditions of the Academy justify a distinction between the ordinary forms of hazing and "running," the latter generally consisting of teasing and making fun of under-classmen, and requiring the performance of continued physical exercises, and similar tasks. Others hold that the Superintendent asked an impossibility of them when he told them that they would be required to end all hazing, accepting his instructions as to what hazing is.

No case of brutal hazing has been developed by any of the five boards of investigation which have been making an inquiry into the subject for about a week. Contrary to the impression here, these boards are all investigating the subject of hazing, compelling the testimony of fourth-class men and other midshipmen and attempting to develop the full facts as to the character and extent of hazing at the academy during the present school year. Never has such an extended and thorough investigation of the subject been attempted.

Not only have these boards developed no cases of brutal hazing, but no incident for which punishment has been assigned has yet followed their proceedings. It is possible that there will be some later, but the work of the boards so far bears out very strongly the view that the amount of hazing has been small and its character very trivial.

It is a fact of actual record that when this Store on its first day opened the doors of the old A. T. Stewart Store it was to go instantly into war and to do battle with every store in the city then in existence.

The battle was not then of the choosing of the man who wrote this yesterday for today's newspaper. It was purely the misconception of the old-time storekeepers as to the purpose of

A New Kind of Store

It never has been the purpose of this Store to be

Competitive, fussy or jealous of others

Months ago we foresaw that a beginning must be made to lower prices and to stem the tide of audacious urgency on the part of certain makers and holders of goods to continue advancement of prices.

We threw our hat into the ring, as Theodore Roosevelt once did, and it is still in the ring!

At a loss we cleared and got the money for several millions of dollars of goods, and little by little we put into our stocks whatever we could buy at lower prices,

Which we are now selling at newly made prices.

We caught up with the Good Opportunities and so we shall catch up every day with every opportunity and keep on going after those opportunities.

We shall have

and we think it hardly fair to coax or excite people to buy months ahead of their wants, when goods may be cheaper two months from now.

At the present time some schemers, who are overstocked, come to us with their old prices marked up one-third or more, that they may be so advertised by the retailer, but, in fact the goods can be bought at forty off from the face of the bill.

We stand for the people, who expect different of us and whom we protect with all the zeal and knowledge we have gained.

That man or woman, buyer or manager, in our employ, if any such there be, who fails to see that our patrons do not get every advantage in their purchases of the reductions we secure, will lose his or her place, sure and certain.

We have but little, if any, old stock on hand, and everything is justly marked, some at a considerable loss to ourselves.

This Store will not cease to care first for its patrons while its present owners live.

We have elected to reduce ALL CLOTHING for Men in the Wanamaker Store

Our announcement of October 18th stated the fact in plain, unmistakable terms. But from time to time during the fall and winter season special groups of high-grade clothing will play a prominent part in helping men to satisfaction. Here, for example, are—

Suits, $54.50

Average saving one-third

Fine worsted, finished and unfinished, and some high-grade cheviots in precise little stripes, and well-ordered patterns and colorings. Single-breasted model; something for the stout man as well as the slim man; and the usual evidence of accuracy and precision in every detail of workmanship.

Overcoats, $48.50

Fine, sturdy, hard-twisted oxford cheviots, made in Chesterfield model, fully lined, or yoke lined, with silk, and finished with a velvet collar. The type of overcoat that can be worn with equal grace on business or dress occasions, and the type that most men are partial to. We haven't had silk-lined overcoats of this grade at $48.50 in a long time.

Other Suits, $34.50 to $74.50
Other Overcoats, $39.50 to $84.50
Every price a lowered price

NOTE—Please—because of the low prices, a small charge will be made for alterations other than correcting sleeve and trouser lengths.

OVERCOATS of Biltmore Hand-Woven Homespuns

THE MAN'S SHOP takes distinct pride in presenting, first and exclusively in New York, these handsome fabrics whose sturdiness marks the revival of a fine handicraft of Colonial times.

Biltmore Homespuns are woven by mountain boys and girls educated in the Industrial School maintained for many years on the estate of a leading member of New York society at Biltmore, near, Asheville, N. C.

The Biltmore Industries were transferred in 1917 to the famous Grove Park Inn at Asheville, N. C. Here Biltmore Homespuns are woven of pure virgin wool—dyed with pure vegetable or alizarine dyes, and carded, spun and shrunk in the sun in the enduring, old-fashioned way.

Biltmore Homespuns are guaranteed to keep their shape better than any all-wool cloth made; they will not shrink or fade; and samples in good condition have been received from homespun purchased ten, eleven and twelve years before.

Many distinguished people have worn garments made up for them from Biltmore Homespuns; but this is the first time that Overcoats of this material are available ready for service, in a conservatively smart style for Winter wear. Colors: Oxford grey, brown, blue and heather mixtures.

DUBLIN, Nov. 2.—Ambushes and reprisals continue with melancholy frequency. The list of casualties reported today includes three policemen wounded at Dingle, County Kerry; a soldier killed and two seriously wounded in the ambush of a military lorry at Youghal; one constable killed and two wounded at Auburn, near Athlone; one constable on leave killed at Ballinalee; an ex-officer wounded at Clarakingstown; a civilian killed at Listowel; a woman fatally wounded at Kiltartan, County Galway; two civilians killed and two wounded at Tralee.

In Dublin an extensive program of raids was carried out at midday by the authorities. Among the places visited were the residences of Dr. James Asche and the Duke of Leinster, and the University College. Lectures were in progress in the college, and the students were lined up in the corridors and searched.

CORK, Nov. 2.—Fears are entertained in Tralee of reprisals for the ambushing of a police patrol on Sunday night.

Volleys were fired in the streets last night and a civilian was shot dead, an old woman was shot through the ankle and an ex-soldier received a bullet wound. What occurred, however, seems to be more in the nature of a threat than revenge for the ambush, judging from the following notice, posted in prominent places throughout the town last night: "Take Notice! Warning! Unless the two Tralee policemen in Sinn Fein custody are returned before 10 o'clock A. M. Nov. 2 reprisals of a nature not yet heard of in Ireland will take place in Tralee and surroundings."

Two auxiliary policemen were missing after the ambush and the notice had reference to these. Their bodies were found today, riddled with bullets. Following their discovery the police ordered the shopkeepers to close their shops, saying these men deserved as much respect as the Lord Mayor of Cork.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, announced to the House of Commons today that a military investigation in Ireland had resulted in the decision to court-martial several soldiers and non-commissioned officers.

165TH AT MACSWINEY MASS.

Father Duffy Calls Late Cork Mayor Martyr to Irish Cause.

More than 200 veterans of the 165th Infantry, the old 69th Regiment of the New York National Guard, attended a solemn requiem mass celebrated yesterday morning by the Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the regiment, at St. Stephen's Church in East Twenty-eighth Street, for the repose of the soul of Terence MacSwiney, Irish hunger striker and late Lord Mayor of Cork. Col. John J. Phelan, commander of the 165th and now commander of the 69th Regiment, headed the veterans as they marched to the church, which was thronged with laymen.

Father Duffy described MacSwiney as a martyr for the Irish cause and declared that his sacrifice was an inspiration to Irish sympathizers.

Eamonn de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic" with members of his cabinet and of the Dail Eireann now in this country will attend a solemn requiem mass for MacSwiney at St. Patrick's Cathedral at 11 o'clock this morning. Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes will pronounce absolution following the mass, which will be celebrated by Mgr. John J. Dunn, Chancellor of the Archdiocese, assisted by Fathers Livingston and Shanley. Mgr. John F. Mooney, Vicar General, will preach.

WRANGEL RETREAT CALLED STRATEGIC

SOVIET DEMAND ON BRITAIN

Assurances Wanted That Activities of Balakovitch and Petlura Will Not Be Countenanced.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The South Russian Embassy here asserted today that the retreat now being carried out by General Baron Wrangel, anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, was in conformity with a preconcerted strategical plan by which he purposed to realign his forces in the lower Don and Crimean regions. These regions, the Embassy said, would serve as the base of new operations which circumstances might make necessary.

The Embassy pointed out that General Wrangel had several times before used the same tactics with advantage.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Assurances have been asked of Great Britain by the Russian Soviet authorities that she will not countenance the military activities of Generals Balakovitch and Petlura, the anti-Soviet commanders who continued hostilities against the Bolsheviki after the conclusion of the peace with Poland.

The request came through Gregory Krassin, Soviet representative in London, who yesterday handed a note to the British Government complaining that despite the Polish armistice the forces of Generals Balakovitch and Petlura were continuing warfare on Soviet Russia with the assistance, the note alleged of the Entente Powers. The note asked that Great Britain make it plain that she would not give her approval to these forces in continuing the bloodshed.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 1.—Fifty thousand refugees fleeing before the advance of the Russian Bolsheviki in Northern Crimea are attempting to find ships to bring them to this city. Allied representatives here, however, have advised Sebastopol that there is no room in Constantinople for them.

TELL OF MOSCOW REVOLT.

Nearly 300 Persons Executed and 7,000 Cast Into Prison.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 2.—A serious mutiny occurred in Moscow a few days ago, according to travelers who have arrived in Riga, Letvia, says The Politiken today. The trouble began, the travelers report, among Bolshevist soldiers in the suburb of Khodynka who refused to proceed to the front unless supplied with new equipment. Civilians sided with the troops and there was considerable disorder in the barracks and adjoining streets.

Machine guns were brought into use, according to the travelers, and large numbers of troops were dispatched from the surrounding districts. Howitzers were placed in commanding positions, and between 6,000 and 7,000 persons were arrested. Of these, the travelers assert, from 200 to 300 were executed. The ringleaders of the mutiny were not discovered.

The only confirmatory news of the above was contained in a Paris dispatch of Oct. 30, which stated that Helsingfors advices described the situation in Moscow as very serious and declared martial law had been proclaimed. The Helsingfors advices said the peasants had revolted in eleven provinces because of the requisition of wheat by the Government, and added that among those cast in the prison was General Alexis A. Brussiloff, former Commander in Chief of the Russian armies.

QUEER SOVIET MONUMENT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Well authenticated information received in Washington is to the effect that at the Peoples Festival recently held in Moscow to celebrate the third aniversary of the Bolshevist revolution, there was exhibited a model of a remarkable monument that is to be erected in commemoration of the Third International, which was held some months ago in Moscow.

The model was designed to illustrate the Soviet form of government and was made by the painter Tatlin. It represents a building that will be 650 feet high and will consist of four revolving floors.

The first floor is in the form of a cube and shows the location of the legislative branch. This floor will make one complete revolution a year. The second floor is a pyramid with the top cut off and will contain the executive departments. These departments will make one complete revolution a month.

The third floor is a cylinder representing the information divisions, propaganda, etc. This floor revolves daily.

The fourth and top floor is a hemisphere. It will house radio stations and other scientific apperatus. It is not stated whether this floor revolves.

The basement of the edifice will be equipped with garages (presumably for the cars of the employes on the revolving floors above), other modern conveniences and motion picture shows.

Underneath all of this will be cellars, which presumably will be employed as prisons and dungeons.

Bolshevist Propaganda in France.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—A series of conferences in favor of the Russian revolution are planned by a commission formed by the General Confederation of Labor, the Socialist Party and the League of the Rights of Man. The commission will select a number of cities where these meetings will be held.

ZAYAS LEADS GOMEZ IN CUBAN ELECTIONS

With Only One-Third of Results Announced, He Has 12,112 Votes to 7,235.

DELAY ANNOYS LIBERALS

They Charge the Government with Holding Up the Count—Disorders Not Repeated.

HAVANA, Nov. 2.—Returns of yesterday's presidential election from 999 of the 3,002 precincts in Cuba, as announced by the government at three o'clock this afternoon, give Dr. Alfredo Zayas, Coalitionist candidate, 12,112 votes as against 7,235 for General Jose Miguel Gomez, candidate of the Liberal Party.

Alfred Zayas has carried five of the six provinces over Jose Miguel Gomez, according to the Government Department of Communications. Zayas's lead, based on returns from about a third of the precincts, is estimated at 4,000.

The only official figures made public by the Electoral Board tonight were from the Provinces of Oriente and Pinar Del Rio, which, virtually complete, give Zayas a majority of 8,416.

The board adjourned until tomorrow after refusing to indicate what the count showed in other provinces.

On complete Government figures Gomez carried Havana by 7,235.

There were angry protests from the Liberals over the delay in announcing the returns. It was not possible to obtain from officials any statement as to the exact number of precincts officially reported. No totals were given, and non-partisan papers still refused to announce the victory on their own responsibility.

The Department of Communications announced at a late hour that no additional figures had been received.

"I am without data," was about all General Gomez would say. "Hundreds of telegrams which should have arrived are undelivered."

With all avenues of information closed Liberals tonight started the cry, "Polls closed thirty-three hours and no word yet." But election officials dismissed complaints of delay by saying a statement would be issued tomorrow afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Reports to the State Department today on the election in Cuba said the balloting proceeded quietly and that there were less disturbances than in any previous election.

The result, it was said, would be difficult to ascertain for some time, although the Liberal candidate, Jose Miguel Gomez, appeared to be leading on early returns.

KEMAL'S ARMY DEFEATED.

Greek Counterattack Routs Turk Nationalists with Heavy Loss.

ATHENS, Nov. 2.—A Greek counterattack has routed the forces of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader, on the Ouchak-Ghekl front, according to an official communication issued today.

"The enemy, who suffered very heavy losses in men and material," adds the statement, "is retreating in disorder."

Like Our Clothing

The construction: that's a feature of a suit or overcoat which interests an engineer. He knows how much construction counts.

A suit has a "foundation" exactly as a building has and upon its stability depends shape retention. Brill foundations are staunch. Evidently engineers have learned this: one sees so many of our suits at the Engineers' Club.

And speaking constructively, we ourselves are building a splendid structure of good will this season upon a solid foundation of rock bottom prices, prices which in many instances are less than cost.

VICTORY AND ITS RESPONSIBILITIES.

The Republican majorities, colossal, unparalleled, will give that party occasion for present frenzied rejoicing, later for much sober thought. There is no precedent for the figures which the returns brought in last night. Cities and towns gave Mr. HARDING majorities that in an ordinary election would be ample for great States. When Democratic strongholds like Boston and New York City give Republican majorities such as the Democrats themselves have rarely achieved, it is plain that extraordinary forces had been loosed to produce these astonishing results. It was of predestination that the Republicans should win—they knew that long ago. It is eighty years since the country has had two Democratic Administrations in succession. The American electorate is proverbially fond of a "change." Without the League of Nations issue to stir their prophets to warnings of certain war under Article X., the Republicans would have carried this election by a heavy majority. The taxes, the unrest, the multitudinous harassments that were the progeny of the war would have roused a very general desire to put the Democratic Party out of power.

Of that feeling the Republicans made the utmost use. They stirred up new and special hatreds of the Administration. With all the resources of exaggeration they laid upon it the faults of which it had been guilty and invented new ones with which it could not honestly be charged. Discarding all scruple, putting aside every feeling of respect and consideration for a great leader stricken in the service of his country and of humanity, they fed the flames of personal resentment against Mr. WILSON. Moreover, their campaign was long ago planned and organized in the most systematic business fashion. They had a definite purpose in view; for that they shaped every detail of their tactics, not excepting the important detail of making choice of their candidate, a selection made in cool defiance of the voice of the people as expressed in the primaries. With victory certain, why should not the little group in control suit itself in that particular?

The popular desire for change and the highly effective organization of the campaign would have given the Republicans something greater than the old-time majorities. But new, strange and enormous reinforcements came to them without virtue or effort on their part, and these account for the staggering overplus of the Harding figures. The proof of it is seen in the figures of the Republican vote and of the Republican majorities in such Democratic strongholds as New York City and Boston. The Irish vote, the German vote, taking no thought about the League of Nations, about any American interest or concern, prompted solely by solicitude for interests not American, went solidly over to the Republican candidate. And this happened all over the country. The magnitude of the majority for Mr. HARDING is sufficiently explained by this demonstration of interests in alien causes. It was foreseen, it was well understood, it was known that it would bring millions of votes to the Republicans.

The League of Nations issue, the only one upon which the Democrats could have made any respectable showing, was altogether submerged by this tidal wave. On that issue it is plain that the Republican Party, the real Republicans, lost in strength, votes and character. Great numbers of Republican men and women, intelligent enough to examine the issue and conscientious enough to put conviction above party, publicly and privately came to the support of Governor COX. It was futile, but it was significant.

Now Senator HARDING must turn his thoughts to the future, and it is a future with grave responsibilities and serious embarrassments. It will not be a small matter either to grant or to refuse the demands certain to be made upon him by the millions who gave him their vote for reasons alien to Republican or American principles. They will point to the enormous majorities they contributed and demand their recompense. Strictly within his own party, moreover, there will be strife and conflict. Eminent Republicans, like Mr. ROOT, Mr. TAFT, Mr. HUGHES and President LOWELL, will be invited into his counsels; it is to be hoped that they will be his chief and most trusted counselors. Their campaign utterances and their known strong convictions must incline them to urge upon him some form of coming together with the nations now united to preserve the peace of the world. That must be, will be the great work of his Administration, its chief triumph, for without success in that endeavor the record of his four years will be one of failure. In efforts to that end he and his advisers will have the support of all that is sound and best in both parties. The educational work of the campaign has not been wasted, the country understands the imperative need of a union to suppress war as it has never understood it before, and it is a need that must be met. Opposition will be encountered at once, determined, formidable. Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. BORAH and all the legions of bitter-end opposition will resist to the uttermost all attempts to move the country from the attitude of isolation in which they have sought to place it. The contest will be rude, but his Administration will be ruined if it yields to these counselors of evil. In this matter it will be well that politics and partisanship stand adjourned. We have newly come into more intimate relations with the other peoples of the world, we have duties to them and they to us of which the performance cannot be postponed without danger and cannot be shirked without disaster.

Policies of domestic moment will engage Mr. HARDING'S attention, policies of which the importance for our prosperity and welfare cannot well be exaggerated. There will be strenuous rivalries in the field of foreign trade upon which our prosperity depends. There we must create policies, for we have had none worthy of the name for more than half a century. We must enter the lists boldly, intelligently and with a skill yet to be developed. Outworn policies will be insistently urged upon President HARDING, his resistance to them will be the measure of his foresight, of his understanding of a problem which involves the difference between the enhancement and the decay of commercial and industrial greatness. His problems will be the nation's, and he will have the loyal support of the nation in his endeavors to solve them. The hope that he may have a successful Administration will be universal.

THE NEW SENATE.

Ordinarily it is desirable that the Senate should be of the same political complexion as the Administration. Only so can full party responsibility be fixed. But in this year's election many even of those who voted for HARDING hoped that there might be Republican upsets in the Senate. Certain Senators had made themselves shining marks for popular dislike; and the returns from their States were watched for with an interest that transcended mere concern for the balance of party power in the new Senate.

Several of these Senators have had their due rebuke from the people in running markedly behind the head of the ticket. But the tremendous pull of the immense Harding majorities has apparently carried all of them through. There is in it no personal indorsement for them; they have simply been swept along on the irresistible Republican tide.

At present writing it is not known precisely what will be the Republican majority in the Senate. If it reaches ten or twelve, the power of JOHNSON and BORAH to make mischief for their party will be proportionately reduced. The Republican majority would feel relieved if it had no longer to look into the muzzle of the pistol held at its head by the Senators from California and Idaho. In any case, the incoming Administration can find no excuse in a hostile Senate for things done or left undone.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

The immense vote given to Governor SMITH on a day of Democratic disaster is honorable to him and to the multitude of Republicans who forgot national partisanship at its height and remembered his faithful service to the State. Engaging as his personal characteristics are and ample as is his popularity, he came so near winning because a host of Republicans had the intelligence and the independence to separate State from national issues. He has been a mighty good Governor. Why should there be a change at Albany because there was to be one at Washington? That was the reasoning that almost elected him.

Judge MILLER made his campaign mainly an annex and echo of Mr. HARDING'S. In the circumstances that was his only hope. As he contemplates the prodigious plurality of Mr. HARDING, however, he must be amazed, as even the most enthusiastic friends of the Governor must be, with the merciless lopping of the Republican vote for Governor. Where Tammany is, there will always be suspicion of trading; and some trading there must have been of Smith votes for Harding votes; but it is painfully or ludicrously evident that additional Harding votes were not needed. Governor SMITH received, as he deserved, the support of a great body of Republican men and women; and the separate ballot facilitated this great, quiet, independent movement, a credit to all who took part in it, and a hopeful sign in State politics.

Governor SMITH, defeated, has achieved an extraordinary personal and political triumph. He will be heard of hereafter. It is going to be hard, impossible probably, for him to abjure politics and begin to attend to his personal affairs.

Judge MILLER is a man of high character and ability. He will make as good a Governor as the Republican Legislature will let him.

SOCIALIST UNREASONABLES.

It will not be known for some time how many American citizens, men and women, voted yesterday for Presidential electors. Upward of 30,000,000 were eligible to exercise the suffrage, considerably more than half the population of Great Britain, a host so large that it is a task for the mind to imagine them marching to the polls in forty-eight States from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Elsewhere in the civilized world there is no political spectacle so impressive as the American electorate indicating who shall be its President at Washington, the head of the most powerful nation in resources and influence, the nation that should be the moral leader of the world. But it is not numbers alone that make the function so imposing. It is rather the disciplined spirit and temper of the vast multitude of voters moving in an orderly manner to declare its choice, with entire submission to the will of the majority as soon as the result shall be made known. That result may sometimes seem to be a foregone conclusion, but the American voter is not afraid to stand in a minority.

It is one of the glories of the American democracy that the ballot decides and the defeated cheerfully accept the verdict without protest and with no mental reservations. But an exception must be noted. There is a body of voters that does not accept the verdict with composure and without mental reservations; that does not recognize the will of the majority; that is always dissatisfied and forever scheming and intriguing to bring about minority rule; that has no understanding of the true spirit of American democracy; that stands apart, sullen, seditious, disloyal. It is the Socialists; not the visionaries of the old order, who were at least philosophical, but the fanatics of the new, tainted with Bolshevism. They have never known the American spirit; they are alien in heart and destructive in purpose; they are against all government but the tyranny of their own minority. The ballot is not their weapon, but insidious propaganda which would set aside the will of the majority and substitute Sovietism.

This is the enemy in ambush of the American democracy. It could be overcome by force, but force is not the proper or desirable remedy. The remedy is counter-propaganda: education, continuous, tireless, patient. "We must now teach the mob to think," said a British statesman when universal suffrage came in. He was wise in his generation. The "mob" learned easily. The Socialist tarred with Bolshevism may not be an apt and willing pupil, but he can be taught to keep step with the hosts of the American democracy.

THE CALIFORNIA LAND LAW.

The "initiative measure" submitted to the voters of California yesterday is in form a project of law to extend and strengthen the Alien Land act of 1913. To "all aliens eligible to citizenship under the laws of the United States" it guarantees full rights to acquire, possess, enjoy and transfer real property. This, of course, does not include the Japanese. They come under the head of "all other aliens," mentioned in Section 2 of the proposed law, whose rights to buy and hold real estate are limited to the terms of "any treaty now existing between the Government of the United States and the nation or country of which such alien is a citizen." This at once raises the question whether the subsequent restrictions on Japanese land-owning in California are in conflict with American treaty obligations. That they are not, there is good Japanese authority for maintaining. Nor do they go counter to international law. If they did, the similar statutes of Japan against land-holding by aliens would be called in question.

The statement on this subject issued by the State Department on the eve of the election takes no ground either for or against the California proposal. It merely calls attention to the delicacy and importance of the matter. This is proper enough, and its motive was doubtless to keep the friendly record straight with the Japanese authorities. Negotiations with them are already under way, and it is hoped that an amicable agreement will be reached. The true course for Japan was indicated in June by the Japanese editor of The Japanese Review of International Law, published in Tokio, when he said that the anti-Japanese legislation of California was not to be dealt with by Japan "as a legal question," but by "political and diplomatic methods."

WRANGEL'S DEFEAT.

The effect of the diversion of the Red armies from the Polish front is already apparent. General WRANGEL'S forces, beaten in their attempt to hold the Dnieper front at Kakhovka a fortnight ago, have now suffered another and more serious defeat and have apparently lost all they held on the mainland. Even so, WRANGEL might hope to hold the isthmuses leading into the Crimea; but if the Moscow report of the capture of Perekop is true, this last defense is broken down. In that case the campaign is pretty nearly over.

What has happened was to have been expected from the moment when PILSUDSKI'S front was broken in the early Summer. The Poles were able to save Warsaw, thanks to their own efforts and WEYGAND'S leadership, and were afterward able to push their line far to the east because Bolshevist reserves had to be diverted to stop WRANGEL. While both armies were in the field the Poles and WRANGEL were able to make a good deal of headway against the superior forces of the Bolsheviki; but Poland could not afford to continue the war to save WRANGEL, especially since his party would be no more friendly to Polish eastward expansion than the Red leaders. Poland made peace; she could have done nothing else. Immediately the Red armies were transferred to the south, where, according to these late reports, they seem to be sweeping WRANGEL into the sea. When WRANGEL is disposed of, will they not turn back toward Poland?

By next Spring, at the latest, we shall see how much the Bolshevist professions of love of peace are worth. By that time there will probably be no well-organized military opposition to them in Russia, and their frontiers will have been settled by treaties signed by Bolshevist leaders, on lines at least as favorable as those they were willing to accept at Brest-Litovsk. If they really mean what they have said about self-determination, their devotion to principle will be more apparent when they are able to use their armies in foreign wars without the menace of civil war behind them. When that time comes the Poles may wish that their policy toward Lithuania had been influenced by practical considerations of the need of a friendly neighbor on the northeast rather than by insistence on Polish claims, however well grounded.

THE MATTER WITH JANE.

Most of us still think of the Girl Scout in the terms of wartime—as an apprentice to the manifold arts and crafts which, more than any other factor, gave women a realization of their position in the State. The Girl Scout Corps was the kindergarten in the great school of citizenship through service. That is still the fundamental idea, but it has taken on the more normal coloring of peace. The service which the scout leader of today has chiefly in mind is that of social helpfulness and the home. Yet under this seemingly prosaic régime the movement has continued to grow, bursting all bounds. Of the girls who apply for membership, more than 4,000 a month have to be denied.

According to MARY ROBERTS RINEHART, who is National Chairman, the reason for this is that the scout corps answers a question which is asked in every family where there is a growing girl: "What is the matter with Jane?" The matter with Jane is that she has abandoned her dolls and at the same time finds herself abandoned by her little-boy playfellows, who have attained the age of the loftiest scorn of the ever-feminine—the only true cave-man age of school and college sports and of the gang spirit. In the modern family, which tends to be small, Jane becomes a child hermit of the spirit. "Girls are great idealists; they look up rather than out." And as childhood merges into young womanhood new ideas and new longings come, which are the most potent of all for good or evil. Solitary Jane takes to the romantic novel, to the theatre, to the movies. Her social presence and her clothes become matters of agonizing importance. All this may be the best thing in the world—or the worst. Jane's sensible mother finds that she is lamentably self-conscious and vain; her even more sensible father that she spends too much time at the movies. And so Jane, who least of all knows what is the matter with her, gets her first feminine skill in concealment and evasion, in subtle shifts.

The only real trouble with Jane is that she has been turned away from the Girl Scouts! There her idleness would be filled, her solitude banished. Instead of the trumped-up adventure of the screen, witnessed in a stuffy theatre, Jane would herself go on hikes, learn camping, swimming, woodcraft. "She learns that her young body is to be used instead of decorated." According to JOSEPHINE DODGE DASKAM, who is also a good scout and the mother of a scout, she receives "sane, practical (and inter-esting, don't forget that!) preparation for the home and the child we hope she will have some day."

Some 4,000 Janes a month have to be turned away for the lack of funds to equip clubs and provide for the small proportion of management which is not voluntary. So next Sunday is to be Girl Scout Sunday, with sermons in pulpits of all denominations, and 1,033,400 fathers are to be asked to give one dollar each to take care of what is the matter with Jane. Of this sum, half a million is to be raised outside of New York to aid organizations already established in 159 cities. The National Headquarters are at 189 Lexington Avenue.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Gloucester Gains New Glory.

A strong and entirely natural impulse, to which many have yielded, is to praise the races off Halifax Harbor at the expense of those several eminent and ambitious yachtsmen who successfully have defended and vainly have tried to "lift" the America's Cup. It is said, and truly, that the Esperanto and the Delawana are real seagoing vessels, manned and captained by real sailors; that both boats and crews are able to meet any winds that blow at any season, and that, instead of having only one merit—that of high speed when favored with breezes carefully adjusted within the narrow limits imposed on fragile craft carrying enormous sails handled by enormous crews—these little schooners have a hundred virtues.

They are stanch and practical. They can go anywhere; to own and maintain them does not take the better part of a millionaire's income, and their victories and defeats have an easily measurable relation to man's dominion over the ocean—to his life and business on the great waters.

None of these things can be said of yachts that are racing machines and nothing else, but it is neither very sensible nor very kind to find fault with a thing for not being what it was not designed to be, and the comparison of incomparables is a waste of time. That is just what the cup racers and the fishing schooners are—incomparables. In the case of the one, as in that of the other, the ends sought are attained, and while it is entirely permissible to have a preference as between the two and as between what they do and are good for, it is no more right to scorn the racing machines as useless than it would be to scorn the fishing schooners as exponents of a gross materialism.

Again it is the old rivalry of the professional and the amateur, and each, if wise, would be respectful and grateful to the other for services rendered.

Luck Did Play Its Part.

Though the Gloucester boat won against the pride of Lunenburg in a test of speed as fair as could be imagined, it was not a conclusive test, and the Nova Scotians are not likely to admit their inferiority to the men of Massachusetts either as builders or navigators of sailing craft.

For one thing, the number of races was not large enough to prove all-round superiority for the Esperanto or her crew. The one boat seemed to be just a little faster in a light breeze, the other about as much better when the wind freshened. That revealed anew—perhaps—the familiar impossibility of combining opposite qualities in a single boat, or a single anything else, for that matter, and though men of the quality of those who command and sail such craft as these do not ascribe defeat to ill luck, it remains the fact that in different weather the loser of these races might have won them both. Next time, too, if there had been a next time, Captain WELCH might have made a single error of judgment like the one to which Captain HIMMELMAN confessed, for to err is human at sea as on land.

Both the Esperanto and the Delawana, by the way, in all probability, or rather in all certainty, are a lot faster than they would have been if "racing machines" had not paraded their derided keels and their absurdly huge sails in the America's Cup races at the entrance to New York Harbor. From those races the designers learned much that was applicable, in compromised form, in the building of "real" boats.

Weather's Effect on the Vote.

On this part of the Atlantic Coast the rain so confidently predicted by the Weather Bureau for yesterday held off all day while the ballots accumulated in the boxes. The sky threatened constantly, and it was evident that the Government forecasters were right Monday morning when they said that a storm was coming. It came, but for some meteorological reason or other—presumably, as so often, here, an interfering influence from the sea—New York during the daylight hours was not in the "area of precipitation."

Whether that was a reward for metropolitan virtues or a punishment for metropolitan sins will be decided according to individual opinions of the way the metropolis voted—a question on which argument is probably useless between people who from the same facts draw opposite conclusions.

How rain, if it had arrived, would have affected the vote is a question on which opinions also differ, with no prospect of reconciliation. Senator HARDING, discussing the subject on Monday, recalled the ancient belief—or delusion—that good weather on Election Day favored the Republicans, the Democrats being a hardier folk and therefore less afraid of a wetting. Probably there never was much, if anything, in that theory, or in its opposite—that, as the Republicans had the more money, they were better able to protect themselves from bad weather and so minded rain less than the Democrats.

Perhaps it approximates the truth more nearly, now as always, to say that rain tends to keep the farmer vote at home and has little or less effect in the towns. That, in most States, would help the Democrats, at least in the days when all country roads were long and most of them were bad. It cannot have much influence now that the automobile has made all of those same roads short and many of them good.

Such Victims Deserve No Sympathy.

There are people, of course, and many of them, who have a right to rejoice that action taken by the Pennsylvania Railway Company will discourage, and possibly end, the new and rapidly growing habit on the part of some clerks in selling "accommodations" on the better trains only to travelers who give gratuities—who pay blackmail, in plainer words.

None of the rejoicing, however, should be done by the self-styled victims of this extortion. They are nearly, if not quite, as guilty as the extortioners, just as the bribe-giver always is, and if they had not been willing to buy an unfair advantage over their fellow-travelers, this particularly obnoxious phase of the tipping evil never would have come into being.

Moreover, they could have stopped it almost as soon as it began, if, instead of paying, they had reported these reprehensible demands to the same higher officials who put a stop to them by discharging the too enterprising clerks. There would be next to no grafting of any kind if there were not people willing to pay it because thus they can gain advantages otherwise, that is honestly, unattainable.

BETTER ITALIAN SPIRIT.

Workers Willing to Co-operate Now with Employers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As you know, I have been always very optimistic in regard to the outcome of the labor agitations in Italy. Such optimism is based upon my sound knowledge of the real conditions in Italy and also upon my position to judge in the proper light the temperament and psychology of my people.

Italy is now peacefully settling down. According to official statistics which I have had the honor to submit at the monthly luncheon of the Italian Chamber of Commerce, the imports of Italy during the first six months of this year amount to 8,400,000,000 lire, while the exports have reached 3,900,000,000 lire, which means nearly 50 per cent. of the total imports; last year Italy was very far below such a limit.

The latest agitation in Italy started in Turin, and everybody knows that the automobile factories of the Fiat in Turin had, as President, Mr. Agnelli, a man of extensive power and broad mind, also one of the best organizers of industrial enterprises. Everybody knows also of the hard fight between the so-called Italian Reds and the administration of the Fiat. But I wish to bring to your attention an episode which shows sufficiently how conditions in Italy are very often misunderstood. This episode was communicated to me by cable from Rome:

"Oct. 30 took place funeral mother of Mr. Agnelli, former President of the Fiat. More than five thousand employes of Fiat and representatives of various Fiat factories followed the hearse in very impressive cortège. After religious ceremony a member of Internal Workers' Commission of Fiat invited Mr. Agnelli in name of all employes to resume his position of President. Same invitation was made by representative of the clerical staff of the factories. This act made deep impression; shows that good sentiments of our workers are not at all changed, notwithstanding impulsiveness to which they may yield, and is very significant considering the fight between workers and Fiat."

All the above shows that the so-called Reds of Italy are men of good heart and willing to co-operate with their former employers for the reconstruction of their country. F. QUATTRONE.

An Indian War Question.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your columns E. J. C. Bullock accuses me of historical blundering in my article against the pretensions that the League of Nations would guarantee perpetual peace. He makes an astonishing use of the facts.

I cited, as an early instance of a league, the covenant of 1645 between the United Colonies and the Narragansett and Niantic Indians, and the failure of the covenant to save the Indians from destruction in King Philip's war. Mr. Bullock retorts contemptuously, "Every student of Colonial history knows that King Philip was neither a Narragansett nor a Niantic." He does not happen to mention that I never said he was, and he does not happen to mention that my history was entirely correct.

He says that "if the Narragansetts had joined the Wampanoags, as Philip tried to persuade them, the Plymouth Colony would in all probability have been wiped out." He does not happen to mention that the Narragansetts were actually wiped out, or practically so.

They did not join Philip, but they were suspected of harboring his men and of befriending him. Their co-signers the Niantics accused them of it. The Colonists decided to crush them before they could rise, and without warning invaded the Narragansett country and fought the bloody "Swamp Fight," in which the Colonists lost 230 men and the Indians 1,000. Many Narragansett women and children were burned alive or perished of hunger or cold.

The remaining Narragansetts joined the other warring Indian tribes, and towns were soon blazing everywhere, one of them within eighteen miles of Boston. The General Council said that the war was a judgment of heaven on the wickedness of the Colonists.

Both whites and Indians suffered famine and death and vied in treachery and atrocity.

The Indians were finally defeated, King Philip's little son was sold into slavery, his wife's head was carried on a pole through Taunton, and Philip's head through Plymouth.

As for the Narragansetts, "death or slavery was the penalty for all known or suspected to have been concerned in shedding English blood. Merely to have been present at the Swamp Fight was adjudged sufficient foundation for sentence of death." This in spite of the fact that the Colonists struck first.

Reuben Goldthwaites called the Swamp Fight "one of the most desperate of its kind ever fought in America." It was fought between the Colonists and the Narragansetts who had signed a covenant of "perpetual peace."

Yet Mr. Bullock says that I used "rather an unfortunate historical instance and unwittingly made a point for the League."

I don't know how to describe such pro-League arguments, but they certainly do not make for peace. RUPERT HUGHES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that several of our leading hotels have announced a reduction in their prices, don't you think it about time theatrical managers did the same?

Another thing, why must a manager get a higher price for a show on a Saturday or a holiday? You get the same show at all times. Other merchants don't jump their prices on these days.

TO THE LOSERS.

Cheers ring—but not for you!
So Fate has willed.
Others wear honors new,
Thousands are thrilled
Citing each victor's claim—
Breadth, deeds, or birth.
Come! though you've missed your aim,
Prove now your worth!

What though the goal you've neared—
All could not win!
Smile! Though to lose you feared,
Be no coward's kin!
Though your last, choicest shaft
Failed of the mark,
Proud, drink Defeat's cold draft,
Bitter and dark!

Whimper not—no, nor frown!
Strong, meet the test!
Envy and feuds stamp down—
What vow is best.
Show faith that this great Land
Wisely did choose.
Just stanch, plain patriots, stand.
Game—though you lose!

DENIES BOSTON HAS 801,679.

Director Roper Insists Federal Census of 747,923 Is Correct.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Director of Census Rogers joined issue today with Mayor Peters of Boston, who in a letter to the Census Bureau, asserted that the population of Boston was 801,679, instead of 747,923, as announced by the bureau.

Declaring that Mayor Peters "had drawn certain wrong inferences and had made certain miscalculations," Director Rogers said that after careful consideration of all available data, the Census Bureau was of the opinion that the enumeration of Boston was substantially correct.

The police canvass, which was cited by Mayor Peters to bear out his claim of incorrect enumeration, was said by Director Rogers to have been incomplete in that the Federal census showed more men of 20 years of age and over than the police registered. Director Rogers also asserted that Federal census takers had found that persons who were not entitled to enumeration at the given addresses had, nevertheless, been listed for voting purposes.

Director Rogers ascribed the falling off in certain Boston wards as shown in the Federal census to a movement of population to suburban areas and to the failure of many service men to return to their old homes.

TO SETTLE MEXICAN CLAIMS

General Arbitration Is Suggested—No American Preference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—If a claims commission is created to settle demands by foreigners for injuries to either person or property suffered in Mexico since the overthrow of the Diaz régime, it will adjudicate all claims, not only those of United States citizens, it was learned officially today.

The State Department in the negotiations with Roberto V. Pesquiera, Mexican confidential agent here, is asking no preferential treatment for Americans.

The exchanges of views on the question of a claims commission are understood to have included arbitration as one method of settlement, as well as a mixed court, and the State Department is believed to favor arbitration, although consideration of the method has not progressed to the point of the size of the body to be chosen to consider the claims. It is indicated that if arbitration is resorted to Mexico would favor the selection of a Latin American jurist as the third member of the commission.

TO ISSUE COMPULSORY LOAN

New Zealand Requires Subscriptions Equal to Yearly Income Tax.

LONDON, Nov. 2 (Canadian Press).—New Zealand is to issue a loan which will provide for compulsory subscription equal to one year's average income tax, according to advices from Wellington today.

FRANCE NAMES DELEGATES.

Bourgeois Heads Representatives in League of Nations Assembly.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The Cabinet today nominated Leon Bourgeois, President of the Council of the League of Nations; former Premier Rene Viviani, and former Minister of Foreign Affairs Gabriel Hanotaux as France's delegates to the League of Nations Assembly in Geneva, beginning Nov. 15.

ALLIED ORDER TO BAVARIA.

Calls for Immediate Disarmament of Militia Detachments.

MUNICH, Nov. 2.—Demands for the prompt disarmament of militia detachments have been handed the Bavarian Government by the Interallied Control Commission here.

It is asserted in official circles that the Bavarian Government will ask the Berlin Administration to refuse energetically to suppress defense organizations.

ONLY 200 LEFT IN NOME.

Population of Gold Rush Days Was 15,000.

SEATTLE, Nov. 2.—Nome, Alaska, which during the gold rush of 1900 had a population estimated at 15,000, was left with only 200 inhabitants when the steamer Victoria, the last boat of the season for the States, sailed from there, according to passengers who were here today.

The Victoria brought 523 passengers from Alaska, 350 of whom were from Nome. Many of these declared they would not return.

FIFTH AV. APPLE SALE.

Crowds Overflow It and Many Housewives Will Return.

Although business generally was at a standstill yesterday on account of the election, there was one place in New York where the space was inadequate and the number of clerks insufficient to accommodate the crowds, largely composed of fashionably dressed women, who desired to make purchases. This was at a small vacant store at 311 Fifth Avenue, where the Consumers' Food Committee, of which Miss May Van Arsdale of Teachers College is Chairman, has opened, under the auspices of the State Division of Foods and Markets, a salesroom for apples, particularly of the New York State product, by the barrel, basket or pound, at wholesale price. Only a limited number of persons were allowed inside the store at a time, and a great many, because of the long wait, decided to return another day or wait until the committee had opened a place in their neighborhoods.

The sales will be continued at the Fifth Avenue place every day this week from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. and Herschel H. Jones, director of the New York office of the Division of Foods and Markets, said yesterday that if demand justified the sales would be continued for even a longer period. These sales are in connection with the observance in this city of International Apple Week—a week in which a special appeal is made to housewives to use apples. The observance is nation-wide, but reports indicate that nowhere has so much interest been shown as in New York City.

Joseph Sicker, Chairman of the International Apple Shippers' Committee in this city, declared last night that the campaign was already a decided success, although yesterday was a holiday and most of the local dealers did not move the usual quantity of produce. He said that in his opinion the sales today would be record breaking. The usual apple auction sale being held this week at Pier 20, Hudson River, will take place at the usual time today. The sale yesterday was abandoned because it was a holiday.

Housewives, the merchants report, are showing great interest in apples, asking questions about the different varieties and for what they can best be used. The sales, they report, have increased enormously. The merchants, for the most part, are selling the apples on a very small margin and substantially under the prices of last week.

LANDLORDS OFFER TRUCE TO TENANTS

$1,000,000 HAS BEEN HELD UP

Realty Owners Deny Housing Emergency Exists — Point to Hotchkiss Opinion.

Conditions tending to a better understanding between landlord and tenant are developing rapidly, according to a statement issued yesterday by Real Estate Investors of New York Inc. The organization cited the decision of Supreme Court Justice Henry Hotchkiss declaring that chapter 947 of the new rent laws was unconstitutional, and the indorsement by the Board of Rules of the Municipal Court Justices of two forms of stipulations under which rent can be paid without affecting the rights of either tenant or owner.

The organization said that more than $1,000,000 in rent had been withheld by tenants owing to their misunderstanding of the laws and that it was felt that the recent decisions would have a clarifying effect on the situation.

"The so-called housing bills are in reality rent-fixing measures," said Julius H. Zieser, Chairman of the Law Committee of Real Estate Investors of New York Inc.

"The Legislature seems to have misconceived its duty. It intended to enact laws which would increase housing. The actual effect of the bills will be to decrease housing. Now that everybody seems to have a roof over his head we must determine the terms under which one may maintain that roof. The Legislature thought that a judge or a tenantry jury should fix those terms and acted on the theory that an emergency exists. When Judge Francis M. Scott was asked what he had to say about the emergency he said it would be over on November 2.

"Those who are endeavoring to support the new legislation maintain that it is based on (1) emergency and (2) police power. Our organization maintains that no emergency exists, and that the use of police power, intended as a direct remedy, is in this case taking away the means of relieving the situation."

The Real Estate Board of New York announced that to meet the situation with respect to the refusal of tenants to pay rent the Joint Real Estate Law Committee had prepared two forms of stipulation. One is between landlord and tenant, under which rent conceded to be due by a tenant may be received by a landlord without prejudice to his rights to bring action for balance of rent the landlord claims to be due him.

The other form is for use where a tenant holds over, under which the landlord may receive such sum as the holdover may be disposed to pay on account of any sum which hereafter may be adjudged to be due the owner, because of the holding over of the occupant after his tenancy has terminated.

One form of stipulation reads:

Stipulation between landlord and tenant. The undersigned landlord and tenant having entered into a lease dated ..... of apartment ..... in the building known as ..... street, and the tenant now claiming that the rent stipulated in such lease is "unjust, unreasonable and oppressive," herewith pays to the landlord $..... on account of rent for the demised premises for the month of..... 1920, and the landlord acknowledges receipt of that amount, such payment and the acceptance thereof being without prejudice to any right of either party hereto.

Dated, New York ..... 1920.

Landlord.

Tenant.

The other form reads:

Stipulation between owner and——holdover——, who is now in occupancy of apartment——, in the building at ——Street, herewith pays to——, hereinafter referred to as the "owner," $——on account of any sum which may be hereafter adjudged to be due such "owner," because of said occupant remaining in possession, and such owner hereby acknowledges receipt of such sum of money, such payment and the acceptance thereof being without prejudice to any right of either party hereto.

Dated—New York.——,1920.

Owner.

Occupant.

The situation brought about by the laws is making it impossible for landlords to pay interest on mortgages on their property and to provide adequate supplies of fuel for the Winter, the board said.

"Quite as serious as this is the fact that many landlords will be unable to meet the taxes on their property which are due on November 1," the statement continued. "The net result of the situation will mean inconvenience to tenants as well as financial loss, and possible foreclosures to the landlord, and failure of the city to receive the taxes necessary to carry on the business of city government.

"In order to meet this situation the Joint Real Estate Law Committee has prepared two forms of stipulation and has received for these stipulations, approval of the committee on rules of the Board of Municipal Court Justices and the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering.

COUNTRY CLUB FOR WOMEN.

Theatre Assembly Plans Establishment Near Oneida Lake.

Mrs. J. Christopher Marks, president of the Theatre Assembly, announced yesterday that her organization planned to establish a country club for its women members on a forty-acre site near Oneida Lake. Work is to begin immediately, and the club will be open each year from May 1 to Nov. 1.

Facilities for boating and bathing will be provided, and in the club house will be a large ballroom for dances and other entertainments. Fishing, golf, tennis and other Summer sports also may be enjoyed by the members.

Mrs. Marks, who returned yesterday from Oneida Lake with contractors who are to begin their work there this month, said she thought this would be the first women's country club in this city. The Theatre Assembly has several hundred members.

GIRL SCOUTS GIVE FIRST AID.

Answer Ambulance Calls and Care for Children While Women Vote.

Girl Scouts of this city yesterday for the first time put their first aid training to public service, going out on each ambulance call from the Knickerbocker Hospital, Amsterdam Avenue and 131st Street. A small group of the girls, best trained for the work, remained at the hospital throughout the day.

Other Girl Scouts at Bellevue Hospital prepared bandages and answered emergency calls. Scout winners of the Child Nurse Badge took care of babies and young children in different parts of the city while the mothers went out to vote.

WOMEN CALLED FOR JURY.

Fifty to Appear in Bayonne Today to Try Rent Case.

Fifty women in Bayonne, N. J., were summoned yesterday for jury duty in the court of Judge Peter Stillwell this morning.

It was the first time that women had been asked to do jury duty in Bayonne. A jury will be selected from among the women to decide a dispossess case brought by a landlord against a tenant.

THOUSANDS CARRY LUNCHES TO POLLS

BIG RUSH IN EARLY HOURS

Women Show Intense Interest in Election—Nearly 100 Per Cent. of Vote Is Cast.

The largest vote on record was polled yesterday in this city. In a veritable flood, which in some places swamped the election officials, the voters went to the polls early in all five boroughs. In the Bronx the early rush was so great that some officials asked the Board of Elections for additional voting booths.

When the polls closed at 6 o'clock last night it was estimated that more than 90 per cent. of the 1,373,565 registered voters had cast their ballots.

There was hardly any disorder, and no disturbances of a serious nature such as have been common in the past. Few arrests were made.

Women showed intense interest in the election. In many districts more women than men went to the polling places in the morning. In the first hour it was not uncommon to see women walk into polling places to cast their votes when on their way either from or to the grocery.

The early hour rush was great in practically every section. In many polling places as many as 100 persons voted between 7 and 8 o'clock. These were mostly office workers, who marked their ballots quickly. The average number of voters was from forty to fifty an hour.

Unprecedented Smoothness Shown.

With three ballots to vote, the election officials regard this as remarkable and as evidence that the election machinery was working with unprecedented smoothness. Secretary William C. Baxter of the Board of Elections said that where in other years there had been 100 complaints of missing ballots or ballot boxes in the first hour of voting, not a single complaint had been received this year, nor any request for aid, except for more voting booths.

When the polling places opened at 6 o'clock men and women were waiting in long lines. These grew as the clocks ticked off the minutes, and assumed unprecedented length when a rush of office workers was added to the breakfast shoppers and factory workers. In the Bronx this situation was emphasized in the afternoon, when workers, expecting a long wait in the lines, brought along their luncheons.

At 3 o'clock Henry S. Renaud, State Superintendent of Elections, who had a corps of deputies and inspectors traveling from polling place to polling place to supervise the work of the election boards, said his reports indicated that 80 per cent. of the registered vote had been cast at that hour.

Difficulties Ironed Out.

"It means," he said, "that the vote this year will be nearer 100 per cent. of the registration than it ever has been before. Everything has been working smoothly, and there has been an almost complete absence of disorder."

A similar announcement was made by John R. Voorhis, President of the Board of Elections after a personal tour of inspection.

"For a time the election machinery seemed clogged in a few election districts owing to the number of early voters," said Mr. Voorhis, "but we sent assistance to such places and the difficulties were speedily ironed out.

"There has been no reports of trouble except in one case in the Sixth Assembly District, where there was a dispute between watchers and Inspectors. In some places additional ballot boxes were required and these were furnished as soon as called for.

"I visited a number of polling places between 5 and 6 o'clock to see if there were any lines of voters waiting. I found none. In some polling places every vote had been cast."

Mr. Voorhis said the average number of registered voters to a district, as fixed by the Board of Elections, was 502. He said there were few polling places where the vote exceed 600.

Mr. Voorhis denied a report that, owing to the difficulty in securing canvassers to count the vote, returns might be delayed forty-eight hours.

Women, Aged 90, Walk to Polls.

In West Harlem and on Washington Heights, according to election officials, from 20 to 25 per cent. of the total vote had been polled by 10 o'clock.

In one district is the Home for Aged with 110 inmates. Of these, eighty-three walked to the polling place two blocks away, refusing to ride in automobiles. Twenty-five of their number were more than 90 years old. Mrs. J. H. Copeland, Superintendent of the home, said that feeling had been running high in the home all through the campaign, and that sentiment was about equally divided between Cox and Harding.

In East Harlem the voting was heavy during the first two hours, when about an equal number of men and women appeared.

Among the early voters in the Twenty-second District of the Eighteenth Assembly District on the upper east side were a family of eight, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Biegelheisen of 1,820 Lexington Avenue, their four sons and two daughters.

In the Twelfth Assembly District on the east side, the political habitat of Charles F. Murphy, the voting was only moderately heavy in the morning. At 8:30 o'clock, two hours and a half after the polls opened, 86 votes had been cast in the Second Election District where Mr. Murphy votes. In the third, 92 votes had been cast; in the ninth, 98 votes; in the thirteenth, 97, and in the seventeenth, 106. Women were in the majority.

The "Silk Stocking" Vote.

In the so-called silk stocking districts on the central west side the voting was heavy throughout the day. In the Forty-First Election District of the Tenth Assembly District, with a polling place at Forty-eighth Street, just east of Sixth Avenue, six votes had been cast in the first hour and a half. The day's average was forty-five voters an hour, indicating more split ballots than in the poorer neighborhoods.

In the Bronx one-third of the entire registered vote had been polled by 10 o'clock. In that borough double lines had been forming in front of most of the voting places and in some districts the local boards were overwhelmed.

On the lower east side about 30 per cent. of the vote was cast during the last four hours.

In the First Assembly District (where Governor Smith votes) balloting was heavy. In the Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Districts of the First, 341 votes out of a total of 441 had been cast at 2:30 o'clock. At Front and Wall Streets only sixty-seven votes had been unaccounted for at this time.

Among the early voters in the Twenty-fifth District of the Eighteenth Assembly District were nineteen sisters of the Church of Our Lady of Angels at 332 East 113th Street. They marched in line to the polling place at 114th Street and Lexington Avenue, headed by Mrs. Margaret Ryan, the Democratic woman captain of the district, at 6 o'clock. It was the first time the sisters had voted.

Socialists are Active.

The Socialists were active in the district where their Assembly candidates were men who had been unseated. Another scene of great Socialist activity was the Twentieth Assembly District, where Louis A. Cuvillier was the Democratic candidate for re-election. Mr. Cuvillier was active in the prosecution of charges against the Socialist members.

In Brooklyn the early rush was as big as in Manhattan. In Flatbush it was estimated that one-fifth of the vote in most districts had been polled by 9 o'clock. In the fashionable Park Slope section there were twelve polling places along Seventh Avenue. Long lines of voters, among whom were as many women as men, were awaiting their turn to vote all day long. In the Greenpoint and Williamsburg section the early voting was light. This is a German section. The rush did not come until after 10 o'clock. The women's vote was light, running approximately only a fourth of the men's vote.

In Queens and Richmond there was less of an early rush than in the other boroughs, except in Long Island City and Stapleton. Here distances to polling places are greater than in the other boroughs and many voters came to polling places in motor cars.

Service men and ex-service men were much in evidence throughout the city and seemed to violate with impunity the statutory injunction against electioneering in the immediate vicinity of the polls. In some places they were in the polling places urging voters to give affirmative answer to the question on the $45,000,000 bonus proposal. In others they had hailed placards urging an affirmative vote on this proposal beside the entrance to the polling places.

Governor Smith and Mrs. Smith cast their ballots shortly before 1 o'clock at Public School 1, Henry and Oliver Streets. They came in an automobile accompanied by Alfred Johnson, former City Chamberlain, and two detectives.

The polling place was crowded and Governor Smith received an ovation. He shook hands with friends, one of whom slapped him on the shoulder shouting: "Hallo, Governor, old scout, how's things?" The Governor waited in line for fifteen minutes before he voted. Then Congressman Dan Riordan came to the rescue and got ballots 300 and 301 for the Governor and his wife. Mrs. Smith found the pencil in her voting booth out of commission and had to call for a new one. On the sidewalk Governor and Mrs. Smith were photographed and cheered by a waiting crowd.

Mrs. Katherine Smith, the Governor's mother, was earlier at her polling place, Public School 18, Poplar and Hicks Streets, Brooklyn. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. John Glynn. The Governor's mother was permitted to take her ballot to a window and mark it, because she could not do it in the dim light of the voting booth. It took her a minute and a half to vote.

"I hope the Governor wins," she said, "although I would like to have him here in New York, where I could see him more often. I think it looks very bright for him."

Hylan Forced to Quit Line.

Mayor Hylan made an ineffectual attempt to vote before he went to the City Hall, but found the polling place at 1,144 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, a stationery store, so crowded that he had to give up the attempt. He returned at 1:30 o'clock with Mrs. Hylan and voted ballot 336, spending about two minutes in the voting booth. Mrs. Hylan voted ballot 337 and took three minutes to do it. Mayor Hylan declined to make any prediction.

Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for President four years ago, voted at 7:45 o'clock at 701 Madison Avenue. There were about twenty voters in line when he arrived. He waited his turn.

Carrie Chapman Catt, former President of the National Woman Suffrage Association and Mary Garrett Hay, President of the League of Women Voters, cast their ballots early in the Forty-eighth Election District of the Eleventh Assembly District, at 2,879 Broadway. Mrs. Catt said she voted a split ticket, against Senator Wadsworth.

Chauncey M. Depew voted at Public School 69, the polling place for the Ninth Election District of the Fifteenth Assembly District. He went to the polling place at 152 West Forty-fourth Street with Mrs. Depew. He wore an ulster and a silk hat. Seventy-five persons were waiting but Mr. Depew was offered a place at the head of the line. He declined to accept, but predicted he was voting for a winner.

Charles F. Murphy voted early in the afternoon at Livingstone Place and East Seventeenth Street.

The speed with which the voting had progressed made it possible for many election boards to complete their work practically at the closing hour provided by the law and turn the ballot boxes over to the canvassing boards. In approximately one-half of the 2,737 polling places from ten to thirty voters were in line at the closing hour.

EPIPHANY CHURCH FIRE DOES $10,000 DAMAGE

Workman's Blow Torch Starts Blaze—Altar and Reredos Escape.

About $10,000 damage resulted from a fire which broke out shortly before noon yesterday in the Epiphany Episcopal Church, Thirty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue, which was undergoing renovation. A blow torch used by a workman on the roof of the church is believed to have caused the blaze.

The fire was confined to the front part of the church, the principal damage being near the roof over the entrance. Pews were damaged somewhat by water, but the altar and reredos of the church were untouched.

About $26,000 has recently been expended in repairs for the church building, which was erected seventy years ago, and several men were at work about the church. George L. Hubbell, Jr., of 263 Lexington Avenue, next door to the church, saw smoke coming from the roof and called the attention of the workmen, who organized a bucket brigade, while Hubbell ran to turn in an alarm.

Fire Chief Kenlon was in the neighborhood and heard the clanging of engines going to the fire. He hurried there, arriving about the same time as Hook and Ladder Company 24, which set to work immediately running hose into the church. Chief Kenlon, fearing the fire would spread, sent in a second alarm, which brought out additional apparatus.

Fireman John Fagan of Hook and Ladder 24 suffered lacerations of the left hand when struck by a piece of plate which fell from the burning roof. He was attended by a doctor of Bellevue Hospital and returned to his quarters.

GIRL OF 6 KILLED BY AUTO.

Witness Commandeers Machine and Causes Arrest After Mile's Pursuit.

When crossing Edgecombe Avenue and 141st Street in the rain last evening Elizabeth Sweeney, 6 years old, of 115 Edgecombe Avenue was killed by an automobile. The child was returning to her home from a bakery when the vehicle struck her and hurled her ten feet against the curb. The driver of the car, according to Morris Glauberg of 612 St. Nicholas Avenue, who witnessed the accident, fled through Edgecombe Avenue.

Later Glauberg caused the arrest of Victor Graham, 27 years old, an advertising manager, of 593 Edgecombe Avenue on a charge of operating the vehicle without a license. Graham was arrested at 121st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, more than a mile from the scene of the accident, after Glauberg had commandeered an automobile operated by Fred Lind of 147 West Ninety-sixth Street and followed Graham's car, in which were Graham's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Graham, Mrs. Alfred J. Behrens, owner of the automobile, and Mr. and Mrs. "Jack" Gesundheit of Johannesburg, South Africa.

Glauberg summoned Policeman Austin and when the automobile party arrived at the West 135th Street Station they declared they knew nothing of the child's death. Gesundheit, who is an uncle of the operator of the car, declared they were on their way to the Hippodrome, and were sure their automobile did not strike the child.

Graham was questioned at the station for several hours by Detective Sergeant Boyle and stuck to his original story. Glauberg, on the other hand, insisted it was the car operated by Graham which killed the child. Graham then was locked up on a charge of homicide.

BUILDING GRAFTERS HIDE PROOF OF GUILT

UNTERMYER ON THE TRAIL

Federal Authorities Expected to Find Missing Papers—Threats of Death to Contractors.

Samuel Untermyer, associate counsel to the Lockwood Committee, hurried to this city from his home at Greystone yesterday in response to information that books and records of great importance in the investigation of price fixing and illegal combinations of building material manufacturers had either been destroyed or removed from the State.

After several days' search investigators for the committee reported to those in charge that information in their possession tended to show that the records had been removed from the State since the beginning of the inquiry by the Lockwood Committee.

Not only would the records have shed great light on many shady schemes for fixing prices but the information itself, in the form in which it was kept, would have been sufficient, it is believed, to have caused the immediate indictment of a large group of men implicated in the price fixing scandal.

Mr. Untermyer called into consultation Leonard Wallstein and Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger and Joseph Kaufman, assisting him in the inquiry. Mr. Kaufman was named by Attorney General Palmer to represent the Federal authorities in the investigation. The conference was held at 2 East Fifty-Fourth Street, Mr. Untermyer's town house, and the entire situation was discussed and plans laid for the return to this State of the records and for beginning immediate action against those responsible for breaking the law. It was said that the destruction or removal of records was a misdemeanor carrying with it three years' imprisonment.

The conference took place shortly after Mr. Wallstein and Mr. Berger adjourned for breakfast after an all-night session with witnesses who are said to have given valuable evidence of graft in the building industry and of extortion practiced against contractors who found themselves helpless unless they acceded to the demands made on them.

It is believed that some of the witnesses examined yesterday will appear before the Lockwood Committee at its session in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall tomorrow, and their evidence will be presented to the Grand Jury at an early date.

The investigators learned of a feud between rival unions in which contractors found themselves between two fires. Threats were made against them first by one union and then by a second, with the result that they had to pay heavily under penalty of being shot or stabbed by members of one organization or the other.

Witnesses who may appear reluctant or who may balk at answering questions before the committee may be taken before the Grand Jury, where it is hoped their evidence will be made available.

Federal co-operation has been promised in the search for the missing papers and it is expected that witnesses who may be able to shed important light on the disappearance of the documents will be summoned for examination soon. Evidence obtained by the investigators tends to show that there was collusion among members of certain manufacturers' associations in the destruction of papers, and if this is proved scores of manufacturers will find themselves under fire.

The machinery of the Department of Justice will be started at once in a hunt for the papers. The documents are said to be of transcendent value to the inquiry, and while the investigators were disappointed at their disappearance, confidence was felt in the Federal authorities recovering them.

Mr. Untermyer will begin the presentation of evidence before the Additional Grand Jury in the Criminal Courts Building at 11 A. M. today. It is understood that a number of witnesses have signified their intention of going before the Grand Jury and telling what they know about certain practices among manufacturers and between contractors and labor leaders.

So many offers of assistance have been made to Mr. Untermyer by men desirous of being called as witnesses before the Grand Jury that it is believed that the lawyer will have to ask for additional counsel to aid him in the inquiry.

ITALIAN ARTISTS STRIKE TO BACK AUGUSTUS JOHN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—According to The Daily Express, Lord Leverhulme's decapitation of his portrait by Augustus John has caused so much indignation in Italian art circles that a one day strike as a mark of protest was declared by the Confederation Generale des Rittartisti Italians.

For twenty-four hours no painter in Italy worked, and masons, canvas weavers, color grinders, sculptors, architects, picture dealers, packers and models joined in a sympathetic strike.

An effigy representing Leverhulme was carried in a procession at Florence and solemnly burned, the procession afterward placing a wreath on the altar of St. John.

RUTH ADAMS'S WEDDING.

City Club Thronged with Guests, Including Many First Voters.

The Women's City Club, 22 Park Avenue, was the scene last night of a most enthusiastic gathering of women, who received the election returns. The returns, which came by special wire, were read on three floors, all of them crowded with City Club members and their guests, the rules of the club being suspended for the evening and men being admitted to all floors.

A buffet supper was served from 10:30 to midnight, and many of the members who had dinner guests remained through the evening. Late comers sat in the halls and crowds of young girls filled the stairs and gave little shrieks of delight at the news which was favorable to their candidates.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, President of the City Club, long time Republican, having cast her vote for Harding early in the day, presided on the drawing floor of the club and read the returns as they were brought upstairs. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who voted for the Democratic candidate for president, was present, as were other prominent women, including Miss Virginia Potter and Mrs. Frederick Nathan.

Everything was quiet at the Women's State Republican Headquarters in the Vanderbilt, where workers have had a hard campaign, with weekly luncheons and meetings and for the last weeks a school for voters every evening. They received the returns from the hotel wires. Mrs. Belle de Rivera was one of the guests.

1,500 DANCE WHILE READING RETURNS

RESULTS ON HUGE SCREEN

Girls in Columbia Caps Sell Horns and Clappers—Older Set in the Boxes.

For the first time in social history Presidential election returns de luxe were shown last night. The occasion was the Election Ball, held at the Hotel Commodore, where hundreds of the socially prominent, grande dames and débutantes, assembled to dance, while the returns were flashed on a huge screen at one end of the great ballroom.

About 1,500 attended the ball, and the dancing was continuous most of the night. Those whirling on the floor seemingly had no difficulty in reading the returns, and the enthusiasm over the favorite candidates appeared to add to the zest of tripping the light fantastic toe. The forty-eight boxes, each seating six guests, were occupied by the older set, who enjoyed supper shortly after midnight, served at small tables. There were two supper rooms besides.

The idea of dancing while reading the returns on the screen appealed to many women voters, who came from their country homes to cast their ballot and then spent the evening at the ball. Society folk still in residence in New Jersey, Connecticut, the Berkshires, Westchester and Long Island were largely represented. The ball was given under the auspices of St. Timothy's Alumnæ in aid of St. Timothy's Community Centre, of which Mrs. Morgan Jopling is the President.

A huge American flag was the only decoration, except for the costumes of the Junior Committee, who wore Columbia caps and carried baskets of horns, clappers and other noise-making toys, with cigarettes on the side, for those who wished to have it out in a smoke when their favorite candidate showed signs of being snowed under.

Mrs. De Coursey Fales was head of the committee in charge. Her aids included Mrs. C. Thayer Adams, Mrs. Arthur Choate, Mrs. William C. Clark, Mrs. John A. Dix, Mrs. Paul Degener, Mrs. Trubee Davison, Mrs. Frederick A. Codley, Mrs. John Kerr, Mrs. O'Donnell Iselin, Mrs. R. Penn Smith, Mrs. Gordon Macdonald, and the Misses Hilah French, Isabel Shotter, and Rosamund Sherwood. Henry Renwick Sedgwick was head of the floor committee, while Miss Genevieve Clendenin presided over the Junior Committee, made up of debutantes of this and the last two seasons.

Among the boxholders were Mrs. John Cotton Smith, Mrs. James R. Strong, and Mrs. Ambrose Clark, who entertained at dinner before the ball; Mrs. John Pratt, Mrs. George Whitney, Mrs. Fitch Gilbert, Mrs. William C. Clark, Mrs. H. P. Davison, Mrs. J. Herbert Ballantine, Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., Mrs. J. J. Higginson, Mrs. Stephen Birch, Mrs. Robert McKelvey, Mrs. Fales, Mrs. James B. Taylor, Clarence H. Mackay, Alonzo Potter.

Among the patronesses were Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. Charles T. Barney, Mrs. Charles A. Bristed, Mrs. Irving T. Bush, Mrs. Carl de Gersdorff, Mrs. Le Grand Griswold, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Oliver Gould Jennings, Mrs. Rudolph Kissel, Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, Mrs. W. Gedney Low, Mrs. E. D. Morgan, Jr., Mrs. William Barclay Parsons, Mrs. George B. Post, Jr., Mrs. Harold Pratt, Mrs. George E. Turnure, Mrs. W. Seward Webb, Jr., and Mrs. Rufus S. Patterson.

FRANCE TO HONOR UNKNOWN DEAD

With Heart of Gambetta Soldier's Body Will Be Interred in Pantheon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—With the heart of Gambetta, the great founder of the Third Republic, there will be carried to a resting place in the Pantheon on Armistice Day the body of an unknown French soldier killed in the war. This decision was taken at a Cabinet meeting today in agreement with a popular demand since a similar decision was made in England.

As soon as the Chamber meets the Government will introduce a bill authorizing the exhumation and transference of the body to be taken from one of the many thousands of graves in which lie men who by reason of the manner of their death were never identified.

Details of the ceremony have not yet been fixed, but M. Honnorat, Minister of Education and Fine Arts, who is charged with the matter, says he intends that the body shall be escorted in procession by twenty-five survivors of the first Battle of the Marne, clad in the old uniform with the famous red trousers dear to French hearts, and another twenty-five police in the horizon blue of the last years of the war. The ceremony will be only a part of the official commemoration of the foundation of the Republic fifty years ago, but it is felt that this manner of recognizing the heroism of all those who defended the country is a fitting counterpart to the transference of the heart of Gambetta to this burial place of most famous Frenchmen.

With Victor Hugo, Carnot and a score of great warriors, writers and scientists, will rest the body of "Untel, de l'Armée Francaise." As in England, care will be taken that no one shall know the identity of the man whose body is thus honored in name of all, so that each of the thousands of families, whose dead were never identified may have the belief that possibly it is their father or brother who rests in the Panthéon.

The suggestion is made that ten bodies should be exhumed from old front line cemeteries and brought to a mortuary chapel near Paris, where from among them the Minister can pick at hazard one for the supreme honor. In a great procession which will accompany the body will be all the flags of the regiments in one of which he fought and as well those flags which have been surrendered by Germany in accordance with the peace treaty from among the trophies captured from France in 1870.

NEBRASKA'S SPEED HUMBLES RUTGERS

Cornhuskers' Lightning Gridiron Tactics Sweep Them to Victory by 28 to 0.

FUMBLES PLAYED PART

Sanford's Pupils Err at Critical Times—Crowd of 15,000 Watches Battle at Polo Grounds.

They grow something besides corn out on the prairies of Nebraska. An avalanche of football warriors descended yesterday upon the unsuspecting Rutgers eleven at the Polo Grounds, a great, husky, fearless mass of gridiron terrors, coached by a square-jawed individual named Henry Schulte, and, when they had finished with George Foster Sanford's cripples, the score stood 28 to 0.

A crowd of more than 15,000 brought umbrellas and raincoats to the baseball lot after they had attended to their civic duty of voting, and for the rest of the afternoon, wondered if all western elevens were of the same breed. If so, their advice to Eastern graduate managers is to dispense with intersectional football games. New York won't see any faster or harder football all the rest of this season. Yesterday's first period left the spectators breathless, and what Nebraska's gatling-gun hammering must have done to Rutgers was evident in the second quarter when the cornhuskers pushed across the first two of their touchdowns.

Their tactics were lightning-fast; they had been drilled to execute their plays in rapid-fire order, all aimed to sweep their opponents off their feet with this speed. But if any old-fogy spectators of an ancient school of football were skeptical over this radicalism, they received the surprise of their lives to watch it continue. An ordinary team would have welcomed the two minutes' intermission between the first and second periods, but not Nebraska. Those giant Bohemians, Hubka and Pucelik, and that dodging eel-like backfield sensation, Hartley, trotted to the other end of the gridiron eager for more. Water boys who scampered out from the side lines with sponges and dippers were waved aside in disgust by those rough-and-ready huskies.

Rutgers Good at Times.

Nebraska, three times in this breathless, break-neck first period, crowded Rutgers down to its last defenses, but each time was unable to jimmy its way over the Jerseymen's goal. Rutgers did a full, man-sized job in halting these advances at the crucial times. Again in the third period, after the typical Sanfordian riot act had been read to the Rutgers battlers during the half-time intermission, the team from New Brunswick played as if it meant business. Captain Turk Gardner, who had been held on the sidelines under a blanket, took his place at left half and, in response to a cheer from the Rutgers stands, a strengthening of the whole machine was perceptible, Rutgers's old enemy, the fumble, alone prevented scoring. After Hilliard had recovered a fumble by Hubka and had run the ball to within 20 yards of Nebraska's goal the very next play was a Rutgers fumble, which a towering cornhusker picked up, and Sanford's team lost its best chance of the day.

The Nebraskans expected to perform yesterday before the eyes of their former professor of mathematics, one John J. Pershing, who as a Lieutenant just out of West Point spent a long enough period at Lincoln to get a degree in law. The General did not put in an appearance, but Nebraska played none the poorer for his absence. He has another chance to do some cheering, for on Saturday the cornhuskers will meet Pennsylvania state, recognized as one of the strongest teams in the East.

Forward Passes Successful.

Two touchdowns in the second period and two in the final quarter provided the day's scoring. Nebraska clings to the old-fashioned relayed pass from quarterback to runner, but when straight plays were being analyzed too exactly for comfort by the Rutgers forwards the cornhuskers interspersed long and short, high and low forward passes, two of which resulted in touchdowns.

Not only did Rutgers fail utterly to negotiate a single first down during the opening period, but it had the ball only three times, twice trying to rush it, only to punt, and once punting immediately. One of Vorhees's short punts gave Nebraska the ball forty yards from its opponents' goal and thence began the first march toward a touchdown, with the wizard, Harley, and the veteran star, Hubka, alternating in rushing. But on the half-yard line Rutgers held and wrested the ball away after a profitless fourth down. After punting to midfield Rutgers was again pressed backward to its 15-yard line. Nebraska lost its second chance here by pinning its hopes on a forward pass grounded. Again Rutgers took the ball on its 20-yard mark and used doubtful judgment by trying a forward pass so close to its goal. But although Hilliard juggled the catch Vorhees recovered the ball legally, after a gain of twenty yards.

Maloney, Rutgers' only consistent ground gainer and a tearing, plunging little quarterback, if a faulty general, clicked off five yards, but then had to order a punt. Again Nebraska launched its irresistible march, one of Hartley's gains of 22 yards contributing in the advance. But at the 20-yard mark, for the third time, Nebraska lost a chance, this time when Rutgers again held for downs. Another short punt gave the Cornhuskers the ball at midfield. Gains by Hartley, who looks as good as Gipp of Notre Dame or Roberts of Centre, and Howarth, who had replaced Wright, moved the pigskin to Rutgers' 4-yard line when the whistle closed the first quarter. On the opening play after lining up again at the other end of the gridiron Hartley catapulted over for the touchdown and Captain Bill Day, who has a perfect fielding average at kicking goals, added the seventh point.

Rutgers Tumbles Again.

After the kick-off, Nebraska advanced the ball to midfield only to meet sturdy opposition and lose it on downs. Here was another chance for Rutgers, but a fumble happened here—the wrong time and place, as always—and Pucenik sprawled over the ball. The Cornhuskers first tried rushing, but were closed in by the Rutgers' ends and secondary defense for no gains, and, after a forward pass had gone for naught, Weller made a vain attempt at a drop kick from the 33-yard mark.

Maloney couldn't run all the time for Rutgers and, after moving the ball ahead nine yards on one plunge had to punt to Newman on his own 30-yard line. Hubka dodged his way for a 28-yard gain, but a 15-yard penalty forced the Westerners to punt. Rutgers here tried one of its pet tricks, a short underhand forward pass over the line of scrimmage, which netted four yards. This, coupled with Mort Redmond's 6-yard gain on a delayed pass furnished Rutgers its first down of the game.

The Cornhuskers blocked one of Redmond's punts and from midfield moved to within 15 yards of the Jerseymen's line. Here Captain Day went back for a try at a placement goal. This was half blocked by Rutgers' forwards, but Day himself by some feat of contortion recovered the truant pigskin. A couple of rushes availed nothing, and again Nebraska resorted to the aerial game. Hubka scaled a forward-passed spiral over the players' heads which Swanson caught across the goal line and dangerously close to the side line, for the second touchdown of the game. Again Day added the extra point.

Nebraska's poor interference, a weakness that was glaringly evident throughout the game, spoiled a wide-open chance for a touchdown early in the fourth period. Rutgers punted to Moore, who eluded the whole Rutgers defense and started from midfield toward the goal line with only Maloney standing in his way. Moore had three towering Nebraska giants for his interference and all were well placed, but Maloney outtricked them all, dove in through their legs, and brought Moore down on the 15-yard mark. This halted Nebraska only temporarily, however, for four rushes placed the ball a yard from the coveted chalk mark and Moore plunged over for the score.

Fourth and Last Touchdown.

Nebraska's fourth and last touchdown was made possible when Moore intercepted one of Maloney's forward passes on Rutgers's 43-yard line. Thompson, who had replaced Hartley, tore around left end for an 18-yard gain, and Dana, who succeeded Hubka, contributed another first down on two rushes. On Rutgers' 15-yard line Thompson heaved a rather high forward pass toward Swanson. The ball actually carromed off the hands of two Rutgers men, neither of whom could hold on to it, and Swanson was able to jump up, gather it in before it could drop to the ground and scoot over for a touchdown. Day kicked the goal for the twenty-eighth point.

Rutgers made only one first down in the first two periods of play, while Nebraska was netting twelve exclusive of those provided as the result of penalties. In the second half each made five. Rutgers was penalized for a total of only 20 yards, while Nebraska drew about 59 yards of punishment from Referee Tufts, the last penalty of about 19 yards being half the distance to its goal. Rutgers was forced to punt eight times to Nebraska's six. The Cornhuskers tried seven forward passes, three working successfully. Two of them, for fifteen yards each, accounted for two of the touchdowns. Rutgers resorted to aerial tactics eleven times and worked four successfully, the longest being a gain of twenty yards in the first period.

The Westerners did a bit of sightseeing last night and attended the performance at the Hippodrome. Coach Schulte will take his Cornhuskers to State College, Pa., this morning for a couple of days' practice in preparation for the clash with Penn State on Saturday.

FORDHAM PREP LOSES.

Field Goal Enables St. Peter's Eleven to Win Close Game.

Fordham Prep's football eleven ran smack up against a snag yesterday in the skirmish with St. Peter's Prep School on the latter's gridiron in Jersey City. When the battle ended the Bronx schoolboys were hugging the short end of a 16 to 13 score. A goal from placement by Captain Gaven, St. Peter's quarterback, in the third period, decided the issue in favor of the Skeeter State schoolboys. At the time the teams were deadlocked at 13 points each.

Two spectacular end runs by Brogan and Slane supplied St. Peters's touchdowns in the first and second periods. Fordham's touchdowns were made in the first and final quarters, when Shea and McBride crossed the line for the Bronx lads.

SECRET DRILL FOR W. AND J.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 2.—Despite a showery afternoon, a muddy field and a slippery ball, there was no let up today in the severity of the Washington and Jefferson football practice in preparation for the Syracuse game. Backfield Coach Fleming was on the job today following his return from Worcester, and gave the men first-hand information on his observations of the Orange against Holy Cross. Fleming, however, said he did not find out much at Worcester, as Syracuse did not use many formations and executed many of these poorly. However, he was greatly impressed with the strength and power of the Orange.

Fleming had charge of the scrubs in today's work, coaching them in the use of Syracuse formations against the 'Varsity in the scrimmage. The practice today, which was one of the most painstaking the coaches have yet staged, was again behind closed gates. The supposition is that the coaches are working up special stuff to spring at the Salt City at the end of the week.

The good physical condition of the Red and Black squad is indicated by the ability of every man to get into the scrimmage practice today. Unless they suffer injuries during the remainder of the week every man should be fit for the clash in the Archbold Stadium.

Violet Eleven Shows Increased Strength and Scores First Victory of Season.

In a game replete with thrills the New York University football team triumphed over the Trinity College eleven by the score of 31 to 20 at Ohio Field yesterday afternoon. The largest crowd that ever packed itself into the N. Y. U.'s stands witnessed the game and was kept on edge throughout the contest. It was N. Y. U.'s first victory of the season.

The local team appeared to be more than eleven points better than its opponents, but the New Englanders were always on the alert to take advantage of the slightest misplay by the Violet team. N. Y. U. made eighteen first downs to the visitors' eight. The Violet made all but one of its first downs by straight football, while Trinity made several with the aid of forward passes.

In the overhead game the visitors were much superior to N. Y. U. They had all kinds of passes, long ones and short ones, and threw them from all formations. The New Yorkers' defense was bewildered at the accuracy of the passing and seemed to be unable to cover all of the eligible men. Two of the Trinity touchdowns were the result of these tactics.

The home team lost no time in scoring. Three minutes after the whistle was blown it had the ball under the goal posts. N. Y. U. kicked off, but Trinity was forced to punt and the New York team marched down the field. Nelson and Ryan took turns carrying the ball, the former hitting off tackle while the fullback ploughed through the line. In this way the ball was advanced to the 10-yard line and Ryan then broke through for the touchdown. The attempt to kick the goal failed.

Straight football continued to be the tactics employed by the local collegians. It proved effective, as they made three first downs in succession, putting the ball on Trinity's 10-yard line. Here Ryan took the ball, but, as he hit the line, the leather slipped from his grasp and rolled toward the sideline. Bolles, the visiting left halfback, scooped it up and supported by excellent interference, he ran ninety yards for a touchdown.

Violet Continues Scoring.

After three plays in the second period Ryan smashed through for another touchdown. Nelson scored another a few minutes later after a successful march down the field in which straight football featured the Violets' work.

With the score standing 18 to 6 in the home team's favor, Coach Gargan sent in his second string backs in the second half. Jackson, who had been running the team till then, was shifted to fullback and Bourginon went to quarter. While it was fresh, this combination did good work, but for lack of weight and experience, and when Trinity pushed two touchdowns over, the Violet coach was forced to send Nelson and Ryan back into the fray.

The second string backs had started off with a rush, McCran making one run of 20 yards and following this with a 10-yard advance. The quarterback called for what looked to be the same play and the whole Trinity team rushed for the place where McCran had been plunging through, but it was the reverse play, and Bates skirted the left end and went 20 yards to cross the line.

At this point, the Trinity team opened up its aerial attack and made things uncomfortable for the Violets. With the ball in midfield, Bolles hurled the ball to Nordlund on the end and he raced 55 yards to the goal. Seeing that the overhead game was working well, Trinity kept it up and advanced the ball to the 5-yard line by a series of short passes and Murphy went through the line for a score.

Gargan then sent Nelson and Ryan back into the game. Ryan, refreshed by his rest, again started his off-tackle runs, and then Jackson, who had returned to quarter when Bourginon left the game, threw a forward to Nelson who made a beautiful catch and was downed on the 5-yard line. He carried it over on the next play and this ended the scoring.

Nelson a Promising Player.

The Violets uncovered a promising player in Nelson. He was put into the game yesterday in the place of Captain Weinheimer, who is out with a torn muscle in his ankle. Besides carring the ball he did the kicking for his team and got off some fine punts. He handled the ball well and is good at catching forward passes. He is still somewhat green, but with a little coaching he should develop into a dependable back.

A vast improvement was shown in the working of Gargan's machine yesterday. Although it does not run as smoothly as the coach desires, it is in much better shape than it was a week ago.

For Trinity, Bolles and Nordlund did the best work. The halfback was a consistent ground gainer and an excellent broken field runner. He showed his heels to the entire Violet team on his 90-yard run, and on the defense he was the best of the visiting backs.

FIELD GOAL DECIDES GAME.

Captain Greve Kicks Commercial to 3-0 Victory Over Boys' High.

A spectacular 38-yard drop kick by Captain Hank Greve pulled a game out of the fire yesterday for Commercial High School on the Commercial gridiron and sent Boys' H. S. down in defeat by the score of 3 to 0. Greve's decisive kick came at a time when it appeared the strong Commercial team would be held even. Boys' was battling doggedly on its own 30-yard line to stem Commercial's advance. After three assaults had failed the Scarlet and Gray Captain dropped back 8 yards and sent the pigskin sailing on its victory message over the heads of the Boys' eleven.

The result brought Commercial a step nearer the Brooklyn scholastic championship title. The team's only remaining obstacle to this distinction is the New Utrecht eleven, with which the Scarlet and Gray will close the season.

COMMERCE DEFEATS MORRIS HIGH, 16-7

Morris High School's prospects of figuring in the Public Schools Athletic League's scholastic football championship for the Manhattan-Bronx division, were shattered yesterday on the Catholic Protectory Grounds at Van Nest by the powerful High School of Commerce gridiron machine. The Orange and Blue lads smothered Morris's efforts under a 16 to 7 defeat, which eliminated the wearers of the Maroon from further consideration as a championship prospect.

Commerce's victory was well earned. The West Side eleven started strongly and almost before the Bronx lads realized it the Maroon was trailing on a 7 to 0 score. The speedy touchdown scored by Commerce acted as a spur for the Bronx schoolboys and through the succeeding three periods they fought back valiantly every inch of the way. Commerce's strong line, a varied offensive and greater harmony in the ranks of the Orange and Blue proved too great a handicap for the Bronx lads to overcome.

The contest was witnessed by about 10,000 enthusiastic, partisan admirers of both teams. Every inch of space in two rather inadequate grandstands, was occupied and thousands overlapped and overran the field, jamming the sidelines and the ground back of the respective goal lines. The crowd, disorderly to the point of unruliness in their eagerness to closely follow the progress of the game, gave officials a busy time of it trying to keep the field clear. The task was impossible, notwithstanding the threats of Referee Shearer to forfeit the game.

Bunny Bunora, Commerce captain, and Lou Gehrig, "the Babe Ruth of the school," contributed the plays which brought Commerce victory. These two players, figuring in practically every action on the field, carried the brunt of the Commerce attack and led their team in defensive work which frustrated many of Morris's attempts at scoring. Between them they produced the points by which the Orange and Blue emerged victorious.

DE WITT CLINTON WINS.

West Side School Eleven Downs Stuyvesant by 17-to-0 Score.

De Witt Clinton High School's unbeaten football eleven took the Stuyvesant High School pigskin chasers into camp yesterday in their gridiron clash before a crowd of about 10,000 at City College Stadium. The fast, smooth-working Red and Black clad schoolboys, displaying a characteristic game, swept their east side rivals before them in a well-planned attack and emerged from the struggle triumphant by the margin of 17 to 0. Through their victory Coach Bill Cook's boys advanced a step nearer the local scholastic championship. By the same token Stuyvesant's prospects of landing the mythical title went a-glimmering.

A mispluy and an element of luck figured in De Witt Clinton's two touchdowns. In the second period Friedlander and Sam Levitz led in carrying the ball in a series of line smashes which gradually forced Stuyvesant back to its 15-yard line. The Red and Black continued its assault, but, with their backs to their own line, Stuyvesant's defense braced and Clinton was held for downs. A forward pass was attempted by Stuyvesant, but Mare fumbled. Like a flash, Stanley, Clinton tackle, was on the ball, and with a neat recovery snatched the leather and sprinted 15 yards to a touchdown. Payn kicked for the extra point.

De Witt Clinton's second touchdown came in the third quarter on an attempted punt, which went awry. The Red and Black, following the kickoff, continued its battering at Stuyvesant's line and drove the east siders back until within about a foot of a score. Stuyvesant's eleven threw every ounce of its strength in a determined defensive on this occasion and held for downs. Griffin, Stuyvesant fullback, dropped back behind his own goal line for a punt. On the kick, however, the leather rebounded off the crossbar, falling almost directly in front of Mails, Clinton end, who fell on the ball for a touchdown. Payn again kicked the goal.

With two minutes to play in the final quarter, Coon supplied De Witt Clinton's remaining points when he kicked a field goal from the 33-yard line.

BUCKNELL HAS HARD DRILL.

Coach Reynolds Getting Men in Shape to Meet Lafayette.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 2.—Coach Reynolds allowed the Bucknell men just enough time to loosen up their muscles yesterday and work out the bruises of the St. Bonaventure game last Saturday. The rest he devoted to a lecture in which he tried to impress on the men the difficulty of the game they have before them this week, so that the real preparation for Lafayette was begun today.

The players are all in excellent condition, and, barring injuries in scrimmage, should start the Easton game at their best. McDermott, Homan, Reed, Bihl, Morrett, Dooley and Julian on the line, and Mangan, Captain Kostos, Bowser and Wilsbach in the backfield, compose the machine which Coach Reynolds will try to whip into shape to bring home the bacon this week end.

This entire week will be spent in polishing up the plays and drilling in fundamentals. This afternoon a long period was spent on the tackling dummy, the charging machine and the bucking strap. Then the ends and backs had a long drill in receiving and throwing forward passes, while the linemen drilled in charging. Two teams then ran through a dummy scrimmage, the eleven mentioned above representing the 'Varsity, and Wargo, Coone, Hall, Morgan, Lauster, McGraw and Butler on the line, and Bellack, Dayhoff, Gadmiec and Dietrick in the backfield, representing the second stringers.

Tilden and Washburn Start Tennis Trip to Antipodes

Speeded by the good wishes of every American follower of lawn tennis William T. Tilden, 2d, and Watson M. Washburn, the Eastern members of the Davis Cup team, left here yesterday on their long journey to Auckland, New Zealand, in quest of the famous international emblem of tennis supremacy. They travel straight to San Francisco, where they will join William M. Johnston and Captain Samuel Hardy, the other members of the team. After a few exhibition matches in San Francisco they will sail for Australia, on Nov. 12. American tennis fans believe that Tilden and Johnston at their best are capable of bringing back the cup unaided. The one question is whether, under strange conditions, especially of climate, they will be able to reach their highest standard of play. American players in other pilgrimages to Australia, especially in 1911, when Larned, Wright and McLaughlin composed the team, have found the climate considerable of a handicap.

CORNELL'S COACHES WORK MEN IN RAIN

'Varsity Football Squad Put Through Long Preparation for Dartmouth Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 2.—A steady rain this afternoon interfered somewhat with Coach Gilmur Dobie's plans for a big Cornell scrimmage, but did not keep the 'Varsity squad from staging a long workout on the muddy field. The silent Cornell coach directed the practice into a series of dummy scrimmages against Dartmouth plays as reported to him by his scouts, and the practice was thoroughly satisfactory.

All of the regulars were back in harness today, Gouinlock, the end, who has been laid off for a week, being the last to report. He seems to be fit as a fiddle, but there is some doubt as to whether he will be able to win a place in the lineup by Saturday, as Tommy Finn's work against Rutgers pleased Dobie.

Finn is playing a keen defensive game, and his stout right leg is another important item in his favor. Against Rutgers the former Exeter and last year's Varsity end got off several 50-yard punts, and if it should develop that Dobie decides to keep Carey on the bench and send Hoff into the game at quarterback it may be essential for him to place Finn at end for his punting. With the exception of Carey, Finn is the best punter on the Cornell squad.

Interest in the Dartmouth game is at fever heat, more than 7,000 seats in the Cornell section having been disposed of here. Fraternities and club parties by motor truck, motor car, special trains and blind baggage are all on the program, and a great exodus from this little town is due to start Friday noon.

ELI LINEUP CHANGED AGAIN.

Eleven That Will Face Brown on Saturday Is Still Unsettled.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 2.—That Yale's lineup for the Brown game is still unsettled was shown today when Head Coach Tad Jones made four more changes, sending Ed Quaile and Herbert Herr back to the guard positions, displacing Harry Cross at centre and giving the berth to Billy Galvin again, and reinstating Howard Campbell at left halfback. Thorne Murphy and Herbert Kempton were alternated at quarterback.

Captain Tim Callahan and John Acosta were at guard during the signal rehearsal, but both are still suffering from injured ankles, and Jones does not expect to use them before the Princeton game. The coaches have settled upon Herr as one of the guards for the Brown battle, and today tried Ed Quaile for the other. It was his first scrimmaging since he was injured three weeks ago. He developed rapidly this Fall from the third eleven and was regarded as good a regular timber when injured. If he does not win a guard position against Brown, Albert Into will be used, but the coaches are inclined to replace Mackay with Into, despite the fact that Mackay played today, while Into rested.

Today's scrimmage was the first since the Colgate clash, which Yale and the regulars who faced the 'Varsity second-string players were able to produce only a touchdown and field goal. Frank Kelly, who has become the most reliable Eli scoring back since the crippling of Malcolm Aldrich, took the ball across from the 5-yard mark for a touchdown after Thorne Murphy, just after he had been called into the play, lifted the leather between the uprights for the field goal.

The 'Varsity's forward passing game was displayed in finished form, Herbert Compton tossing for more than fifty yards. Eli Cutler receiving gaily deftly. One of them breezed the play to the second team's 5-yard line, where Kelly's plunge took it across on the next scrimmage.

Murphy attempted two drop kicks for goal, but Bean, tackle of the seconds, leaped high and blocked one. The other was the more difficult of the pair, going over from the 35-yard line.

MANUAL TRAINING WINS.

Beats Erasmus High by Two Touchdowns—Beattie Stars.

Bill Beattie, Manual Training High School's ponderous fullback, crashed pell-mell through Erasmus Hall High School's line on two occasions yesterday for a brace of touchdowns which brought victory to his team by the score of 13 to 0. The game was played at Ebbets Field. Beattie broke through the Buff and Blue defense for the first time in the second quarter, when, by gradually forcing the Erasmus Hall eleven back in a steady advance, Manual Training carried the ball to within two yards of a touchdown. Three plunges failed to enhance the Manual Training position, but on the fourth Beattie smashed through the line for the score. Kelly kicked the goal.

Erasmus Hall, flashing a superb defense, held the opposition scoreless in the third quarter, but the steady battering to which the team was subjected had its effect in the final period when the Buff and Blue defense became ragged. Near the end of the period Beattie dashed through right guard on a twenty-five yard run which gave Manual Training another touchdown. Tobie missed the goal.

The lineup:

TEBO ELEVEN IS WINNER.

Beats Brooklyn F. C. Soccer Team in U. S. F. A. Cup Tie.

Repeating their performance in the first round of the United States Football Association's annual cup tie competition, in which they defeated the New York Football Club, the soccer players representing Tebo Yacht Basin of Brooklyn yesterday eliminated the Brooklyn Football Club as well by winning in the second round at Todd Field by the score of 2 goals to 1. One point was once more the margin of victory.

The Tebos are the first of the many clubs remaining in the competition to qualify for the third round. The remaining games of the second round are scheduled for this week-end.

Keeping up their determined effort to recover the championship of the Field Club Soccer League, now held by Montclair, the Crescent A. C. Reds encountered the team of the Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club on the grounds of the latter at Livingston yesterday and scored their fifth victory in succession by the score of 3 goals to 1.

Playing in their best championship form, the soccer eleven of the Montclair Athletic Club gained two more points in the annual series of the Field Club Soccer League of New York and New Jersey by defeating the Englewood Field Club's team by the one-sided score of 8 goals to 1 at Montclair yesterday.

New York soccers, after their splendid showing against Bethlehem, let down a bit in the exhibition match with the Hibernians of Philadelphia, staged yesterday at New York Oval, and suffered defeat by the score of 2 goals to 0. The home team was not quite at full strength, while the visitors were on edge from the start and, in Kerr, had a goal-keeper who was invincible.

The soccer team representing the Catholic Club of West Hoboken succeeded in administering a decisive defeat to the Franco-Swiss eleven at New York Oval yesterday morning, the final score being 5 goals to 1. At half time they led by 3-1. Sierhuis and Daly shot two goals apiece and McCauley one, for the winners. Humbert of the Franco-Swiss players scored after the victors had established a 2-0 lead.

BROWN TO MANAGE ARENA.

Prominent Bostonian Named as Director of Various Sports.

George V. Brown, manager of athletics at the Boston A. A. for many years, has been appointed manager of the new Boston Arena, which is to take an active part in the promotion of indoor sports, including hockey, boxing, cycling and track athletics. He begins his new duties at once, and his first work will be on a hockey organization. Brown has managed Marathon runs, indoor handicap meets, Olympic tryouts and all sorts of amateur boxing carnivals for the B. A. A., the New England Association of the A. A. U., the A. A. U. and the American Olympic committee. He was assistant manager of the 1920 American Olympic team. He is at present closely connected with skating and hockey, being secretary of the newly perfected National Hockey Association.

LEHIGH'S WORK IS LIGHT.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 2.—There was no scrimmage here this afternoon despite the fact that the 'Varsity in the game on Saturday made a very poor showing. However, after today a strenuous week-end is promised by Coach Keady. The big problem confronting the coach is in developing a quarterback. Rote, Linngle and Coleman have slumped considerably during the last two weeks, and it would not be surprising if Captain Herrington was shifted from halfback position to call the signals and direct the team. With Muhlenberg scheduled for Saturday Coach Keady is not anticipating much trouble, but he started this week in preparing for the Penn State and Lafayette games, which follow in the order named.

HOLDS PRACTICE IN RAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 2.—The West Virginia foot ball team wallowed through the mud and rain today, but Coach McIntyre is too intent on his preparations for the Washington and Lee game to grant any letup. The regular 'Varsity line went through the drill, which was mostly devoted to signals; but Johnson and Martin again gave more than a half hour to kicking goals from placement. Johnson put ten out of eleven tries squarely between the posts in spite of the fact that the ball was heavy and slippery.

Injury May Keep Star Out.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 2.—Joe Lehecka, the injured Lafayette College halfback, may be unable to play in Saturday's game here with Bucknell. Lehecka injured his leg in the Annapolis and Pennsylvania games and was forced to stay on the side lines in the Pittsburgh game last Saturday. The injury is healing slowly, so it is doubtful if he will start against Bucknell. Lehecka was on March Field this afternoon, but not in football togs.

HARVARD REGULARS GET LIGHT DRILLING

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 2.—The first strong 'Varsity players on the Harvard squad continued their soft scrimmage today, Captain Horween being the only regular who got into the thick of any actual scrimmage between the substitutes and the scrub team.

Horween has done a little work at centre this Fall, mainly to practice in passing back for kicks. He has no intention of going into the middle of the line, even as a substitute, but in either of the big games, were Havemeyer and Tierney both hurt, the Harvard leader easily would be the man the coaches would want to have playing snapback.

There was a long signal drill today for the first team. Sedgwick was in the lineup, Hubbard still keeping out, although there is no change in the coa

DUETTISTE VICTOR IN $10,000 'CHASE

Captures Manley Memorial Race at Pimlico, Though Carrying Top Weight.

SWEEPMENT IN HARD LUCK

Loft's Jumper Loses Rider When He Appears to be Sure Winner—50-to-1 Shot Scores.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2.—Carrying the unusually heavy impost of 173 pounds over a course of two-and-a-half miles, Joseph E. Widener's Duettiste won the $10,000 Manley Memorial Steeplechase at Pimlico this afternoon and proved beyond all question that he is the best cross-country performer in training and a worthy successor to that sturdy little jumper, The Brook, which died recently Duettiste ran a splendid race, carried his weight without the slightest difficulty and, making his run near the finish, won by eight lengths from G. R. Thompson's Highland Light. Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Minata was third among the thirteen which went to the post, only seven of which crossed the finish line.

The Manley Memorial is the richest steeplechase event run in this country, and today it brought to the post the best jumpers at present in training, including the most experienced ones and a number of the newly developed horses. It was, therefore, a test under handicap conditions which, since it was won by the horse with the top weight, left no doubt as to the champion in this class of racing.

With such a long field, it was only to be expected that there would be some spills and the great crowd which took advantage of the holiday to fill the track to capacity saw several falls. Five horses went down in the course of the long journey and one, G. W. Loft's Sweepment, lost his rider at the next to last jump, after having run a remarkable race in which he seemed to be the winner.

Three Riders Painfully Hurt.

Three of the riders were painfully hurt by their falls. Keating, who had the mount on Debeau, was knocked unconscious by a slight kick from his mount, and it was at first thought that he had been killed. He did not move until he had been attended for several minutes. Then he was able to walk off the track. Bergen, who rode Candidate, was badly shaken and had to be carried away in an ambulance, while Archibald was also shaken up and received some cuts about the head. It was not believed that any of the injuries were really serious.

While all credit must go to Duettiste for his clever victory under such a burden of weight, it was fortunate for him that Sweepment lost his rider, for the latter was leading by fifteen lengths with less than half a mile to go and was still running freely and apparently strongly. Had he remained in the race, there seems little question but that he would have won. He gave evidence of wonderful speed over the flat and jumped perfectly until the fifteenth fence was reached, when he had difficulty in clearing after taking off too quickly. He landed all right but Campbell, who had the mount, toppled off trying to steady the horse.

Up to that time Sweepment had been in front all the way, having gradually increased his lead until he was far in front and still running strongly. Duettiste had been kept under restraint all through the first turn and a half of the field, and Byers did not attempt to move up until beginning the last turn. Then he gradually improved his position until only Sweepment and Highland Light were in front of him. Duettiste was so close to Highland Light that there was no doubt of his passing her, but the backers of the Widener horse doubted if he would be able to catch the fleet Loft horse.

Beats Highland Light Eeasily.

These doubts were suddenly relieved when Campbell fell from Sweepment and Duettiste was left with only Highland Light as a serious contender. The winner soon disposed of the latter, and, turning for home, drew away easily. Highland Light just lasted to save second from Minata by a neck. The others that finished were strung out for a sixteenth of a mile.

Hughouse was first to go down. A few jumps after he passed out of the parade, Debeau went down and appeared to kick his rider. At the tenth fence, Tom Fool fell and Elison fell over him. Candidate was caught in close quarters at the seventh fence and Bergen was thrown badly after the horse had taken part of the obstacle with him.

While this was the big event of the day, there were other thrills in store for the crowd, and one of them came with the finish of the Stafford handicap at six furlongs, in which four horses at the finish were separated by less than half a length. This race went to R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Wyoming, which got home to the surprise of every one and at the long price of more than 50 to 1. H. P. Whitney's Panoply was second, a nose back; Sam Ross's Crank was third, a few inches away and a nose in front of M. L. Schwartz's Enfilade.

Wyoming's stable connections were totally unprepared for his victory after his recent poor showing, but he was able to win by settling through on the rail after the others had gone wide at the turn into the stretch, a turn that has caused the defeat of a number of favorites during the two days of the meeting. The mutuels paid $103.90 to holders of $2 tickets on Wyoming, and from the attitude of the stands not few had thought so highly of his chances as to back him. Panoply had all the early speed, but was tiring at the end, while Enfilade was carried on the outside all the way and could not get up after going wide. Crank, the favorite, got up for third in the stretch run.

Leochares Is Winner.

The aged Leochares added another victory to his list in the sixth race when he easily defeated Old Dad, Camofleur and others at a mile. Rated back of the pace to the turn into the stretch, the old campaigner moved up with a rush and disposed of Old Dad, which had set the pace. At the end Leochares had three lengths to spare, while Old Dad was six lengths in front of Camofleur.

Armistice, which performed well on the New York tracks, won the second race easily from Madrona and Sandy Mac, among others, at a mile, after leading all the way from the start.

Loughland won the fifth race for two-year-olds at six furlongs and provided the first winning mount for Buddy Ensor since that rider came to Maryland. Loughland defeated Good Hope and Thimble in a field of nine youngsters.

JACK SKELLY TO REFEREE.

Veteran Will Be Third Man in Ring for Lynch-Sharkey Bout.

When Joe Lynch and Jack Sharkey square off in their return bout of fifteen rounds at Madison Square Garden Friday night Jack Skelly, one of the three famous Jacks of thirty years ago, will officiate as referee. The appointment of Skelly was announced yesterday by the Boxing Commission. At the same time Joe Ruddy of the New York A. C. and Assemblyman Martin G. McCue were appointed judges.

A change has been made in one of the preliminary bouts. Barney Adair, who was scheduled to box George Ward in one of the ten-round encounters, has been compelled through illness to cancel the engagement. Phil Bloom, Brooklyn boxer, has been secured to take Adair's place. The signing of Bloom promises an even more interesting bout than would have been the case under the original plan. Bloom is a veteran of the ring, a fast, clever boxer and a heavy hitter.

BERBERICH BROTHERS LEAD

Harold Is Winner of Franklin A. C. Run and Frank Is Second.

Harold Berberich showed his heels to fourteen rival club members yesterday in the scratch cross-country race of the Franklin A. C. of Westchester held over a course in the Bronx. Berberich and his brother, Frank, alternated in the lead from start to finish of the course of three and one-half miles, but in the final drive on the finish line Harold managed to lead his brother by less than a yard. Harold's time was 22:07 and Frank finished two-fifths of a second later.

Andrew Ingenito finished third in 24:37, Alexander Biggers was fourth in 24:40 and J. A. Freeman held down fifth position in 25:10. Of the fifteen runners who started all but three completed the full course.

Dempsey and Willard to Meet Again, According to Champion

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 2.—Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight pugilist, and Jess Willard, from whom Dempsey won the title at Toledo in July, 1919, are to have another bout, according to an announcement made here today. Dempsey declared that he will give Willard a return bout and he expects it will occur next March. Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, was asked about the proposed match and he admitted that negotiations are under way for such a contest. Neither Dempsey nor his manager gave any intimation as to where it is planned to hold the bout.

YANKS CONSIDERING NEW TRAINING PLAN

May Divide Sojourn South Between Palm Beach and Jacksonville.

An early training campaign in Southern Florida and finishing touches to the conditioning close to the northern boundary line of the peninsular State is the plan that is now being considered by Colonels Ruppert and Huston, owners of the Yankees, and President C. H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Nationals. A short tour by the two teams, closely following the arrangement that has prevailed during the last two years, will close the Spring campaigns of the two clubs in the South, ending at Ebbets Field just before the regular opening of the championship season.

All the details of the plan under consideration have not been worked out. President Ebbets has under consideration a tour with the world's champion Cleveland Indians, but he probably will decide that the Yankees with their Babe Ruth and a short series at home to top off the training campaign are more desirable Spring partners than even a team that carries the prestige of champions.

Ebbets has received some flattering offers from Miami, where the Cincinnati Reds did their training last Spring. Next March will find the former champions down in Cisco, Texas, and the Miami Board of Trade is anxious to provide some big league baseball for the army of tourists who will invade the section next Winter, remaining there until Spring sets in in the North. Brooklyn seems to be the only hope, and as the Robins are National League champions their presence is more desirable than that of any other team except the Cleveland Indians, who will train again at New Orleans.

Robins' Camp Not Picked.

At the present time the Brooklyn decision is held up, pending the arrangements to be made by the Yankees. Palm Beach is angling for the Ruppert-Huston entry with a fair chance of success. The Yankees and the Cincinnati Reds made a visit to the fashionable Winter resort about the middle of March last Spring and played to the best crowd from a money standpoint that they encountered outside of Jacksonville the day the double-header was played by Yankees vs. Reds and Robins vs. Senators. By going to Palm Beach for the early part of the training campaign the Yanks and Robins would be able to engage in a series at Miami and another at Palm Beach before the tourist season comes to an end in these two cities. At the same time they could pick up enough money in exhibition games to pay a big part of the training expenses.

To play in Southern Florida until it is time to start northward is not the idea of the club owners. They believe that better results would be attained by going to Jacksonville for two weeks after finishing up the preliminary work further South, spend about two weeks at the Florida metropolis and then work their way northward in a series of six exhibition games, arriving home about three days before the start of the regular championship season.

The arrangement looked upon with so much favor by the owners of the two clubs that only one detail is holding it back. That concerns the grounds at Palm Beach. There is a field there that would satisfy all requirements, but it is doubtful whether or not it would be available for the use of the Yankees for the three weeks which they might spend there. If this field can be obtained Miller Huggins probably will O. K. the plan, Brooklyn will close on the Miami proposition and everything will be settled. Each club holds an option on a training park at Jacksonville and either will be in position to do part or all of its training there in the event that some hitch develops to prevent the acceptance of offers from Palm Beach and Miami.

Texas Under Consideration.

Another plan that is getting some consideration from Huggins and the owners of the Yankees concerns a training trip to Texas. The Yanks have not appeared in that section of the country since 1914, when Frank Chance took the team to Houston. That was the only time in the history of the Yankees that the club trained west of Alabama. With Babe Ruth as an attraction a tour through the Middle West and then home would be a big success financially, and it seldom happens that finances are spurned in the Spring when training expenses eat up the greater part of $15,000 or more. Dallas is well suited to training purposes and at the present time no major league club has selected it for next Spring. It is understood that Huggins has been offered an option on the Dallas park if he cares to take the Yankees down to the Lone Star State.

UNABLE TO COMPLETE CARD.

Midnight Finds Crescent's Bouts Still in Preliminary Stage.

The longest card of amateur boxing bouts of the season was witnessed last night by a crowded house at the Crescent A. C., Brooklyn, on the occasion of the preliminaries in the New Moon organization's monthly tournament. Up to midnight a series of sixteen bouts had been conducted in three of the classes scheduled. As the hands of the clock started to creep in the direction of the wee small hours, a stop was made on the two remaining classes, at 135 and 145 pounds.

A division of the sixteen bouts held up to midnight showed two in the 110-pound class, six at 128 pounds and eight at 118 pounds. Seven of the contest ended before their scheduled distance of three rounds had been completed. Four decisive victories were recorded in the 128-pound division and three in the 118-pound class. In the latter division R. Lemek, East Side House, scored the quickest victory when he put the quietus on H. Lindenstadt, Commonwealth Sporting Club, in one round. Another one round triumph was registered by J. Lombato, unattached, who disposed of T. Reed, St. Anselm's A. C., in one round of their encounter in the 128-pound class.

The finals of the tournament will be conducted tomorrow night.

The summaries:

110-Pound Class, Trials—W. O'Connell, Paulist A. C., defeated A. Congello, Spring A. C., three rounds, judges' decision; W. Di Nerdo, unattached, defeated H. Shane, Pastime A. C., three rounds, judges' decision. Byes—J. Farrell, unattached, and W. F. Doyle, Paulist A. C.

128-Pound Class, Trials—E. Fleming, New Brunswick, N. J., defeated L. Brooks, unattached, two rounds, referee's decision; F. H. Kempf, East Side House, defeated H. Feldman, Trinity Club, three rounds, judges' decision; E. Flannery, unattached, defeated S. Kirschbaum, unattached, two rounds, referee's decision; J. Lombato, unattached, defeated T. Reed, St. Anselm's A. C., one round, referee's decision; J. Berdone, Winoka Social Club, defeated W. Wood, unattached, three rounds, judges' decision; B. Schiff, unattached, defeated E. Flack, unattached, two rounds, referee's decision.

118-Pound Class, Trials—I. Weiss, unattached, defeated A. Lombino, West Side A. C., three rounds, judges' decision; R. Lemek, East Side House, defeated Lindenstadt, Commonwealth Sporting Club, one round, referee's decision; N. Hartnett, East Side House, defeated E. Montinelde, Kips Bay Boys' Club, two rounds, referee's decision; L. Jelly, Todd Shipyards A. A., defeated R. Morrison, Jersey Harriers' A. A., three rounds, judges' decision; A. Black, Mohawk A. Kelly, Yoerger's Gymnasium, Brooklyn, defeated P. Hindon, St. Bartholomew's Club, three rounds, judges' decision; S. Dolz, Lone Neighborhood House, defeated T. McKindry, St. Jerome's Catholic Club, two rounds, referee's decision.

Finney Wins at Baltusrol.

Frank Finney celebrated his Election Day yesterday by winning the final match over the links of the Baltusrol Golf Club for the President's Cup. He defeated C. N. Fowler, Jr., by 2 up and 1 to play. Two other season's competitions were finished. E. M. Wild won the ringer's prize for the season with a selected score of 53. Mrs. C. N. Fowler, in capturing the women's ringer prize, showed that she has negotiated many holes in birdie figures since last Spring. Her total was 94.

Six Cue Experts to Fight For Chance to Meet Hoppe

The preliminary round of the national championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament will begin in San Francisco next Monday and will continue on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Six of the leading professional players in the world will compete for the privilege of meeting Willie Hoppe, the world's champion, in the final round of the tourney to be staged at the Hotel Astor in this city on Dec. 6, 7 and 8. The players finishing first and second in Frisco will be eligible to compete in the final round. Those entered in the preliminary round are Welker Cochran, Young Jake Schaefer, David McAndless, Ora Morningstar, Koji Yamada and Marcus Caton.

DE ORO WINS TWICE FROM GREENLEAF

In spite of the fact that Ralph Greenleaf, the world's professional pocket billiard champion, showed to much better advantage in his 300-point three-cushion exhibition match against Alfredo De Oro at the Strand Billiard Academy yesterday afternoon and last night, the "old master" was able to increase his lead over his young opponent. The Cuban won the matinee block by a score of 50 to 38 and clinched the evening session by the scant margin of four points, 50 to 46. The total score now stands: De Oro, 200; Greenleaf, 158.

De Oro finished the first day's play on Monday, leading by a score of 100 to 74. Thus he entered the third block yesterday afternoon with a working margin of twenty-six points. By the time the matinee was ended he had increased the margin to thirty-eight, and further increased it by four during the night's play, giving him a lead of forty-two buttons as the rivals enter the third and last day of the exhibition today. The fact that De Oro had finished twenty-six points in the van on the first day and was limited to a sixteen-point advantage yesterday is an accurate indication of just how much stronger Greenleaf was in his angle game.

The young player, who attained his majority today, is rapidly mastering the intricacies of this style of play, and there is not the slightest doubt that if his pocket billiard activity allowed him more time to practice angles he would become a stumbling block for the best of them. His stronger safety playing was the most noticeable improvement in his work yesterday. Whereas on Monday he appeared to give but little thought to how he left the balls and, in consequence, left De Oro many "naturals," yesterday Greenleaf exercised a great deal more care and employed "soil" almost as effectively as his much more experienced opponent. Greenleaf, too, used better judgment in the selection of his shots and did not miss as many by the proverbial hair because of carelessness.

The closeness of the evening game naturally made it the more interesting. Greenleaf led at various stages, but the fact that De Oro injected three runs of five points each decided the issue in his favor. Invariably when Greenleaf seemed to be on the high road toward forging into a comfortable lead De Oro unleashed a run of five and offset Greenleaf's work. At the end of the forty-seventh inning Greenleaf was leading by a score of 39 to 37. In the next five innings De Oro collected nine points, taking the lead by 44 to 40. From then on it was a see-saw battle, with the result always in doubt until De Oro ran out the match with a two.

REVERSAL FOR KIRBY.

Le Huquet Scores Surprising Victory at Pocket Billiards, 75 to 44.

Edward Kirby, who is conceded to be one of the best amateur pocket billiard players in this section of the country, and who last year was runner-up to Morgan Hughes in the national championship of the American Amateur Billiard Association, was treated to one of the most severe jolts in his career at John Doyle's Academy last night when he was defeated and eliminated from the annual amateur handicap pocket billiard tournament. Kirby, playing from scratch, was beaten by Charles le Huquet, who enjoys a handicap of 30 points. The final score was 75 to 44. Kirby showed the need of practice, for he was decidedly off his game. One of the strongest points of his game usually is his position play, but last night he had little control of the cue ball, a fact attested by his failure to make anything more healthy than a run of 9.

The defeat of Kirby came as a big surprise. Kirby was one of the favorites, and there were few who entertained even a filmy idea that Le Huquet, despite his big handicap, would be able to take his measure. But Kirby was not the Kirby of a year ago. His stroke was harsh, his execution fauly, and he was not at all steady.

In the same tournament, in the afternoon, W. Jones defeated Frank Merker by a score of 50 to 37. Both these players receive handicaps of 25 points.

Another big surprise was sprung in the sixth annual handicap snooker pool tournament. Leo Flynn, who had been allotted the liberal allowance of fifteen points, was generally regarded as one of the favorites, those who follow this style of play being of the impression that his handicap would enable him to more than hold his own against the back mark men. But Flynn came a cropper on his first start and was eliminated by Edward Driscoll, who has a handicap of 18, by a score of 64 to 30.

Twice while they were mingling with the color balls, Driscoll succeeded in snookering his opponent. A snooker counts seven points. These fourteen points helped his score materially. He also made five of the color balls for a total of twenty points. This was the second upset to be scored in this tourney in as many matches. George Barton, one of the two scratch men, was eliminated in the opening match on Monday night by Fred Keats, a limit man.

TRAPSHOTS TO MEET HERE.

American Association to Begin Annual Session Tomorrow.

After a year of record-breaking activities the lawmakers of trapshooting will hold their annual meeting at the Hotel Astor tomorrow and Friday. The General Committee of the American Trapshooting Association is composed of the five members of the Executive Committee and five representatives from the rank and file of the amateurs. With the latter is vested the rule-making power, and these men come from five different sections of the United States, to present the ideas and opinions of their respective constituents. These rule doctors from the ranks are Dan Bray of Columbus, Neb.; Jay Clark, Jr., of Worcester, Mass.; Sam S. Foster of Mason City, Iowa; M. D. Hart of Richmond, Va., and Frank D. Stoop of Kalispell, Mon.

The most important business of these delegates, aside from the discussion of the rules, is the selection of the site for the grand American handicap tournament of 1921. This event is the world's series of trapdom, drawing crack shots from each city, town and hamlet throughout the United States, Canada and the Canal Zone. No sport draws so many contestants from such distant points as trapshooting, and the Grand American is the star event, the grand climax of the season.

TED RAY DEFEATED IN HIS FINAL MATCH

Ted Ray, America's open golf champion, may be a wizard on the seaside links of his native England, but when he tried yesterday to put into practice all his dexterous shots on the greatest seaside course in this country, the Lido Beach links, he was an easy mark for an American home-bred professional. George McLean, young pro at Great Neck, who was a former local caddy boy, defeated the great Jerseyman by 5 up and 3 to play in an eighteen-hole exhibition match.

It was Ray's final appearance on this side, for he is booked to sail for Liverpool on Saturday. Instead of giving one last display of the phenomenal putting which brought him the championship and divers other honors during the last sixteen weeks, this feature of big Ted's game was way off. Three-putt greens were more common for him than those of the regular two-putt variety. He needed a total of 82 strikes to make the circuit. McLean, who holds the Lido record, a 74, also took 82 yesterday, but after winning the match on the fifteenth hole he let down and such figures as a 7 on the sixteenth and a careless 6 on the seventeenth holes account for his high total.

Ray won the first hole and encountered his bad streak of putting on the second when he missed a ridiculously easy tap nine inches long. After that he went from bad to worse on the greens. Out on the fairway Ray was more himself, and his tee shots, played into the strong gales blowing off the Atlantic, were on the whole better than McLean's, but Ray's ignorance of the course handicapped him many times on his second shots and approaches to blind holes.

Starting with the eighth, McLean won five holes in a row. He took this eighth, when, after putting his tee shot into a bunker, he chipped to within three feet of the cup and holed out for a 3. He sank a 12-foot putt to win the ninth and won the tenth and twelfth when Ray needed three putts on each green and the eleventh when Ray, not knowing the lay of the land intimately, slammed his third over the green. McLean holed an 18-foot putt on the fourteenth, this lucky break giving him the half.

The cards:

Out—
McLean	5	4	3	6	5	8	5	3	3	3—40
Ray	4	5	4	5	5	4	5	4	4	4—40

SHOEMAKER GOLF WINNER.

Captures Plainfield Country Club Event with Net Score of 76.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 2.—E. B. Shoemaker won the kickers' handicap at the Plainfield Country Club today with a card of 89, 13—76, his net score being the one picked by the committee. H. R. Stockton was second with a score of 89, 10—79. There were three ties for first place in the ball sweepstakes, as follows: William T. Kaufman, 87, 10—77; Wilbur H. Rogers, 81, 9—72, and H. W. Rush, 99, 27—72. J. Whitney Baker was the winner of the club handicap with a score of 81, 8—73.

In the eighteen from thirty-six selected holes, match play against par event, A. I. Codington and M. H. Long were tied for first place, each being 1 up on par.

COLE STARS AT TRAPS.

Cloudy weather and a strong wind greatly handicapped the fifty Nimrods who turned out for the initial shoot of the season of the New York A. C. at the Travers Island traps yesterday. The shoot was at 200 clay birds, and R. B. Cole was the individual star of the day, carrying off the high scratch prize with an actual score of 183.

The other scratch prizes went to T. H. Lewis and A. E. Ranney. The first of the handicap awards was garnered by F. A. J. Hering, and J. F. James and G. J. Corbett obtained second and third prizes respectively in this class.

HUSBAND ATTACKS MAN IN LIMOUSINE

TRAILS COUPLE IN TAXICAB

Assailant of David H. Slade, Attorney, Is Held for Trial in $250 Ball.

"I warned you against this Slade. I told you to keep away from my wife, but you didn't, and I said I'd get you. I was living happily until you came along and took away my wife, breaking up my home and ruining my life," said David Weller as he was arraigned yesterday in the Yonkers police court charged with assaulting David H. Slade of 421 Archer Street, Freeport, L. I.

Slade is a member of the law firm of Slade & Slade of 200 Broadway, Manhattan. Both men are prominent in Manhattan and Long Island circles. Weller is said to have a controlling interest in a Manhattan shoe concern.

According to the police the assault took place in a limousine at Odell and Warburton Avenue, Yonkers. Slade and Mrs. Weller, accompanied by an unidentified man and woman, entered the car in Yonkers and were driving toward Manhattan.

Weller, according to the police, drove a short distance behind them in a taxicab. As the first car neared Warburton Avenue on Odell Avenue, Weller signaled his chauffeur to cut ahead of the limousine so as to block its progress. This was done. When the taxi stopped Weller sprang from it and opened the door of the larger car. He then, according to the police, without warning pummeled Slade, raining blow after blow on him.

Motorcycle Policeman Henry Hallam was passing at the time. He ran to the car and pulled Weller away from Slade. He then took Weller to the station, where a charge of assault was made against him. The desk lieutenant held Weller in $250 bail to insure his appearance in Special Sessions Court today.

Weller drew a big roll of bills from his pocket and put up $250 in cash. He then made the statement charging Slade with taking Mrs. Weller away from him and added that Slade had attempted to ruin his business. At the conclusion of this outburst he again sprang at Slade, but was restrained by Police Captain U. D. Brady, who detained him until Slade and Mrs. Weller had time to get away.

Weller gave his address as the Great Northern Hotel, Fifty-seventh Street and Sixth Avenue, Manhattan.

HELD FOR KILLING FARMER.

Victim's Wife Said to Have Confessed Guilt of Hired Man.

LACROSSE, Wis., Nov. 2.—John G. Beier, a farmhand, was under arrest here today, charged with murder in connection with the death of Nicholas Biesen, a farmer, who was shot to death at his home near Brinkman Ridge Aug. 26.

According to L. M. Shearer, Deputy State Fire Marshal, Mrs. Helen Biesen, widow of the farmer, confessed that she had kept Beier in a closet in her home for four months prior to her husband's death. In the alleged confession Mrs. Biesen is said to have stated that the farm hand told her he had shot her husband when the latter broke into the closet, and that she and Beier then burned the farmhouse. Mrs. Biesen is held on a statutory charge.

DIES IN TRAIN AT STATION.

Former Vaudeville Performer Stricken on Way to Cuba.

Juan Rodriguez, 25 years old, a native of Monterey, Mexico, and former member of a slackwire team known in vaudeville as Rodriguez and Venezuela, died suddenly yesterday in a Pullman car at the Pennsylvania Station. He was stricken five minutes before the train was to depart for Key West and died before an ambulance arrived.

The body was taken in charge by Valerio Venezuela, Rodriguez's partner and boyhood friend, who was taking him to Cuba by advice of a physician. Venezuela was overcome and required treatment before he could depart from the station with the body. The train was delayed fifteen minutes.

THREE KILLED IN WRECK.

Heavy Coal Train Crashes Into Box Cars at Auburn.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Engineers James W. Toole and William M. Tuell, and Trainman William W. Schultz, all of Auburn, were killed in a freight wreck in the Lehigh Valley yards, Auburn, this morning when a double-header coal train ran into the rear end of a train of box cars just pulling out of the yard.

The double-header evidently overran the grade and the locomotives were unable to check the momentum. All three men were buried under the wreckage and were taken out by yardmen and Auburn firemen. The wreckage took fire and the Auburn department extinguished the flames.

SHOT BY STATE POLICEMAN.

Man Who Attacked Constabulary Officer Mortally Wounded.

Taylor is alleged to have attacked his wife with a hammer and his daughter shouted for aid. Corporal Trautwine and a private who were passing responded and Taylor fired at them, striking Trautwine in the leg. Trautwine returned the fire, sending a bullet through Taylor's abdomen. Surgeons say he cannot recover.

ELOPES WITH PRISONER.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 2.—Officials at the State penitentiary here have announced that J. W. Gans, a guard at the women's building, and Juanita Weaver, a prisoner, "quietly eloped" late Saturday night.

Juanita was serving a sentence of one year for shoplifting, having been convicted in Atlanta last May. She is described as being about 21 years old and a blonde.

Six Months at Hard Labor, Then Deportation—Revolutionary Plot Revealed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Further information concerning the activities of the revolutionaries in England came out today when the man Weltheim, alleged to be an intermediary between the British Communists and Soviet Government, was brought up again at Bow Street.

The cypher letter from Sylvia Pankhurst to Zinovieff had been decoded and the police read a passage stating that she had spent £6 weekly watching seaports, another £6 organizing propaganda in the army and £10 in distributing illegal literature.

From another letter it appeared that the Communists had plans for work in Ireland, but were deterred by lack of money, and a document of 56 pages was produced, written by a certain Nosovitsky to Louis Fraina, described as International Secretary of the Communist Party in America. Military manuals seized on the prisoner were for use of the Red army in England. Some of the directions they gave were:

"Factories—strengthen walls. Block windows. Barricade doors. Select shelters for troops while being shelled. Mount machine guns to command all approaches.

"Mines—Many areas are extremely vulnerable to a blockade by Churchill, especially those in the Welsh Valleys with a single road and line. These approaches must be held. Surrounding hills must be held by a series of blockhouses.

Another document referred to the expenditure of £2,185 on firearms, machine guns and bombs. Another referred to work in the navy and Red propaganda among lower ranks.

Weltheim, who is a native of Finland, was sentenced to six months' hard labor and deportation at the end of his term.

Special to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—James K. Hackett made his London début tonight at the Aldwych Theatre in "Macbeth." He scored a personal triumph and received a great welcome.

The Chronicle critic says: "He played with dignity and natural command with which no English performance within memory can compare to complete advantage."

Duci de Kerekjarto's Violin Recital.

A young Hungarian violinist, Duci de Kerekjarto, made his first American appearance last evening in Carnegie Hall, said to be the artistic ripening at the age of twenty, of a youthful prodigy, who has played in public in Europe since he was twelve years old. He played Corelli's vanations on "La Follia," the chaconne from Badi's "D" minor solo sonata, pieces by Schubert, Chapin, Ries and Sarasate and Paganini's "Witches' Dance," with a cardenza by himself.

Wife Thrilled in Voting for Watkins

CINCINNATI, Nov. 2.—The Rev. Aaron Watkins, Prohibition candidate for President, was accompanied to the polls here today by his wife. After casting her ballot she said it was the thrill of a lifetime to vote for her husband. Willard Watkins, a student at the University of Cincinnati, voted an hour earlier than his parents. He also voted the Prohibition ticket.

New York-Cuba Planes at Havana.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The Beethoven Association.

The enthusiasm for high ideals and musical fellowship that set the Beethoven Association going last year are still potent this year, and insure another series of concerts in which a fine artistic purpose will give delight to lovers of good music. The first of the series was given last evening in Aeolian Hall to one of the largest audiences that the association has had.

The original purpose of playing only the music of Beethoven at these concerts has been modified, and music of other great masters is hereafter to be admitted to the programs. And there was good reason for this. There is the great body of Beethoven's music that is familiar to all music lovers; and there are other works bearing his name that are unfamiliar, many of them with good reason, as being the products of his weaker moments. In attempting to present unfamiliar works of the master, the Beethoven Association has found itself at times presenting music that, thus recalled from oblivion, does little honor to his name. It will save itself from this dilemma by devoting some of its attention elsewhere; though it will, no doubt, continue to seek for compositions by Beethoven that have been unjustly neglected.

The program last evening comprised Beethoven's quartet in E flat, Op. 74, played by the London String Quartet, Messrs. Levey, Pefre, Warner and Evans, in the beautifully finished style that they made known to lovers of the string quartet by their Beethoven cycle of a few weeks ago; three of the songs, "Bussiled," "Mailied" and "Neue Liebe, Neues Leben," sung by Miss Florence Hinkle charmingly, with a sure penetration into their spirit, to the piano accompaniments of Mr. Harold Bauer—such accompaniments as only the Beethoven Association can expect to supply—three of Beethoven's settings under the head of "Scottish Folksongs," with accompaniment of piano, violin and 'cello, and Brahms's piano quartet in G minor, Op. 25, played by Messrs. Bauer, Levey, Warner and Evans.

The three Scottish folksongs were "Faithfu' Johnnie," "Sally in Our Alley," and "Highland Laddie," being among the large number of Scottish, Irish and Welsh songs of which Beethoven made settings, commissioned by the enthusiastic George Thomson of Edinburgh. But as "Sally in Our Alley" was composed by Henry Carey, an English musician, it cannot correctly be styled a Scottish folksong. Miss Hinkle sang these also with much sincerity of feeling and beauty of voice. Brahms's quartet was given a performance of great vitality. There was much enthusiasm manifested by the audience.

"CARMEN" AT LEXINGTON.

Irene Bonheur Sings Title Role in Opera Association's Production.

With a performance of Bizet's "Carmen," there was launched at the Lexington Theatre last evening a new attempt to create a community interest in grand opera, offering not only an opportunity to American singers trained abroad in that art, but also a permanent free school for developing home talent. The New York Opera Association had rehearsed a volunteer chorus, which, with a professional orchestra, comprised the larger part of the forces engaged.

As the Spanish gypsy, Irene Bonheur made last evening a first appearance in opera in her own country, while the role of Micaela was sung by another newcomer, Hallie Stiles, a daughter of Dr. H. W. Stiles of Syracuse University. The tenor was Auguste Perisse, while as the toreador Joseph Martel made a popular success. Fulgenzio Guerrieri conducted the opera, as he will the company's second performance on Friday in "Aida."

Metropolitan Opera Singers Arrive.

The French liner France, which arrived yesterday from Havre, brought a number of singers and musicians among her passengers, including Mme. Raymonde Delaunois, soprano; Mme. Louise Berat, mezzo-soprano, and Albert Wolff, French conductor, all members of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Mr. Wolff, who comes here for his second season, was accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Thanks! Thanks! Responding to my urgent invitation in Sunday's issue of this newspaper, there have been fine, big audiences at the performances of "THE LADY OF THE LAMP" at the REPUBLIC THEATRE these two days past—audiences that meant more than dollars to me and to the people of the play. Many have come to me after each performance, not to ask for the return of their money, but to shake my hand and say encouraging things about "THE LADY OF THE LAMP," all keenly gratifying to me as author and producer. If the earth-while people of New York continue to come, "THE LADY OF THE LAMP" will survive. I repeat—won't you take a chance and see "THE LADY OF THE LAMP"? I will be there in person to gladly refund your money if you are not completely satisfied.

Sincerely, EARL CARROLL, REPUBLIC THEATRE.

BLAST ON LA FRANCE KILLED 10, INJURED 3

Firemen Were Victims When Steam Pipe Burst—Liner Arrives Three Days Late.

OGDEN MILLS ON SAD TRIP

Brings Body of Wife from France—Miss Anne Morgan and Mrs. Lebaudy Aboard.

The French liner La France arrived yesterday from Havre three days late through an explosion which killed ten firemen outright, severely scalded three others and compelled Captain M. E. Maurras to put back to Cherbourg.

"We were detained twenty-four hours at Havre by a strike," said the Captain, "and did not leave until late on Oct. 24. At 4:30 next morning, when the France was about 110 miles off the French coast, an eight-inch high-pressure steam pipe leading to one of the turbines broke at one of its joints in the firerooom. The place was at once filled with scalding steam and ten men lost their lives and three others were so badly injured that they had to be sent ashore at Cherbourg to the hospital.

"I stopped the ship directly after the accident and, after a delay of two hours to make repairs, we proceeded to Cherbourg and reached there just after 12 when the passengers were down at lunch.

Did No Damage to Ship.

"The bursting of the pipe," Captain Maurras continued, "did not do any damage to the ship and would not have been a serious matter had it not cost the lives of ten of the crew. I have heard since by wireless that the three injured men are doing well in the hospital at Cherbourg, and will recover.

"After leaving Cherbourg on Oct. 26 we had fine weather across to Sandy Hook, and the France made the passage in six days ten hours actual steaming time. We did not see any icebergs."

The first passenger to come on deck after the accident was R. Kahn, a Paris merchant, who comes frequently to New York on business. He said that he was aroused by the ship being stopped, and knew that something out of the ordinary had happened.

After breakfast a subscription was taken up among the 1,700 passengers on board for the families of the firemen who had been killed, and 50,000 francs was collected. In addition the crew gave another 7,000 francs.

Ogden Mills was a passenger on the France, bringing back the body of his wife, who died in Paris on Oct. 13. He was met at the pier by his son, Ogden L. Mills, and daughter, Mrs. Phipps. The body was taken from the French Line pier at the foot of West Fifteenth Street to Mr. Mills's home in East Sixty-ninth Street.

Miss Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan, returned from France, where she has been working during the Summer with the American Committee in the devastated regions. She brought a hard-looking Irish terrier with her for which the Customs officials charged her $30 duty, and she also paid duty on a number of presents for relatives and friends.

Mrs. M. A. Lebaudy Returns.

Another passenger on the liner was Mrs. M. A. Lebaudy, who was acquitted on the charge of shooting her husband Jacques, in Westbury, L. I., last year, returning from France with her daughter, Jacqueline.

Ernest S. Suffern of 155 Broadway, administrator of the estate, who met her at the pier, said that Jacques Lebaudy had invested a great deal of his money in Russian and German securities which had depreciated greatly in value. The remainder, he added, was affected at present by the low rate of exchange. The relatives of the late Jacques Lebaudy had admitted the widow's claim to a share in the estate.

Winifred Holt, Honorary Secretary for the American Institution for the Blind, returned after working three years in the "Lighthouses" among the blind French soldiers. She wore a gown that had been made by a one-armed French soldier.

Miss Holt said that similar institutions had been established in Italy and were progressing favorably. The surgeons had discovered a new treatment in Italy to prevent blindness, she said.

Other passengers on the France were Captain Asher C. Baldwin, U. S. N., who was Director of Ports in Europe during the war, and Albert Blum, President of the Alsace-Lorraine Association.

FIND STOLEN DIAMONDS IN DEALER'S CELLAR

Boston Police Recover $140,000 in Gems Left with Jeweler by a New Yorker.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Nov. 2.—Diamonds valued at $140,000, stolen from the safe in the jewelry store of Philip E. recovered today, Schwarz, who has done recovered today. Schdarz, who has done business under the title of "The Diamond Man," was arrested on a charge of larceny. He stoutly denied any knowledge of the theft.

The diamonds are said to have been intrusted to Schwarz for keeping over night by Joseph C. Newman, a salesman for Charles Marx of 170 Broadway, New York. The next morning a clerk in the store reported that the safe had been opened, evidently by some one who knew the combination, and the jewels stolen. The search today led to the cellar of the store, where the police say they found the gems still in the salesman's case, wedged behind a sewer pipe. According to the police the diamonds were placed there last night, as they say they searched the cellar thoroughly yesterday and found nothing.

LIMIT ON BRITISH CONFISCATION RULE

New Decision Applies Only to German Property Brought in After Jan. 10.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—Great Britain's decision not to confiscate German property in the United Kingdom, recently reported in official advises to the French Foreign Office, refers only to enemy property brought into the country since Jan. 10, according to a cablegram, made public here today by Thomas Mulvey, Under Secretary of State.

The Board of Trade had decided that this property would not be liquidated, the cablegram added, as it had been brought into the United Kingdom after the Peace Treaty had become effective.

$25 WIFE QUITS BUYER.

Husband Wants Money Back When She Refuses to Stay.

"I gave $25 for a wife and I want it back," Stanley Foreman, 37 years old, of 67 East Twenty-fifth Street, Bayonne, announced last night to the Lieutenant on desk duty in Police Headquarters in his home city.

"How come?" asked the Lieutenant, as he started to draw his long legs from beneath the desk. "Did you get the wife?"

"Not for long," replied Foreman. "I gave John Pituski the $25 one night a year ago, was introduced to her the next night and married her a week later. Then I found that she was a widow with two children, but neither she nor the children cared to remain at home with me any longer than a week at a time. Now they've blown away again, and I want my money back from Pituski. He got me a wife, but she doesn't stick to me."

"What was the woman's name before you gave her yours?" inquired the Lieutenant.

"Helma Wyofsky," answered Foreman.

CHEMIST HELD; CRIES PLOT.

Charges "Big Interests" Seek His Ruin in Fear of New Discovery.

P. John Chasler, 39 years old, a chemist, of 1,259 Fifty-first Street, Brooklyn, arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Ten Eyck in the Jefferson Market Court, was held in $5,000 bail on a charge of misappropriating $5,000 received for stock in the Fermo Gas Company, of which he is President. Chasler pleaded not guilty.

Emrich Bares, dealer in precious stones at 70 West Forty-fifth Street, was the complainant. He charged that Chasler deposited the money in a bank under the name of another firm controlled by the chemist instead of to the account of the gas company.

David P. Smith, counsel for Chasler, told the Magistrate his client was being persecuted by "big interests" that are afraid Chasler might ruin their business through his discovery of a process to manufacture alcohol free from sugar cane, yeast and cornstalks at a cost much below gasoline.

AMBASSADOR DAVIS SAILS.

Lord Rathcredan, British Pilgrim Party Head, Returns on Aquitania.

John W. Davis, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, sailed yesterday on the Cunarder Aquitania for London, where he said he would remain in office until the end of President Wilson's term. The Ambassador added that upon his return to America he will enter the law firm of Stetson, Jennings Russell in this city.

Lord Rathcredan, head of the British delegation which took part in the Mayflower tercentenary celebrations here, sailed with Lady Rathcredan. He said that he was greatly pleased with the reception accorded to the delegation. Sir Edgar Bowring, President of the shipping firm of Bowring Brothers, Ltd., of London and St. John's, Newfoundland, also sailed.

Other passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Prince of Boston, with their son, F. H. Prince, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Fahnestock, Charles Kurzman, Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page and daughter Colonel Isaac N. Lewis and Mrs. Lewis and Lord and Lady Wolseley. The Aquitania had 245 first, 225 second and 300 third class passengers.

LOCKOUT IN SARAGOSSA.

Employers Decide to Close All Factories in the City.

SARAGOSSA, Spain, Nov. 2.—The Employers' Association decided last night to lock out the workers in every factory of the city. This movement will affect 24,000 men, including municipal workers.

Stores will remain open, but many of them will be unable to obtain supplies.

The Weather.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

AMERICAN BISQUE DOLLS.

This Country No Longer Has to Depend Upon Germany for Its Supply.

It is no longer necessary to look to Germany as the toyland from which beautiful dolls will come in the future, for John Martin Stangl, a pottery expert of this country, has discovered a composition of material which enabled him to make the much-coveted bisque doll—all-American of all-American material.

Time was when "bisque head dolls" meant German-made dolls, and that country has always been the source of supply of dolls for the children of the country. The war came, and it looked as though Young America was going to be doll-less. There had been no stocking up of warehouses, for we were in a state of war just at the time when orders are placed for the Christmas season. Soon the small numbers on hand were exhausted and there was no possibility of replenishing the supply.

As soon as this great demand was really felt the American manufacturers cast about for a substitute, for they had long ago abandoned any efforts to turn out bisque heads. The best product was a doll head made from colored wood pulp composition, coated with a heavy, opaque paint. While these heads proved to be very durable, they were rather expressionless, for the heavy paint obliterated the details and expression of the faces.

WOULD YOU like to have us advise you promptly of what we consider to be specially desirable offerings of high-grade and thoroughly seasoned first mortgage or underlying Railroad Bonds?

Bonds of such character are occasionally available in these times at prices representing declines of approximately 15 to 30 points below pre-war levels, and, in view of the increased rates recently granted the railroads, are now generally regarded as particularly attractive.

Ask us to bring to your attention offerings of this character, and we shall be glad to comply with your request.

SEPTEMBER'S TRADE BY COUNTRIES

Where the United States Has Reduced Its Imports Most Heavily.

EUROPE AND ASIA SEND LESS

The Government issued yesterday the statement of our foreign trade in September by countries of origin and countries of destination. The figures of our total exports and imports in that month were given out last week. Yesterday's statement shows that, of the unusually large decrease of $149,894,000 in our imports as compared with the preceding month and of $81,782,000 as compared with September, 1919, the comparison by continents is as follows:

N. America	105,545,270	167,902,651	106,488,709
S. America	62,490,922	63,301,491	94,086,478
Asia	83,735,743	126,207,321	116,036,935
Total	$363,666,710	$513,550,615	$435,448,747

Exports to	Sept. 1920	Aug., 1920.	Sept., 1919.
North America	169,531,790	159,256,662	125,935,540
South America	54,447,362	46,643,282	32,164,774
Asia	37,874,882	47,107,634	57,542,229
Totals	$606,291,257	$579,052,607	$595,214,206

By striking the balance between exports and imports, it is possible to show how the trade of this country with Europe is changing. In September the surplus of exports over imports in that trade was $222,264,534, as against $270,423,405 in the preceding September. In 1913, the year before the war, it was $55,375,472. Following are the figures of our trade with Europe during the nine months ended with September, compared with the corresponding period in 1919 and in the year before the war. The last three ciphers are omitted:

Imports	999,586	452,549	639,821
Excess exports	$2,276,181	$3,404,269	$355,262

In view of the question of reduction of their adverse balances of trade by England, France, Italy, and Germany, and in view of the condition of their exchange rates in New York, the following comparison of our trade with them in September of the three years is highly interesting. It gives our exports to and imports from each of those countries:

England—

Exc's ex.	$10,091,977	$7,249,730	$15,980,069

	1920.	1919.	1913.
England

Excess exp.	$117,739	$28,990	$85,348

Following are our imports for September from the separate countries. The decrease as compared with 1919, in the imports from China, Japan, Brazil and Argentina are especially noteworthy:

In the nine months ending with September our imports from Canada have increased $79,073,234, from Cuba $342,291,483, from Argentina $43,670,637, from Brazil $30,208,248, from China $64,039,457, from Japan $93,786,830, and from British India $59,124,617.

Our exports during September to the same countries make the following comparisons. The figures show a large decrease from the same month of 1919 in shipments to Belgium, Holland, England and Japan, but a substantial increase in shipments to Mexico, Cuba, Argentina and Brazil:

Belgium	$15,919,469	$23,634,447

PROCLAIMS GERMANY'S ECONOMIC DISTRESS

Ex-Minister Gothein Says That Production Is Declining and Unemployment Is Increasing.

BERLIN, Nov. 1 (German Wireless Press).—Ex-Minister Gothein in the Berlin Tageblatt contradicts a French statement to the effect that Germany is enjoying favorable economic conditions. He says that German production has decreased enormously on account of lack of coal. These are some others of his specific statements:

Iron production has decreased from nearly 20,000,000 tons in pre-war times to 6,000,000. The brickyards are almost all closed. The textile mills are operating only one-third of their looms, whereby the cost of production is immensely increased. The number of unemployed German workers is 600,000, while nearly 4,000,000 brain workers are employed only two or three days a week.

Herr Gothein concludes by saying that Germany hopes for the distribution of coal for Europe through an international commission on which many neutrals should be represented.

The Deutsche Allegemeine Zeitung says that the uncovered deficit of the German budget amounts to 67,000,000,000 marks, including 41,000,000,000 due to expenses imposed under the peace treaty, while the extraordinary expenses of the German State amount to 30,000,000,000. The cost of purchasing ground and providing shelter for the troops of occupation will be 505,000,000 marks, while the payment of claims for damage suffered in the German colonies will use up 255,000,000. The relief of Germans who have left Alsace-Lorraine and Poland will require an expenditure of 170,000,000. The cost of disarmament as directed by the Spa Conference will be 200,000,000, and that of removing sea mines 241,000,000.

SOFT COAL MARKET BREAKS.

Spot and Contract Prices Drop in Mining Region.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 2.—Absence of boats at tidewater, railroad transportation restrictions and activities of the "Fuid Practices Committees" throughout the country have combined to bring about the predicted break in the bituminous coal market. Both spot and contract coal began to show a reactionary tendency last Wednesday, but the softness of the market became more pronounced yesterday, when spot was reported selling around $5, and contract at $6.75 and $7.

While considerable business is said to have been done at these prices in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia, they were not entirely representative and uniform. Some operators were said to be getting more for their production.

One operator, who is generally recognized as being well informed, said that coal calling for an advance of $1 a ton could not be disposed of on yesterday's market at above $5, and contract gas coal was bringing around $6 without advance.

Three weeks ago spot coal sold as high as $11, while contract was commanding from $7.50 to $8. Advances of $1 a ton were then being made on coal at from $5.25 to $5.75.

For 150 Per Cent. Stock Dividend.

FALL RIVER Mass., Nov. 2.—A stock dividend of 150 per cent. has been recommended to the sotckholders of the Barnard Manufacturing Company by the Board of Directors. An increase of capital stock from $500,000 to $1,250,000, to be made by converting $750,000 of undivided profits and other assets into permanent capital, is proposed. The Barnard Manufacturing Company produces plain cotton goods and specialties made from print cloth yarns. It has paid 40 per cent. in quarterly dividends this year.

High Yielding Bonds for Investment

Even many experienced bankers did not anticipate that inflation, the demand for money, and post-war conditions generally would make it possible to buy so many good bonds to yield 7% or better. Write for our recommendations of industrial, railroad or foreign government obligations.

PUBLIC DEBT DOWN $24,846,455 IN MONTH

STATEMENT OF YESTERDAY

Gross Debt of United States Now Cut to About $24,000,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Treasury operations for October resulted in a further reduction in the public debt, according to figures made public today, showing the gross debt to be $24,062,509,672. This represents a reduction of $24,846,455 during the month.

Ordinary expenditures of the Government during the month totaled $426,497,372, against total ordinary receipts of $220,034,804. The difference of $206,462,567 was more than overcome, however, by other transactions by the department affecting the public debt.

DROP IN FATALITIES ON THE RAILROADS

6,978 Were Killed Last Year and 149,053 Injured—Fewer Trespassers on the List.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Fewer persons were killed on railroads during 1919 than in any year since 1898 and fewer were injured than in any year since 1910, according to a statement issued today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

During 1919 a total of 6,978 persons were killed and 149,053 injured, compared with 6,859 killed in 1898 and 119,507 injured in 1910. Of the killed 273 were passengers and of the injured 7,456 were passengers. Employes killed during the year numbered 2,138 and 131,018 were injured.

Fewer trespassers on railroads were killed in 1919 than during any year of the commission's records, which go back to 1890. Last year 2,553 trespassers were killed and 2,658 injured. Railroad officials pointed out that there were fewer tramps than formerly.

GUL DJEMAL LANDS CITIZENS

Steerage Passengers Return to Ship Today from Fumigation Camp.

The immigration authorities yesterday afternoon permitted thirteen cabin passengers on the Turkish steamship Gul Djemal, which arrived at Pier 45 North River on Monday evening, to leave the ship, as they were American citizens. The remainder of the passengers in the first and second class will get ashore today, it was said, as their passports are all in order.

The 744 steerage passengers who were sent to Hoffman Island on Monday for fumigation will be brought back to the Gul Djemal today and kept on board until there is room at Ellis Island for them to be examined. One of them, a Bulgarian girl named Mlle. Ernestine, told the authorities that she came here to marry a young American to whom she had become engaged at Sofia since the armistice.

Captain Hussein Lufti, the commander, and the Turkish officers of the Gul Djemal have had a hard time with the steerage passengers, who were mostly Greeks, Armenians, Rumanians and Bulgarians, and all joined together in their hatred of the Turks.

CARRIES CUP HOME TODAY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 2.—Carrying the silver cup, emblematic of the championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleets, the schooner Esperanto will sail tomorrow for her home port, Gloucester, Mass., where a royal welcome awaits Captain Marty Welch and his crew.

The trophy was presented to Captain Welch this afternoon at a dinner attended by Premier George H. Murray, Lieutenant Governor Grant, Mayor Charles B. Brown of Gloucester and Mayor John S. Parker of Halifax.

Winning of two straight races from the Nova Scotian schooner Delawana Saturday and yesterday gave the Gloucestermen the right to carry back the emblem.

KILLED IN MOTOR TRUCK.

Woman's Two Daughters and Five Others Hurt in Ontario Wreck.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 2.—One woman was killed and seven other persons were injured at 4:15 o'clock this morning, when a motor truck in which they were riding was struck by a construction train at the Lundy's Lane detour south of this city.

The dead woman is Mrs. Annie L. Lambert, 57, of Huron Street, this city. The injured are her two daughters, Gertrude and Gladys; Rhoda and Violet Cushman, Grace Harris, Florence Wedge and Neale Thompson, all of this city.

Price Brothers Reorganize.

The shareholders of Price Brothers, Limited, at a meeting held in Quebec on Oct. 25, approved the proposal of the Directors to reorganize the company and turn the assets and business over to a new company to be known as Price Brothers & Co., Limited. The new company will have a capitalization of $42,671,000 as compared with $8,534,000 the capitalization of the present company. It is stated that shareholders in the present company will be given stock in the new company in the ratio of five new shares for each one share now held.—American Newspaper Publishers' Association Bulletin.

Find $8,000 Unpaid Taxes in 8 Years

ROCKVILLE CENTER, Nov. 2.—Delinquencies in the payment of the village taxes amounting to $8,000 were discovered today by auditors employed to check accounts for the last eight years. Tax collectors have changed frequently but the village officials are unable to explain how the taxes have remained so long uncollected. Notices were sent out today notifying the property owners to pay forthwith.

LABOR LOSES CONTROL OF ENGLISH COUNCILS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Polling took place on Monday in about 300 municipalities in England and Wales, for the election of one-third of the Councillors who retire this year. A noticeable feature of the results is the failure of Labor's big bid for municipal control, especially in the big industrial centres. In seventy of the leading boroughs labor put forward 747 candidates, and of these 548 have been defeated.

This marked ebb in the Labor tide, which swept over the local governing authorities a year ago, seems to have been partly due to the swing of the pendulum, partly to high local taxes, for which the Laborites are mostly blamed, and partly to the coal strike.

BRITISH MINERS' VOTE CLOSE

Early Returns Are Against Strike Settlement.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Full returns of the miners' ballot on a strike settlement will not be published until tomorrow, but unofficial figures to hand show that the voting will be close.

Figures to hand, some of which are incomplete, give a majority of about 17,000 against acceptance of the proposed settlement, the heaviest majority against being in South Wales, but large majorities, with no figures, are reported from Yorkshire, Durham and Lanarkshire in favor of acceptance, and these, it is confidently believed, will outweigh the South Wales adverse vote of 43,134 and enable the Delegate Conference of the Miners' Federation to declare the strike at an end at tomorrow's meeting.

South Africa's Railways

SOUTH AFRICA is served by 11,478 miles of well equipped railways. These transported more than 14,000,000 tons of revenue earning goods and coal during the fiscal year 1918-1919, and carried nearly 51,500,000 passengers. This record breaking activity is significant of South Africa's increasing industrial prosperity.
In South Africa are more than 500 branches of the National Bank of South Africa. These branches, intimately acquainted with the needs of the Provinces, are prepared to render every service connected with the financing of your export and import trade.

How $1000 Becomes $2000
Invested in a Guaranteed First Mortgage at 5½% with the interest invested each six months at the same rate, the $1,000 in 1920 becomes $2,000 in 1933.
Only experience can teach you the power of cumulative earnings with the principal kept intact.
A speculative investment policy has its attractions and sometimes its satisfaction, but in three cases out of four it leads to disappointment and loss.

FRANCE WOULD ACT AGAINST EX-KING

INTERVENTION IS UNLIKELY

Venizelos Expected to Win the Election and Prince Paul to Take Throne.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The French Foreign Office informed The Associated Press that France would not interfere in the Greek situation unless former King Constantine attempts to return to Greece. In such case, it was added, "France will take such measures as are deemed necessary."

GENEVA, Nov. 2.—Ex-King Constantine and ex-Queen Sophie are still keeping to their rooms in the Hotel National at Lucerne, although Prince Paul is seen in the streets.

Constantine is greatly depressed by the report that Great Britain and France, which guaranteed the kingdom of Greece, would refuse, even if the elections were favorable to him, to allow his return to the Greek throne.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Premier Venizelos, in a public declaration, holds that the question of the return of former King Constantine to rule Greece has been settled, and that no referendum is needed to determine the wishes of the nation, according to official dispatches from Athens today.

The Premier maintains that if he is sustained in the elections which are to take place Nov. 14, Prince Paul, third son of the ex-King, to whom the crown has been offered, will ascend the throne, accepting the conditions of the tender.

If Premier Venizelos is defeated in the national elections, the question, which the Premier asserts is settled, may be reopened by the Opposition, which then would control the Government and the new Ministry would have the power to reopen it and refer it to the nation.

All indications point both to the success of Venizelos in the elections and the succession of Prince Paul to the throne. Premier Venizelos has communicated assurances to Constantine that the latter's pension, which is regarded as a liberal one, but which was discontinued on account of Constantine's conduct, considered to be inimical to the interests of Greece, will be renewed.

OHIOANS IN NEW YORK FELICITATE HARDING

More than 800 Ohioans met in the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel last night to learn which of their native sons was elected President and at the same time to get the other election returns. The members of the Ohio Society of New York and their guests displayed a good deal of enjoyment when the notices on the screen showed that Senator Harding was elected, but it was not the spontaneous acclaim which an Ohioan probably would have received had the rival candidate come from another State.

Although almost all the guests were in evening clothes they did not shrink from competing with the noise-makers in the streets below. Many brought horns, bells and other "musical" instruments, and they used them whenever the returns were favorable. But an Ohioan had to get the election, so even the few Cox sympathizers present took the final result with a smile.

When it was apparent that Senator Harding was elected, Benjamin B. Avery, acting President in the place of the late George W. Perkins, sent the following telegram to him:

"The Ohio Society of New York, in special meeting convened, with 800 of your fellow members in the society, their ladies and guests present, most heartily congratulate you upon your election to the Presidency of the United States."

Between the showing of election returns a motion picture was put on the screen and a few vaudeville performers entertained. After the entertainment a supper was served.

Those present included Colgate Hoyt, Dr. A. E. Sellenings, E. C. Lefkin, S. C. Moorhead, Judge Benjamin B. Avery, Colonel H. O. S. Heistand, W. H. Birdsley, Judge Charles W. McCaddon, Judge Charles W. Dustin, Colonel H. E. Crall and Harold Remington.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Franklin D. Roosevelt spent the evening quietly at his home near Hyde Park, Springbrook, where members of his family and neighbors gathered to hear the election returns on a special wire that had been run to the Roosevelt home. Residents of the district dropped in during the evening to greet Mr. Roosevelt and wish him luck.

The candidate for the Democratic Vice Presidency voted this morning at 10:45 o'clock at Hyde Park, being accompanied to the booth by his wife and his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, and by their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Roosevelt, who had motored over. Mr. Roosevelt's ballot was No. 207.

Mr. Roosevelt received a telegram from Governor Cox today, in which the Presidential candidate congratulated him on the "effective campaign" he had made. The wire read: "You have made a brilliant and effective campaign. I congratulate you and thank you most heartily for it. All good wishes for you and yours."

Mr. Roosevelt replied to the telegram, saying:

"Many thanks for your telegram. The Roosevelt family sends warmest greetings, regards to all and hopes we may have a reunion soon."

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Senator Harding carried Hyde Park, the home town of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, by 86 votes.

PORTO RICANS AT POLLS.

Islanders Cast First Votes Since Granted American Citizenship.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 2.—Porto Rico, with the greatest number of voters ever registered, held today its first general election since the granting of American citizenship. A commissioner to Washington, members of the Legislature and city commissioners of all the municipalities were to be chosen.

Three tickets were in the field—Republican, Socialist and Unionist. For some of the offices the Republicans and Socialists united in opposition to the Unionists, who now control the Legislature. This was the first election under the new election law, wholly in the hands of the local electors.

BERGDOLL IN GERMANY, SAYS U. S. MISSION

Fugitive in Baden Until Four Days Ago, Officials Report.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The American Mission here has no information on the reported arrest of Grover C. Bergdoll, but knows that he has been in Karlsruhe and other sections of Baden up to four days ago.

The American military authorities at Coblenz are said to have attempted to cause his arrest through the German authorities.

COBLENZ, Nov. 2 (Associated Press).—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, who escaped from his guards in Philadelphia last May after having begun a five-year sentence for desertion from the United States Army, has not been arrested in Coblenz or elsewhere in Germany, as reported, the American military authorities here declare.

Bergdoll, it is known, is in Germany, but he has innumerable means of protecting himself against arrest and of thwarting the efforts of the military to take him into custody, although his movements are being closely followed. He has never been in the occupied area.

MR. AND MRS. WILSON VOTE.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 2.—The President and Mrs. Wilson voted in the seventh district of Princeton by mail today. Their ballots were sent to the County Election Board at Trenton, and Holmes Larue, Secretary of the Board, motored to Princeton this afternoon and deposited them at 3 P. M. in the polls of the seventh district, situated in the Princeton fire house.

The President was enrolled on the voters' list at Princeton in the house to house canvass that took place on Sept. 14. He maintains a technical residence at 10 Nassau Street, opposite the University. Mrs. Wilson was placed on the list on the last day open for registration by the affidavit of a voter of the Princeton district, in this case one of the town officials. At the time, notice was sent to Washington of the local board's action and blanks were forwarded to Secretary Tumulty.

William M. Daniels, former head of the Princeton Economics Department and now Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, came to Princeton today, accompanied by Mrs. Daniels, and both voted. Another member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Henry J. Ford, a former Princeton professor, voted at Princeton by mail, as did his wife.

HOOVER AND JOHNSON CLASH

Senator Says Shortridge Denies "Understanding" on League.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Zest was added to election issues in California with the publication here of statements by Senator Hiram W. Johnson and Herbert Hoover. The statements presented directly opposing views as to the attitude of Senator Harding and of Samuel M. Shortridge, Republican candidate for Senator from California, toward the League of Nations.

The publication of a statement issued on Sunday by Mr. Hoover indorsing the candidacy of Senator Harding and Mr. Shortridge led to the assertion that Mr. Shortridge and Mr. Hoover had agreed to abandonment of the "irreconcilables" on the League of Nations issue.

In a statement issued last night, Senator Johnson declared that Senator Harding "says he has turned his back upon the League" and favors "neither reservations nor interpretations, but rejection of it."

"Mr. Hoover," continued the statement, "says Mr. Harding is going into the League. I believe Mr. Harding."

Continuing, Senator Johnson said that the assertions that there was an understanding between Mr. Hoover and Mr. Shortridge as to the attitude of the latter toward the League had been denied by Mr. Shortridge. "I believe Mr. Shortridge," the statement added.

SEES WOMEN'S INFLUENCE.

Miss Paul Says They Will Be Better Organized Next Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the National Woman's Party, made the following statement at 10 o'clock tonight:

"The overwhelming woman's vote in this election proves the intense interest of women in national political issues.

"Their attitude on the dominant issues of the campaign, however, is not clearly reflected in the vote today. Women had practically no voice in the selection of any candidates or in the drafting of the political platforms. They received the ballot too late to organize to make their wishes felt in the conduct of the campaign or in the final vote.

"Until it is effectively organized, which may confidently be expected to begin at once, the woman's vote will not permit of clear interpretation or prediction."

CASTS FIRST VOTE AT 102.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—Miss Annie Stone, 102 years old, believed to be the oldest woman voter in the country, cast her ballot today for Harding and Coolidge. She is a resident of the Mount Pleasant Home, Roxbury.

Miss Stone voted at the William Lloyd Garrison Schoolhouse. Alert and active she entered the school yard escorted by Frank B. Hall, Chairman of the Republican State Committee. She was only a short time in marking her ballot. A battery of motion picture machines was in waiting, and she posed smilingly while the movie men turned the handles.

She wore a holiday dress for the occasion of her first vote. She wore also a new bonnet, which she made for herself unaided. A photograph of Miss Stone has been forwarded to Senator Harding by Chairman Hall, and Miss Stone has asked the latter to have the candidate forward one of his own in exchange.

BRYAN VOTES FOR COX.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 2.—After voting at his suburban home in Lancaster County this afternoon, W. J. Bryan announced that he had voted for Cox and Roosevelt and for the Democratic State and Congress tickets.

Mr. Bryan was formerly a voter in Normal Precinct, but since the last election Normal has been brought into the city and Mr. Bryan's property remains just on the edge. Under the rearrangement of precincts he voted in a country precinct. Registration was not necessary to enable him to exercise the franchise there.

BAR NEGRO WOMEN'S VOTE.

Savannah Judges Refuse Their Vote —White Women Stay Away.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 2.—Ballots were refused negro women at the voting places in Savannah today. Many negro women had registered since the suffrage amendment became effective, but the election judges ruled they were not entitled to vote because of a State law which requires registration six months before an election.

HELD SANE, HE TRIES TO FREE 81 TO VOTE

SAYS THEY ARE ALL SANE

Cohen Also Seeks to Obtain Registration, but Court Refuses Application for Mandamus.

A wholesale habeas corpus proceeding designed to release eighty-one patients from the Manhattan State Asylum on Ward's Island, was started yesterday by Louis Cohen, lawyer and former Assemblyman, after he had himself been freed from the hospital because Supreme Court Justice McAvoy found him sane. Cohen, who lives at 216 West 102d Street, tried to get himself registered as a voter by means of a mandamus proceeding, but failed. The final result of his day's activity was a postponement of his application in behalf of the eighty-one patients until Nov. 23 in order that Superintendent Heyman of the hospital may be represented by the Attorney General when the case is heard.

Cohen was committed to Ward's Island late in September by County Judge McKelvey, of Saratoga County, but in the proceeding he brought for his own release Justice McAvoy decided late Monday night that he was "sane and well-balanced." Telling of his trouble at Saratoga, Cohen said he went there with a delegation from this city and registered at the Grand Union Hotel. He got into an altercation with an employe in the hotel, as a result of which, he says, he was arrested. After being kept in a cell for some time, Cohen said he was told by some one in the Saratoga County District Attorney's office that he would be released and the charge of assault made by the hotel employe dropped if he would sign a general release in behalf of the hotel. He refused and was freed anyhow, he said, and went to the United States Hotel.

He was ordered to leave there and finally was committed to the institution for the insane. He said his wife would have tried to get him out of the Manhattan State Asylum long ago but for a threat by a hospital physician that he would be transferred to a distant institution if she did so.

Cohen began his effort to get a vote as soon as Justice McAvoy freed him, but it was not until 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning that Justice Erlanger signed at his house an order directing the board in the Third Election District of the Eleventh Assembly District to show cause yesterday why he should not be permitted to vote. The case was heard by Justices Finch and Donnelly, to whom Cohen said that he had been "railroaded" to the asylum and for that reason had had no chance to register. He contended that under the circumstances he should be permitted to register and vote at the same time.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Tarbox, in behalf of the Board of Elections, argued that Cohen could not be heard because he had not filed his application within a week after close of registration, as the law requires. Cohen replied that he had repeatedly asked Ward's Island for permission to go to Manhattan and register, but was refused. Justices Donnelly and Finch then denied the application because the Constitution of the State requires that registration shall be completed at least ten days before election.

Cohen then prepared to argue for the release of the eighty-one inmates of Manhattan State for whom he had filed out habeas corpus applications. He sent telegrams to their relatives but many persons who got the messages hurried to the Court House and gave Cohen information that caused him to drop the proceeding in behalf of the persons involved. In other cases relatives and friends of the alleged lunatics approved of the proceeding.

Cohen said, while waiting for the cases to be heard, that he had applied only in behalf of persons with whom he had associated while at the hospital, some of whom have been there three years, but who, he contended, were as sane as himself. He complained that telegrams and letters he had sent from the hospital were never delivered.

Dr. Marcus Reynolds, Superintendent of Manhattan State Hospital, and Dr. M. W. Raynor, chief of the clinical division, responded to the writ at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but they had only six patients with them, one of whom was asleep when they were taken before Justice McAvoy in his chambers the latter asked:

"What is the purpose of trying to get eighty-one men before the court on these writs on election day?"

"There are two reasons," replied Mr. Cohen. "One is that they are detained improperly and committed illegally, and the other is that in my own opinion they are sane and entitled to the right of suffrage. That was my argument in my own case, but I would not have made that plea on behalf of these persons had I known that my own application for permission to vote would be decided against me today."

After Justice McAvoy had adjourned the proceedings to Nov. 23, Superintendent Heyman explained that he wouldn't bring the eighty-one called for by the writ because he didn't have enough keepers to escort so many. A number of those cited are ill, he said, and several are dead.

MASKED MEN LINE UP 40 IN BAR, FATALLY SHOOT 1

East Side Saloon Scene of Robbery as Customers Were Discussing Election.

Six masked men with revolvers entered the saloon of Morris Toland on the northwest corner of Ninety-ninth Street and Second Avenue last night at 11 o'clock and held up forty men who were standing at the bar and seated at tables discussing the election returns.

The robbers herded them all into the rear room and lined them up against the wall. Four of them kept the muzzles of their revolvers swinging to and fro and covering the line, while two robbers searched the forty men. They gathered more than $1,500 in money. Just as they were finishing a man entered the main room of the saloon. One of the robbers instantly swung on him and opened fire. The newcomer dropped to the floor, and the holdup men ran out and fled west on Ninety-ninth Street.

The wounded man was Abraham Margowitz, 45 years old, of 216 East Ninety-ninth Street. One bullet hit him in the chest and one in the stomach. He was taken to Harlem Hospital, where it was said that he could not recover.

TWENTY DWELLINGS IN CHELSEA DEAL

Old Landmarks on West Twenty-third Street to be Demolished.

LOFTS TO BE ERECTED

Operators Secure Property for a Forty-two-Year Term at a Rental of $1,500,000.

The Chelsea section, which has been the scene of some active trading of late, especially in business properties, furnished an interesting and important transaction yesterday involving twenty old-fashioned private dwellings, at one time among the finest on the lower west side.

The property, which is located on Twenty-third Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, opposite the Chelsea Hotel, is known as 245 to 263 and 238 to 256, in all twenty four-story dwellings.

They were leased by the Meister Builders, Inc., for a term of forty-two years at a total rental approximating $1,500,000, from Lawrence Santos Suarez and Francis Santos Suarez of Paris, France, who owned the property for many years.

The sale was arranged by Austin Meegan of J. Carpenter & Co., and William H. Von Bergen, attorney, represented the owners.

The Meister Builders, who have been active in the Chelsea section for the last six months, have instructed their architects to prepare plans for the erection of eight-story office buildings on the property.

The same interests recently purchased from the Cushman estate 345-347 West Twenty-third Street, which they leased to the Athenia Realty Corporation for ten years.

Two New Realty Companies.

Two new companies have been formed for the purpose of taking over west side dwellings. The four-story and basement house at 35 West Sixty-eighth Street, 18 by 100.5, is to be taken by the 35 West Sixty-eighth Street Realty Corporation, with J. E. Hopkins, M. B. Doing and I. Alzamora as incorporators.

The four-story and basement house at 362 West Twenty-second Street, on a lot 21.6 by 98.9, adjoining the southeast corner of Ninth Avenue, is to be taken over by the 362 West Twenty-second Street Corporation, E. J. L. Baldiris, C. S. and A. E. Rolph.

Banks Aid Small Apartments.

Charles B. Van Valen, Inc., placed for I. Breakstone and Joseph Breakstone a loan of $26,000 at 6 per cent. on the five-story and basement apartment at 1,048 Forest Avenue; for Abraham Marts and Benjamin Sher, a loan of $7,500 on the four-story tenement at 2,015 Second Avenue, and for Mrs. Sidney Levy, a loan of $20,000 at 5½ per cent. on the five-story and basement apartment at 827 Jackson Avenue. The Van Valen Company have also placed for Wise & Seligsberg, as attorneys for Mrs. Marie Friedlander, a loan of $25,000 on the four-story and basement dwelling at 66 East Seventy-ninth Street. It is leased to Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb at $3,500 per annum, with an option to purchase at $80,000.

Suburban Trading.

The Lewis H. May Company has sold for Judge Russell E. Sprague his property consisting of a two and one-half story stucco dwelling and garage fronting on Bayview Avenue, Inwood, L. I., to Edward Leino for occupancy.

Edgeworth Smith, Inc., sold the dwelling at 152 Roxbury Road, in the boulevard section of Garden City to Henry J. Howlett.

Mrs. W. L. Doremus sold 47 North Fullerton Avenue, Montclair, N. J., to W. G. Meader. The property was held at $12,000. The Simpson-Merritt Company negotiated the sale.

The Bronx Market.

Harry Cahn has sold to Lena Manassa the five-story new-law apartment known as 809-811 Freeman Street, between Prospect and Union Avenues, arranged for twenty families on a plot 60 by 90.

Samuel Singer negotiated the sale.

E. Osborne Smith, Inc., sold for Bernard Ferris the private dwelling 2,232 Valentine Avenue to Clara Petri.

The Lincoln Seide Company sold for William J. and Adolph Hohle 12 West 184th Street a two and one-half story dwelling, 25 by 112, to a client for occupancy.

$400,000 Yonkers Theatre Lease.

George V. McNally has leased for Charles F. Pope for a period of twenty-one years the Coliseum Theatre property at the corner of Nepperhan and Morgan Avenues, Yonkers, at an aggregate rental of $400,000. Mr. Pope earlier in the month purchased this property from the Coliseum Realty Company, Henry Myers, President.

Brooklyn.

The Realty Associates sold to M. Salmari the new two-family brick dwelling 6,901 Vista Place, on a lot 20 by 80.

E. T. Newman, as broker, sold the three-story whitestone dwelling 60 Fifth Street, for A. De Cardena to a client for occupancy.

Private Dwelling Buyers.

D. H. Scully & Co. sold for the Misses S. & E. Arnott the four-story and basement dwelling at 2,002 Fifth Avenue, 18 by 100, to the Rev. Kalle Mackinen.

I. A. Wollheim sold to John Flynn the private dwelling at 210 West 140th Street for his own occupancy.

$11,000 Arleigh Sale.

The Rickert-Brown Realty Company sold to Dr. Diran P. Bender a two-story and basement Colonial tapestry brick dwelling on Ditmars Avenue, between Lawrence and Chauncey Streets, Arleigh, Queens Borough, for a consideration of $11,000.

Operator Buys Loft.

James H. Cruikshank, operator, purchased from Isabel Anderson of Washington, D. C., the five-story and basement loft building at 60 White Street, on a lot 23.6 by 110. Daniel Birdsall & Co. and E. H. Ludlow & Co. were the brokers. This is the first sale of this property in thirteen years.

Hold Jersey Man as Illegal Voter.

ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 2.—Clarence H. Seamon, Chairman of the East Orange Draft Board during the war, was arrested today at a voting booth charged with having registered and voted illegally at the primaries five months ago. It is alleged Seamon moved to Belmar, but he says he retained a room at his old residence here, which entitled him to vote in that district.

Remodelled Farm House
This quaint old homestead on an old highway, near a quaint little old fashioned town, with its low hung ceilings, 9 big rooms and 2 fireplaces, retains much of the charm of bygone days. A bucket well, hollyhocks and fine old trees bring back the yester-years. Electric lights, a modern bathroom, running water and fully equipped kitchen and steam heat have been added to provide modern comforts. There is also an acre of ground, a garage, barn and chicken house. A fine garden lies in the rear. It is just a few minutes from an express railroad station and is only 51 minutes to N. Y. City on the train; $5,000 cash buys it, $6,000 can remain on mortgage. FARM HOUSE, Box 888 Times Downtown.

AN HONEST BARGAIN—20% CUT
SUBURBAN BUILDER: Will sell at a sacrifice a handsome Colonial home, with garage, of unusual charm, designed to be finished in the quaint style of bygone days. I need cash and have too much construction on my hands. The decorations are still to be put in. I will install them according to the desires of a purchaser. The house has eight large, light rooms and a fine, big, completely appointed tiled bathroom. The plot is 100x190 feet, with several fine old oak trees as shade. Only 5 minutes' walk to trolley, in a beautiful, residential section. 900 feet elevation. Water rights afford fine boating, sailing, fishing, skating. Splendid commuting service to New York City. $2,850 cash takes it. Balance of $8,400. It was cheap at the regular price of $14,000. For complete details apply GEO. C. BLACKWELL, Sherman Sq. Hotel, 71st and Broadway, New York City. Tel. 8400 Columbus.

WET CROWDS OOZE ELECTION WISDOM

ONE SARSPARILLA MELEE

Stranger Said George Harvey Put Over Harding, and Then the Trouble Began.

The heavy rain last night dissolved most of the crowds which had turned out to see the election returns on bulletin boards.

Between 6 o'clock and 9:30, there were several showers not less violent than downpours which have quelled revolutions in Mexico City and stopped wars in Central America. The crowd in Times Square stood firm in the face of these. But they were finally dispersed by hydraulic action at 9:30, when a small cloudburst fell on them. Hundreds shot the rapids back into the Square and resumed their vigil, as soon as the violence of the rain had lessened.

The crowd was extremely quiet at all times. A suddenly deepened hush fell on them, as each set of figures was flashed on the screen. A foreigner might have supposed they had gathered to read bulletins from the sickbed of some illustrious one. There was apparently no impulse in any section of the crowd to grow delirious over anything, and the rain was more than a match for ordinary enthusiasm.

It was a pro-Harding and pro-Smith crowd. What slight ripples of satisfaction did occasionally sweep over them was for those two. The tremendous showing of Harding in the city and the State and the unexpected strength of Smith made a respectable impression between showers, but sensational bulletins were ignored during the more serious downpours. Any one who clapped his hands or made a noise of approbation was as conspicuous as a man with squeaky shoes at a funeral.

First Bulletin From Massachusetts.

Crowds gathered and began arguing early in the afternoon. The little self-advertising town in Massachusetts that always gets in first with the returns went on record as 7 to 1 in favor of Harding, dramatizing the betting odds, and it started a five or six-ringed debating circus in Times Square, the like of which had not been seen since the early war days of 1914 and 1915. Following the scatter-brain habit of wrangling groups, the issues constantly changed, wandering from Article X. to Buddhism vs. Confucianism. One group under observation moved on from the League of Nations to the cause of the war, thence to the cause of thunder, back to whether the personalities of the Blaine-Cleveland election surpassed the present and sideways to an inquiry into the reasons why the addition of more and more lenses cannot increase the power of a microscope until it can reveal the atoms buzzing around in the molecule.

The forlorn hope for Cox was led in front of the subway kiosk at the sharp edge of the Times Building by several printers and one man with bushy gray whiskers and a bevelled forehead, who kept repeating:

"Just wait for the great silent vote. I have made a careful nation-wide survey and let me tell you, gentlemen, Cox is the man. Mark my words. Watch that bulletin board for the great silent vote."

The Harding people were impatient because his election was not flashed at 6 o'clock, before the count of votes had begun here and before the polls had closed in most States. The bushy-whiskered Cox man disappeared when New York State returns began to roll in, ranging from 2 to 1 to 5 to 1 in favor of the Republican.

Umbrellas Hid the Returns.

Shortly after 6 o'clock, it began to rain pretty hard. The Summer politicians and sunshine patriots darted for cover, but their places were taken, and Times Square was pretty well filled by 8 o'clock. The bulletins were read under difficulties. Umbrellas were overlapping like the Roman shields at a siege. It was necessary to find one of the flaws here and there in the continuous canopy and to peek through the cataracts brawling down the umbrella sides to see the screen on which the returns were shown. Here and there were isolated umbrellas under which crowds were helping themselves to shelter, with their heads bunched together like a setting of eggs.

Every now and then a head was thrust out for a quick look at the sky to see if the beams of the searchlight had begun to swing. Nearly everybody had forgotten the difference in time, which delayed the results from the outlying States; the hinterland, and backwoods, as New Yorkers are supposed to regard the remnant of the Continent. They remembered how the sky all over town had glowed four years ago with the information that Hughes had been elected, and were at loss to account for the delay this time. Some pretended to fear that Harding was being counted out and that the people that fixed the world's series had fixed the election.

"Whispering Campaign" Discussed.

The "whispering campaign," which as a matter of fact never did reach the stage of a whisper in New York, was the subject of violent denunciation under the umbrellas and awnings. One man, who stood squeezed out of the rain against the plate glass window of a corner cigar store, said the whole matter had been the greatest possible vindication of the work to which he had devoted his leisure time for the last fifteen years.

"It is a mighty valuable thing," he said, "as this case illustrates, for one to know his own pedigree and to be able to produce it, when occasion requires. No man in politics will be without one hereafter. I have traced branches of my family on the distaff side back to 1220 in the time of Henry III. and on the male side to 1635. Being connected with the Shermans and several other prominent families, I thought it would be worth while and it got to be a fad with me. It's one of the most interesting hobbies a man can take up, and anybody can now see the value of it."

The decorum of the gathering was broken by some Cox supporters who stepped out of an automobile just north of the Times Building at 9 o'clock, at the very moment when a bulletin from Oswego County was flashed showing Cox to be in the lead by nearly two to one. This was the first contact of the Cox group with election returns, and they shouted loudly. Nearly every one else regarded it as a typographical error. Terrible tidings from Buffalo, Manhattan and Queens soon got the newcomers into more accurate orientation.

Casualty in Sarsparilla Mill.

Just at the time that the crowd was rushing for shelter before the heavy downpour, the door of a sarsparilla mill, not far from Forty-third Street and Eighth Avenue, swung open and a man splashed into the gutter, as if expelled from a torpedo tube. He was rushed to a hospital, where it was found that enough had happened to him to keep six internes experimenting for the rest of the night. A reporter found an indignant man at the place drinking from a small glass something which he seemed to like.

"It was this way," he explained. "That man had been drinking. You could notice it on his breath when he came in here. We were talking about the election, and he butted in and said George Harvey was running the country.

"'You fellows let him shuffle you around like a pack of cards,' he said. 'He pulled the strings and put over Wilson in 1912. He jerks the wires and puts over Harding this year. This is supposed to be a free country, and yet nobody but his personal appointees can get into the White House. And, in my opinion, he hasn't appointed a good one yet.'

"I said, 'Don't you insult the President.' Bill here said, 'Don't you insult the next President.' Then we all started at him, each of us accusing him of speaking the other half of a half truth. 'That's exactly how it happened, whether it's down on the police blotter as an unavoidable automobile accident or not.'"

Expense Or Investment?

Granted that investment securities return a high yield to-day, they cannot compare with your investment in the services of an experienced Accounting and Tax Organization.

Writes a gratified client; "Only because of the Income Tax Law, do we charge our fees to your firm as an expense, instead of an investment."
